

Life-death fate of Tate killers in jury's hands

By MARY NEISWENDER Staff Writer

Describing death by cyanide in the gas chamber, defense attorneys Friday ended their pleas for the life of Charles Manson and his three hippie girlfriends, drawing a close to the costliest and longest trial in State history.

The seven-man jury which two months ago found Manson, Patricia Krenwinkel, Susan Atkins and Leslie Van Houten guilty of the brutal Tate-La Bianca murders, now will decide whether they spend the rest of their lives in prison or die in San Quentin's gas chamber.

Los Angeles Superior Court Judge Charles Older held court for more than an hour after the usual quitting time to instruct the jury so it could begin deliberating this morning.

The jury will decide the four defendants' fate in a room on the ninth floor of the Los Angeles Hall of Justice where the trial has gone on for almost nine-and-a-half months. Manson is jailed on the 13th floor of the same building.

The judge's 52 jury instructions came after the final summation of chief defense counsel Paul Fitzgerald, whose impassioned plea — not only for the life of his own client but for the lives of all four — left several jurors shaken.

One alternate juror buried her head in her hands as Fitzgerald detailed the procedures used by the San Quentin authorities to carry out a death sentence.

After describing the chamber, the preparation of the cyanide, the "ready room" for prisoners, and the procedures which end in the prisoner being strapped into the metal chairs, Fitzgerald described the death itself.

Then he added: "This was an eye for an eye ... a tooth for a tooth. Yet, if we believe Christ is in every man, this, too, has been a day of crucifixion — as well as of retribution. In these warped and lonely persons ... the son of man has been crucified."

As the attorney pleaded for their lives, the defendants seemed to pay little attention.

Manson, who was ejected from the courtroom several weeks ago for being disruptive, was in a holding cell next to the courtroom. He looked out the screened window of his cell only three times during the day-long summations.

The girls, sitting at the counsel table, doodled, whispered and giggled — as they have during the entire trial.

At one point, their giggles distracted not only the attorney but the jury, as they spotted a television singer who had come to the court as a spectator.

The 33-year-old attorney earlier had attacked the prosecutor, Deputy District

Building codes fail Feb. 9 quake 'test'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The California earthquake of Feb. 9 proved that building codes are inadequate to provide resistance against earthquakes and should be revised, a report issued Friday by the National Academy of Sciences says.

The report was prepared by the academy's division of earth sciences and transmitted to the White House. It said the temblor provided the first really comprehensive practical test of U.S. earthquake codes in and close to the point of an earthquake's origin.

"Modern structures designed according to earthquake requirements of the building code performed well in regions of moderately strong ground shaking," it said.

"IN THE region of very strong ground motion, however, some modern buildings were severely damaged. A few that collapsed would have caused many additional deaths had they been occupied at this early hour. If the duration of strong ground-shaking had

Nixon to bare building wage controls Monday

President acts to curb costs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon will announce a plan Monday to impose wage and price controls in the construction industry to halt soaring building costs, it was learned late Friday.

White House sources said Nixon had accepted a plan urged on him by Labor Secretary James D. Hodgson that would establish criteria for wages in the construction industry and institute a network of review boards across the country to administer them.

Hodgson's plan, and Nixon's acceptance of it, followed refusal of building trades unions to agree to voluntary wage restraints.

The plan apparently was a compromise worked out by Hodgson and members of the Construction Industry Collective Bargaining Commission, composed of representatives from labor, management and the public, and headed by Harvard Dean John Dunlop.

State to get more time to meet U.S. welfare rules

By LOU CANNON From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — A high-ranking source in the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare Friday indicated California would be given additional time to comply with federal welfare regulations.

The California Supreme Court on Thursday ruled that Gov. Reagan did not have the power to change welfare regulations to

'Surplus' millions found in aid fund

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Reagan administration finance experts have found a $25.2 million state welfare fund "surplus," but Finance Director Verne Orr said Friday it won't offset added costs from the State Supreme Court decision ordering higher welfare grants for needy families.

Finance officials confirmed a "possible" $25.2 million surplus in state welfare funds has developed but estimates of the court decision's impact range from $150 million to $200 million.

The Assembly Ways and Means Committee learned this week that a total welfare program surplus of $52 million has accrued, $25.2 million of it is state money.

Though caseloads are up, grant amounts paid did not total as high as projected, officials said in explaining the surplus.

The high state court approved Reagan administration regulations raising the basic grant.

But it ruled invalid without legislative approval a percentage reduction in actual dollar amounts paid in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children program.

Republican Assemblyman William Bagley, San Rafael, promptly moved to amend existing bills to secure legislative approval for the regulations.

Gov. Reagan, meantime, was in Washington, explaining his welfare reform proposals to federal officials and congressional leaders.

Reagan called a 'liar' in comments on welfare abuse

By NOEL SWANN Staff Writer

Gov. Ronald Reagan doesn't really want his welfare reforms passed and the governor is "just a liar" when he talks about massive welfare abuses, Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco, claimed in Long Beach Friday.

Burton made his statements at a press conference after an Assembly Ways and Means subcommittee had heard testimony on the proposed welfare reforms from county officials, welfare recipients and welfare rights representatives.

"When you hear welfare parents tell you their children get only three glasses of powdered milk a week, it makes you realize the governor is just a liar when he speaks about all the malingering," Burton said.

"Sure there are some abuses, but they are a very small percentage — far less than the abuses the governor has exercised since he had been in office."

Burton said he'd like to have Reagan meet and listen to some welfare recipients like those who spoke at the hearing in the Long Beach Harbor Administration Building.

He said he believes Reagan is only raising the welfare reform situation as a "red herring" because he "has no other issue to work with since campus unrest has gone."

Predicted L.B. storm loses punch

The rainstorm that was headed for the Southland will drop only scattered showers near the mountains today, the National Weather Service says.

Forecasters said Long Beach skies will be partly cloudy during the week-end. High temperature today will be 65 and low tonight will be about 50 degrees.

There will be strong gusty winds in many mountain and desert areas but skies should be mostly clear, forecasters say.

ADMINISTRATION

sources said the plan included creating a national appeals board to which either side could bring its grievances.

But the basic plan still would be voluntary. Neither the review boards nor the appeals boards would have any authority to enforce their decisions but they would have the clout of the federal government and its huge construction program — $14 billion during the current fiscal year — on their side.

Under the plan, the controls would be enforced largely by the threat of withholding federal contracts from those contractors who grant what it controls.

Yank base under heavy Red fire

SAIGON (UPI) — North Vietnamese forces rained rocket, artillery and mortar fire Friday on the big American base of Khe Sanh and temporary outposts nearby, killing at least one American and injuring an unspecified number of others, U.S. spokesmen said.

But 30 miles northeast of Khe Sanh near Gio Linh, "right on the edge" of the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam, U.S. artillery blasted Communist positions and killed 15 North Vietnamese spokesmen said.

Despite reports of a North Vietnamese buildup in the northern half of the buffer zone, U.S. spokesmen said they had "no reports" of shelling of U.S. positions from there.

Pakistan civil war rages

Combined News Services

NEW DELHI, India, Saturday — Fierce street fighting raged in the capital city of Dacca today in the Pakistani civil war and the governmental All-India radio in neighboring India reported army troops were using tanks against the rebels. The civil war broke out Friday between federal troops endeavoring to take over East Pakistan for the central government and followers of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman attempting to make the province independent.

Pakistani President A. M. Yahya Khan accused Rahman and his Awami (people's) League followers of treason in a Radio Pakistan broadcast monitored here. He said he had ordered the army to take whatever steps necessary "to restore the authority of the (federal) government" East Pakistan. A clandestine radio broadcast also monitored here said Rahman had declared the province a sovereign, independent nation. Firing was heard at the border, and reports coming across spoke of heavy fighting.

Economic indicators rise in February

WASHINGTON — The government's leading economic indicators took a moderate jump in February, the Commerce Department reported Friday. The six-tenths of one per cent gain in the index of eight leading indicators prompted one Commerce economist to assert that the economy "is on a path of renewed growth." The report indicated that although the economy is recovering from last year's recession, the rate of improvement is not yet fast enough to meet President Nixon's ambitious goals for prosperity this year and in 1972. The Commerce Department said the composite index of eight leading indicators rose 0.6 per cent in February after increases of 1.3 per cent in January and 1.8 per cent in December. The February increase was the smallest since November, when the index also advanced 0.6 per cent.

Fire traps 2 coal miners

NEMACOLIN, Pa. — Two coal miners were trapped by fire deep underground Friday in a Buckeye Coal Co. mine, one of the largest mines in the Pennsylvania soft coal region about 55 miles south of Pittsburgh. About 150 other miners were in the No. 4 shaft of the mine when the fire started and escaped to safety. Joseph Klimek, an official at the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co., owners of the mine, identified the two trapped men as Richard Randolph, 63, and Charles Gibson Sr., 64, both of Nemacolin.

Arrests in silver theft

NEWARK, N.J. — The FBI announced the arrest Friday night of two Miami, Fla., men and the recovery of silver artifacts valued at several hundred thousand dollars stolen Monday from the Villa Vizcaya museum in Miami. The FBI said Edward B. Smith, 19, and Randall C. Mumper, 21, were arrested by FBI agents after a high speed chase on the New Jersey Turnpike.

Crushing death averted

FLORENCE, Ore. — The James Ayres family of Klamath Falls escaped death early Friday when they decided to sleep in their trailer and car instead of a tent. They decided to move to more secure quarters from their new tent when the wind at Honeyman State Park on the southern Oregon coast started blowing hard about 1 a.m. Half an hour later, an 85-foot Douglas fir — with a trunk measuring three and one-half feet in diameter — toppled, crushing the tent where the entire family of nine had been sleeping.

TV ban issue ducked

WASHINGTON — A Democratic Party reform commission Friday withdrew a proposed ban on television cameras on the floor of the 1972 national convention and voted to toss the entire matter to the meeting's arrangements committee. A majority of members of the O'Hara Commission favored keeping the ban, voted tentatively last November, but the group ended by sidestepping the controversial question.

New pottery recall

WASHINGTON — The Food and Drug Administration Friday announced the recall as a lead poison hazard of two more pottery patterns made by Mellox Pottery, Inc., of Manhattan Beach which recalled six patterns earlier. FDA said the new recall involved Poppytrail "Mission Verde" pottery sets and Vernon "Petalburst" dinner and salad plates.

NEW DELHI — Radio Pakistan announced Saturday that Sheikh Mujibur Rahman was arrested only hours after he proclaimed independence for East Pakistan.

itored in Calcutta, broadcast an appeal from Rahman urging East Pakistanis to fight the troops in the streets and calling on neighboring countries and the United Nations to come to East Pakistan's assistance. Rahman was quoted as declaring, "If the enemy dares enter your town or village, hurl on them powdered red pepper, soda water bottles and sundry items. Use handgrenades if you have them."

Rebels flare up in Jordan

BEIRUT, Lebanon — King Hussein's troops fought Palestinian guerrillas Friday in and around Irbid, Jordan's second largest city, in the biggest battle between them so far this year. Jordanian forces claimed victory. They said the army stormed into the city and that the guerrillas either surrendered or were put to flight. The new flareup of internal strife came as a leading Soviet diplomat described the Middle East situation as "difficult and dangerous" and said it was up to Israel to move to break the deadlock over peace negotiations with Egypt. Soviet Ambassador to Washington Anatoly Dobrynin made the statements after a 45-minute meeting at the State Department with U.S. Secretary of State William P. Rogers.

Thieu drops key hint

LONG XUYEN, Vietnam — President Nguyen Van Thieu, indicating he intends to seek re-election, Friday outlined a program stressing rural development. Thieu told newsmen he would hold a news conference in Saigon early next week, and aides said he would have a major announcement. High sources said Thieu would formally announce his bid for re-election.

$1-million robbery

LONDON — A masked gang, operating with precision timing, robbed an armored car of $1.09 million in cash Friday, locked the four-man crew in the back of the vehicle and escaped in suburban traffic. The hold-up was one of the biggest since the "Great Train Robbery" of 1963 when a gang operating with the efficiency of commandos ambushed a Glasgow-to-London mail train and stole $7.3 million.

Faulkner clears hurdle

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — New premier Brian Faulkner repelled a rightwing challenge to his leadership Friday and won election as head of Northern Ireland's Protestant Unionist Party with a 192-70 vote of confidence.

Bethlehem sells to Chile

SANTIAGO — The Bethlehem Iron Mines Company has signed a contract with Chile's left-wing government to sell its iron mines here, reliable sources said Friday. The sale, which should bring Bethlehem more than $30 million, is the first settlement with a major United States investor growing out of Chile's present policy of nationalizing all basic mining resources, large industries and private banks.

Calley verdict still hangs

Combined News Services

The judge in the My Lai murder trial of Lt. William L. Calley Jr. at Ft. Benning, Ga., said Friday—the 10th day of jury deliberations—that he will allow the jurors to meet on Sunday if they want.

But the court-martial judge, Col. Reid Kennedy, added, "I'm not going to be there to accept a verdict on Sunday."

Chief defense attorney George Latimer objected to the deferral of any Sunday verdict until Monday, saying: "I'd like him to take a verdict as soon as it comes through."

Kennedy said he planned a full day's court session today. He previously had said he may call the jurors into the courtroom Monday for a progress report if no verdict is reached by then. The six officers on the jury will continue to be locked up for the night as they have been since deliberations began.

Meanwhile, the jury asked for a more legible copy of the four specifications which constitute the indictment of Calley and charge him with premeditated murder at My Lai. It was issued Sept. 5, 1969, on the eve of his scheduled release from the Army after two tours of duty in Vietnam had brought him a Bronze Star for gallantry and a Purple Heart for combat wounds. The indictment automatically kept him in the service.

The request led some court room observers to speculate the jury finally was preparing to vote on the specifications which alleged the murder of unarmed Vietnamese by Calley on four different occasions at My Lai three years ago.

It has been presumed by experts on military procedure that the jury's deliberations thus far have been preliminary to any vote.

Kennedy left the court house at 4:30 p.m. Friday precluding a verdict at least until today. The jurors continued deliberating after he left.

Hoffa parole

The Justice Department Friday dismissed as "rubbish" a published report that political pressure brought on the U.S. Parole Board would free Teamsters union President James R. Hoffa from prison next week.

The report said the Nixon administration had been brought under such political pressure, the board would grant Hoffa a parole and allow him to seek reelection in July to another term as president of the two-million member union, largest in the nation.

Spaced out

Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, said Friday it is time to end the American manned-space program and turn to unmanned exploration.

"I have very real doubt that the manned-space program needs to be continued at this time," he told a meeting of Democratic state chairmen in Washington.

Muskie noted that the Soviet space program has been conducted largely with unmanned vehicles.

2 boys freed by kidnapers

Police in Macon, Ga., said Friday they planned to make additional arrests in the kidnaping of an 11-year-old boy who was held in handcuffs for 20 hours before he was ransomed for $5,000.

Meanwhile, police in Memphis, Tenn., said they were still searching for the bearded gunman who kidnaped the son of Dr. Richard C. Batey, a Bible and religion professor, Thursday night and released him after art gallery officials met his demand to remove four nude female photographs from display.

The boy was identified as Richard Batey, 13, whose father served as a part-time instructor of humanities at the art gallery.

The Macon victim was Michael J. Register, son of Mr. and Mrs. P. F. Register.

"He understands the job of being president of the Senate, and he's respected," said the 1964 Republican candidate for President. Goldwater also said he thought Nixon would run for reelection in the 1972 presidential race and that Agnew would be his running-mate.

He added his belief that Nixon would win.

Claude L. Fly, 66, the American soil expert who was held 208 days by Tupamaros terrorists, will be

CSLB undergraduates out of luck--no room next semester

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

For all undergraduates, the doors to California State College, Long Beach, are closed for the fall semester, 1971, college officials announced Friday.

Under application deadlines imposed earlier than ever this year by the new Common Admissions program, the graduate program in art has also reached maximum capacity and is closed, officials added.

The closures leave only graduate courses of study open to persons hoping to enter CSLB in September, according to Associate Dean of Admissions and Records Clarence Bergland.

"But graduate applications are slow, and they're down, generally, all over," said Bergland. "It's possible we may not have to close those areas — except art — at all."

Bergland added that acceptance of undergraduates by the college ended sooner than expected because "we got a surprising number of overflow-students."

Under the untested Common Admissions Program, students formally applied for admission to the State College system, listing several campuses they hoped to attend in priority fashion.

When admissions at Humboldt, Chico and San Diego State Colleges closed, applicants were then assigned their next choice — and in many cases, it was CSLB, said Bergland.

2 surviving quintts off danger list

The two survivors of the only quintuplets ever born in California were taken off the critical list Friday at Valley Presbyterian Hospital in Van Nuys.

The infants are Dawn Michelle and Danielle Faye Kaplan, born March 16 to Mrs. Paul Kaplan, 25, wife of an insurance executive. Their progress was described as encouraging.

Hospital attendants said the babies are still in an incubator but no longer require cardiac and respiratory monitors. They now receive normal food — eight cubic centimeters of milk each hour — instead of intravenous injections.

THE BABIES each weigh less than two pounds and are expected to remain in the hospital about three months.

One of the quintts, a boy, was stillborn, the two others, Marci Beth and Kevyn Sue, survived only a day.

The babies, 10 weeks premature, were the Kaplans' first children. Mrs. Kaplan's doctors said she had been taking fertility pills and injections to help her become pregnant.

Two lewd dancers convicted

Two dancers at a Hollywood night spot were convicted Friday of five misdemeanor counts of lewd conduct because of performances which police said ended in sexual intercourse.

Two owners of the Bottoms Up club were convicted of aiding and abetting lewd conduct, four of their employees were acquitted of similar misdemeanor charges and a Municipal Court jury could not reach a verdict on two other dances.

During the trial, Judge

Irwin J. Newton convened court one day at the club, enabling jurors to view the performances, termed "love dances" by the defendants.

The defense said "freedom of expression" was at stake. A psychiatrist, testifying for the prosecution, testified it was not "socially, medically or psychologically healthy" to view the performances.

Addict admits to murder while high on a 'credit fix'

By MOLLY BURRELL
Staff Writer

A gaunt, 31-year-old dope addict who turned himself in and confessed to the knife murder of a Bellflower shopowner was high on a "credit fix" when he committed the crime, according to court testimony Friday.

Transient Arthur Conrad said he got a "fix" of heroin and cocaine in North Long Beach shortly before he robbed and stabbed Mrs. Ruby Kates, sheriff's homicide Sgt. Paul Dorris testified at Conrad's preliminary hearing in Los Cerritos Municipal Court.

Conrad told the same story to detective Robert Bell when he wandered into the Long Beach police building at 2:20 a.m. Feb. 27, five days after Mrs. Kates' killing at her children's clothing shop, 17432 S. Bellflower Blvd.

The defendant, who voluntarily entered Metropolitan State Hospital's addiction program Jan. 21, also told police he walked away from the hospital grounds in Norwalk at 10:30 a.m. Feb. 22 and hitchhiked to North Long Beach, Bell testified.

He obtained the drugs on credit, took the fix, and rode a bus to Bellflower to look for a place where he could get money to pay his narcotics bill, Bell and Dorris testified.

Conrad told officers, he noticed Mrs. Kates' store was empty of customers, and so entered, pulled a knife and told her "This is a holdup," the witness testified.

When Mrs. Kates argued and grabbed for his throat, the two struggled through the shop until Conrad's knife slashed felled the victim, officers said.

Ax slayer Hulse gets life term

Arthur (Moose) Hulse, 17, was sentenced Friday to life in prison for the ax-slaying of Jerry Wayne Carlin, 21, in Santa Ana last June 2.

The Garden Grove youth also drew a five-year prison term as an accessory to the fatal knifing of El Toro schoolteacher Florence Nancy Brown, 31, the following night.

Santa Ana Superior Court Judge Ronald Crookshank, in whose court a jury convicted Hulse March 1, ordered the prison terms after denying a plea for a new trial.

Defense counsel Robert Green filed a notice of appeal and said he would prepare the briefs within a few weeks.

The youth was a member of a hippie-type gang allegedly led by Steven Hurd, 20, of Santa Ana, whose trial on the two murder charges is set for April 19.

A self-professed devil worshipper, Hurd is accused of stabbing Mrs. Brown to death, dismembering her body and conducting weird sacrificial "rites to Satan" around a campfire.

Main witness against Hulse was Herman H. Taylor, 17, who blamed him for wielding the ax used to slay Carlin after a $73 robbery at a gas station where he worked. Taylor also is due to testify against Hurd.

Another suspect in the killings, Christopher (Gypsy) Gibboney, 19, is awaiting trial.

Discharge urged for 37 sailors in pot case

The Navy Friday wound up its investigation of alleged marijuana traffic aboard the Long Beach-based destroyer James E. Kyes with a recommendation that 37 crewmen be given administrative discharges.

Five other Kyes sailors are awaiting punitive action, the Naval Station Legal Office said, with two of them detained in the brig.

A hearing will be held Monday to determine whether the two sailors under detention will face a general court martial. Conviction would mean either bad conduct or dishonorable discharges.

Authorities said the recommendation for administrative discharges has been sent to the chief of naval personnel. That office will decide the type of administrative discharge to be given the 37 crewmen — honorable, general or undesirable.

The marijuana investigation, which saw nearly 100 sailors questioned, was triggered March 5 when four Kyes crewmen told the ship's executive officer they wanted administrative discharges because "we are marijuana users."

The Kyes left for the Western Pacific six days after the investigation began, minus crewmen suspected of using, possessing or selling the marijuana.

The two men held in the brig are first-term enlistees and nonrated.

Theft suspects due in court next week

Eight men freed on $1,250 bond each after their arrest in a Long Beach police investigation of stolen property purchases are scheduled to appear in Municipal Court next week.

Two others, veteran Long Beach policeman Walter Williamson, 43, and mechanic Hershel Courll, 45, of 6013 Village Road, Lakewood, were arrested but not booked in the investigation. Williamson was dismissed from the force Friday by Police Chief William Mooney.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Joseph Siler said he will confer with detectives in the commercial burglary detail early next week to consider evidence in the case.

Siler said that if complaints are issued Williamson and Courll will be notified when to appear in court.

Court appearances are scheduled Wednesday for Harry Ratliff, 42, a 1970 candidate for Long Beach City Council; Marion McCallen, 49, a member of the Signal Hill Civil Service Commission; Edward Bryan, 31, of 2701 Woodstock St., Rossmore, and George McCray, 53, of 4688 Goldfield Ave.

Court dates were set for William Fuller, 34, of 1044 Lime Ave.; Cecil Bourroughs, 35, of 1106 California Ave.; Cirilo Martinez, 39, of 6031 Killarney Ave.; Garden Grove, and John Mallon, 38, of 5026 Walnut Ave.

Bill would ask 100,000 jobs

Assembly Speaker Robert Moretti said Friday he will introduce legislation next week aimed at creating 100,000 new jobs in California.

Moretti, D-Van Nuys, made the announcement at a news conference at the office of Democratic U.S. Sen. John V. Tunney, who also proposed a job-making idea.

Tunney, whose vote against continued federal funding of the supersonic transport had been decried by Southern California aerospace spokesmen as increasing the state's unemployment rolls, called upon President Nixon to unfreeze $11 billion in funds he said had been appropriated by Congress for public works projects.

TUNNEY also said the defeat of the SST appropriation is being used as a "red herring" because it involved only 2,000 jobs in California.

Moretti said his proposed legislation will require Gov. Reagan to "organize a program of public service employment, giving priority to services in the fields of environmental quality, community improvement, health education and early childhood care."

His bill would be known as the "Employment Opportunities Act of 1971" and would require the state to put up $100 million and the federal government $400,000 to pay for the program over the next two years, he explained.

Tool could have told of quake

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — Several hours warning of impending earthquakes and aftershocks could be given with the use of a simple carpenter's level, a geologist said Friday.

Arthur Sylvester, professor of Geology at UC Santa Barbara, said that he and Dwight Pollard, a graduate student had closely examined four square blocks in the Sylmar area after the Feb. 9 earthquake.

Their findings led him to conclude that a network of inexpensive levels such as the ones carpenters use would indicate impending shocks.

Sylvester explained that he and Pollard set up a surveying instrument in an intersection on Feb. 20, noticing that periodically the bubble in the level of the instrument would drift, requiring adjustment.

"Later that evening there were two strong aftershocks, one of 4.3 magnitude and one of 4.6," Sylvester said.

Based on that and other observations, he said the drifting of the bubble had undoubtedly recorded the tilting of the crust and signaled the adjustments that came several hours later.

"If such levels were strategically placed in the area where aftershocks were expected, and connected to a computer, they could give several hours warning of impending aftershocks," said Sylvester. "If enough of them were set up in a computerized network over a very large area, they might even be used to warn of an initial shock," he said.

Sylvester also explained that several residents of the area had an unrecognized warning of the impending earthquake in the form of new cracks appearing in sidewalks and garden wall a few weeks prior to the earthquake.

Sylvester reported his and Pollard's work in Sylmar at a UC Riverside symposium on the San Fernando earthquake, sponsored by the Geological and Seismological Societies of America.

Negotiations resume in S.F. teacher strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — For the first time since 1,400 San Francisco teachers walked off their jobs, union leaders and administrators met Friday to discuss strike issues.

The strikers, who walked out Wednesday, are members of the American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO. Members of a rival union, the Classroom Teachers Association, crossed picket lines to work, so that two-thirds of the city's teachers were on the job.

With the help of substitutes, all schools remained open Friday, although about 30,000 of San Francisco's 90,000 students stayed home. At one high school, only one out of 10 pupils showed up.

Negotiations, resuming on the third day of the strike, occurred through the mechanism of a representative group the Certified Employees Council, as required by state law.

However, the talks were complicated by the presence on the council of members of both unions, and their maneuverings to avoid giving recognition to each other. Issues in the strike include class sizes and working conditions as well as salaries.

Chavez, Teamsters agree to arbitration; boycott ends

SALINAS (UPI) — Cesar Chavez' farm workers union and the Teamsters union have ended their eight-month jurisdictional dispute and suspended Chavez' nationwide lettuce boycott, it was announced Friday.

An agreement negotiated in Washington provides for arbitration procedures between the AFL-CIO United Farm Workers Organizing Committee and the Teamsters.

A dispute over workers at Bud Antle Farms in Salinas Valley, which caused the UFWOC lettuce boycott, has already been submitted to arbitration, Chavez said, and the boycott suspended for 30 days.

Chavez said he interpreted the agreement to mean that UFWOC now had rights over "all farm workers" in California.

He told a news conference the Teamsters were conceding their jurisdictional rights even to farm workers now covered under more than 200 California Teamster contracts.

Teamsters officials were not available for immediate comment.

In Washington, AFL-CIO President George Meany said the agreement sets up an arbitration procedure to resolve disputes.

"Under the plan if representatives of the Teamsters and UFWOC fail to resolve a matter to their mutual satisfaction within five days, the issue shall be referred to the United States Catholic Bishops Committee on Farm Labor for attempted resolution," the AFL-CIO statement said.

"If the bishops committee also fails to resolve the matter to the mutual satisfaction of the parties within 15 days, the issue shall be referred to AFL-CIO President Meany and Frank Fitzsimmons, general vice president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters or to an arbitrator or arbitrators appointed by them for final and binding arbitration."

The AFL-CIO statement did not say the Teamsters had conceded all farm workers in California.

But Chavez told the Salinas news conference the agreement gave UFWOC jurisdiction "over all farm workers including those covered by some 200 Teamster contracts in California."

The agreement will remain in effect until March 31, 1973, Meany said. Chavez had previously called a moratorium on the lettuce boycott when it appeared some agreement could be worked out.

Racial clash shuts school in Fresno

FRESNO — The city's oldest and most racially diverse high school was closed at noon Friday after a week-long series of incidents administrators blamed on outside elements.

Seven persons were arrested during two noon-hour skirmishes Friday involving an estimated 25 to 30 black and white youths. Only one of those arrested was a student.

FRESNO police said offenses included carrying a concealed weapon, resisting arrest and disturbing the peace. Two non-students had been arrested on Thursday for investigation or assault with a deadly weapon.

"The school will be reopened Monday morning and we intend to see it reopened safely," said Chester M. Slate, the district's administrator for secondary education. "There will be no police on campus, but they will be available on short notice. We are warning outsiders to stay away."

Fresno High, with an enrollment of 2,500 white, black and Mexican-American students, had been considered a "model" for interracial relations, Slate said.

Frank Gonder, the school's vice principal, said the unrest began Monday morning with an incident in which a black youth reportedly hit a white girl.

Gonder said Tuesday the girl's brother went to the school looking for the black youth and got into a fight with some other students.

THEN ON Thursday, Gonder said, two white youths — one armed with a machete — went on the school grounds looking for the black students. Police were called and the whites were arrested.

Slate said Friday's fighting took place in the street in front of the school and was strictly a black versus white encounter.

He said meetings were being held with representatives of the black community and student body leaders. He said Fresno High officials were confident the problems could be worked out if outsiders stayed away from the campus.

Search for 'Victim 12' of Zodiac fails to give clue

SOUTH LAKE TAHOE (UPI) — A site pictured on the latest message of the Zodiac killer about "victim 12" was identified Friday as a real-estate development on the Nevada shore of Lake Tahoe.

The message led to speculation that "victim 12" was Miss Donna Lass, 25, an attractive nurse who disappeared from the Lake Tahoe area Sept. 26 after she left her job at a gambling casino.

South Lake Tahoe Police Chief Ray Lauritzen sent several detectives to inspect the grounds of the planned condominium development. He said, however, that several hours of looking failed to produce a clue about the Zodiac or Miss Lass.

Lauritzen said the wooded site was "to large an area . . . with snow conditions as they are" to come up with anything conclusive. He said he planned no further probe of the area unless "we get more" clues from further examination of the Zodiac missive.

"We're not enthusiastic about" any immediate results from the message, he added.

Meanwhile, in Sacramento, sheriff's Inspector Stanley Parsons said Zodiac latest communication indicated he could be a possible suspect in the unsolved slayings of two women there.

"If the Zodiac claims he killed the missing nurse of Lake Tahoe and if, in fact, he did say her, then there is a very good chance he also killed Miss Hakari and Miss Bennalack," Parsons said.

The detective was referring to Judith Ann Hakari, 23, a nurse who disappeared March 6, 1970, and whose body was found April 26 in a shallow grave in Placer County, and Nancy Bennalack, 28, a court reporter found dead in her suburban apartment on Oct. 26, 1970.

PARSONS said there were several similarities in the three cases—including one that they were exceptionally "clean" women and not the type to take kindly to a flirtation or pickup.

Zodiac, who has boasted of "17-plus" victims, sent a postcard earlier this week to a newspaper.

Pasted to the card were clippings suggesting "victim 12" could be found "around in the snow" in the High Sierra.

A drawing on the card was found from an advertisement published last Sunday by several newspapers. It was an artist's rendition of houses among the trees at a Boise Cascade project at Incline Village.

While much of the Sierra area currently is under several feet of snow, Incline Village only has two feet on the ground, and police went to the area to determine if a search is possible.

Miss Lass disappeared after leaving a South Lake Tahoe casino where she was employed as a nurse, and police were convinced she was abducted and killed.

Zodiac's latest message was judged consistent with other Zodiac communications by handwriting experts.

IRS bares postdated memos in Alioto case

SEATTLE — Memoranda explaining a fee-sharing arrangement between Joseph Alioto, now San Francisco mayor, and former Washington Atty. Gen. John O'Connell were postdated to conceal the arrangement, an Internal Revenue Service investigator said in an affidavit.

Alioto said in San Francisco Friday the memos were 1969 recollections of conversations held in 1965 and 1966.

The affidavit by IRS investigator Edward O'Boyle was released this week after the indictment of Alioto, O'Connell, former O'Connell assistant George Faler and former Pierce County, Wash., Prosecuting Atty. John McCutcheon.

Shhh...robots find all, hear all, tell all

CAMP PENDLETON (AP) — Shhh... that blade of grass may be listening.

The little green box hidden by foliage behind that clump of rocks may be counting the change in your pockets. Nearby, what looks like a withered sapling is an electronic sensor, like the others.

Marines are testing the new devices, and Chief Warrant Officer A. L. Selleck calls them "tremendous."

"If properly placed, these devices can tell you what hostile personnel are saying, what they are carrying and where they are going," Selleck said Friday.

He is leader of Sensor Control and Management Platoon — SCAMP for short.

In three tours in Vietnam, Selleck planted robot spies behind enemy lines and along the electronic line built on the South Vietnamese side of the demilitarized zone.

The devices being tested at Camp Pendleton include seismic sensors that can read and identify ground vibrations from soft footfalls to heavy tanks, magnetic surveillance instruments that can describe metallic objects such as vehicles and rifles, and miniature acoustic receiver-transmitters with the listening range of the human ear.

FROM airplanes, sensors can be dropped attached to heavy bases that sink far enough into sand or earth that they're hidden from the enemy.

The transmission range of the devices is classified information.

Leathernecks of SCAMP, stationed at listening centers, are testing the devices and recommending where improvements can be made.

ELECTRONIC SENSOR that resembles a tree above the heavy base, which sinks into the ground when dropped from a plane, is inspected by Chief Warrant Officer A. L. Selleck, who heads a Camp Pendleton Marine Corps unit testing spy devices. "Branches" are antenna.

Report on defense profits not altered, watchdog says

WASHINGTON (AP) — A letter showing that a high defense official recommended a change in a congressional report on defense profits was released Friday by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex.

But Congress' top watchdog, Comptroller Gen. Elmer Staats, said the change did not alter the report's conclusion — and flatly denied any contractor or defense agency pressured him to soften the report.

"None," Staats told a

AF cuts order of F111 jets

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force announced Friday it is cutting 12 more planes from its planned buy of controversial F111 swing-wing fighter-bombers to offset rising costs.

Each of the F111F planes involved in the new cutback costs about $8.6 million, making the total worth more than $103 million.

The action reduced total Air Force purchases of F111s, long plagued by technical and political problems, to 519 aircraft, plus seven which were bought for a since-cancelled Navy program.

Seven years ago, when a controversy between Congress and then Secretary of Defense McNamara over the TFX was raging, the Pentagon had planned to buy more than 2,400 of both Air Force and Navy versions of what came to be known as the F111.

SINCE then, a series of problems, steep cost increases and opposition in Congress has caused a repeated scaling down of the F111 program, including a bomber version.

The entire fleet of F111s, then numbering 230, was grounded in December 1969 after an Air Force fighter-bomber crashed in Nevada. That crash occurred after a wing dropped off.

Since then, after "torture testing" the planes have gradually been returned to the service. More than 300 F111s have passed through these tests.

The Air Force's announcement said the cutback of 12 F111 aircraft "was prompted by inflationary effects on the over-all F111 program and some technical difficulties, primarily in aircraft avionics."

Huge weapons aid to Hanoi

LONDON (UPI) — The Soviet Union and Communist China are pouring weapons into North Vietnam to replace those destroyed by allied raids into Cambodia and Laos, diplomatic reports said Friday.

The arms include sophisticated and heavy weapons from Russia and lighter weapons from Communist China, which is not yet able to supply the more sophisticated types, the reports said.

Some of the new weapons have apparently gone into Hanoi's buildup along the demilitarized zone in Vietnam.

The reports said the arms flow from Moscow slowed down in 1969 and 1970, but resumed fully with the new developments in Southeast Asia, including the U.S. decision to destroy North Vietnamese arms depots and supplies in Cambodia and along the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos.

It is the Communist losses in Cambodia which were said to have set off pressing Hanoi demands for more arms from its Hanoi negotiated new Russian arms—as well as other aid—in special talks with the Kremlin in Moscow and through diplomatic channels in Hanoi, both preceding and following the Moscow negotiations, the diplomatic reports said. Diplomatic informants said Moscow is not too happy about having to resume a sizable flow of costly arms to Hanoi with heavy arms commitments to Egypt and, more recently, to Syria, in addition to costly aid projects.

But latest developments have changed all that and Moscow once more has been called upon to deliver the goods, if only to avoid charges from hostile Peking that it is letting down a Communist ally, the sources said.

'Will strike N. Viet if necessary' U.S. air power key to defense

By GEORGE ESPER

SAIGON (AP) — The United States is depending on its air superiority to keep North Vietnam in check and insure that there is no large buildup to threaten Allied forces in the northern sector of South Vietnam.

A high source says American fighter-bombers will respond over both North Vietnam and Laos "when the time and circumstances are right."

Wherever there is a threat to our forces, we will respond," the source said. "If positions inside North Vietnam or Laos are considered a threat we will respond with air strikes in whatever quantity is necessary."

THERE is a feeling in Saigon that because the United States is leaning heavily on air power, there will be no immediate large withdrawals of tactical air squadrons.

Despite the threats by the United States, Hanoi is moving long-range artillery and surface-to-air missiles into the area of the demilitarized zone and is putting SAMs inside Laos for the first time.

Sources see the moves as being aimed at protecting against a South Vietnamese ground thrust across the demilitarized zone and defending the Ho Chi Minh Trail, its supply lifeline to the south, against U.S. air attacks.

coming into Laos. As we see it, we will put air on it. The North Vietnamese have taken some losses in Laos and they are trying to recover by getting more supplies into their system, by creating a bigger anti-aircraft defense system to keep U.S. air from bombing the network."

The best available information is that Hanoi has increased its activity on the trail, following the withdrawal of South Vietnamese troops Wednesday.

"It is most significant," said one source, "that at a time when the rainy season is approaching and North Vietnam would normally be shutting down its supply operation, they are continuing their activity. This is an indication that they have been hurt and feel the need to continue their efforts later into the rainy season."

"Since the first of this year, we have knocked out an average of over 100 North Vietnamese trucks a day on the Ho Chi Minh Trail."

"We are beginning to see SAM-associated equipment sorties last Sunday and Monday against SAMs, anti-aircraft gun sites and supply depots north of the demilitarized zone. On Thursday, 20 U.S. fighter-bombers attacked a SAM site along the trail, only one mile west of North Vietnam's border and one mile northwest of the DMZ. That is the nearest to the DMZ that SAMs have been sighted.

U.S. fighter-bombers flew as many as 200 strike

SEN. ROBERT BYRD
Tells Nixon's Faults

Nixon can be beaten, Byrd says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Assistant Senate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd said Friday President Nixon has problems with confidence, credibility and indecisiveness and could be beaten in 1972.

He also questioned Nixon's political acumen in making what Byrd called "flagrant appeals" for support of the SST by announcing economic awards to certain states before the Senate vote.

In a news briefing, Byrd, from West Virginia, said Nixon has done well in foreign policies and conceivably could be hard to defeat if domestic inflation slackened; unemployment went down and industrial production went up.

"ON the other hand, he is most vulnerable" in other ways, Byrd said.

"I have much respect for Mr. Nixon but I think his greatest problems are confidence, credibility and indecisiveness," Byrd said.

"He has been indecisive in his handling of the problem of inflation," Byrd said. "There is too much wishboning and not enough jawboning."

Byrd said Nixon wasn't decisive on the matter of construction workers' wages and, generally, hasn't come to grips with what Byrd called Nixon's obligation to be strong both with labor and management.

IN EFFECT, Byrd said, "he is rolling with the stream and looking over his shoulder."

Byrd said Nixon may be astute personally but he said his administration displayed a low political acumen in approaching senators on the SST vote.

"I would never have made certain announcements with respect to particular states, affecting jobs and the economy, prior to the vote," Byrd said. "There was one decision on the part of the administration that was a very flagrant appeal to one certain senator."

Laos push an Allied defeat, Muskie says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Edmund S. Muskie said Friday the rapid, early withdrawal of South Vietnamese forces from Laos plus their reported 25 percent casualty rate "indicate nothing less than a serious military defeat."

Muskie, the acknowledged front-runner for the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination, told a gathering of the party's State chairmen that the South Vietnamese effort to cut the Ho Chi Minh Trail supply lines in Laos ended six weeks ahead of schedule and cast doubt on the credibility of the Nixon administration's Vietnamization program.

"It can mean nothing but prolongation of the war and our participation in it," the Maine senator said.

Muskie predicted that the Indochina war and the management of the economy probably would be the overriding issues in the 1972 elections.

But in a speech shortly before Muskie's, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, the only potential Democratic presidential nominee to vote for the super-sonic transport plane, suggested that the party would suffer at the polls if it continues attacking people "in the place where they work."

Before Wednesday's 51-46, Senate vote to halt federal funding for SST development, Jackson said that senators who cast ballots against the plane were voting to idle thousands of workers at the two firms building it.

But South Dakota Sen. George S. McGovern, the only declared presidential candidate, and all other senators mentioned as likely aspirants for the nomination parted company with Jackson by voting against the SST or not voting at all, as was the case with Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana.

Jackson, in a speech to the Association of State Democratic Chairmen meeting here, said that "the working people of this nation are not at war with ecology, but some people are mistakenly attacking them in the place where they work."

His statement was seen as a gibe at his possible competitors for the presidential nomination and inferred that they voted against the SST to gain political favor with the coalition of conservation groups that campaigned against the plane.

"In recent years, we've had a tendency to listen to those people with the loudest voices," he said. "Yet, it has been the quiet worker who has been the backbone of this party."

"We must appeal to a broad spectrum of the voting public in order to mark up a Democratic victory" next year, Jackson said. "The party has received 50 per cent of the votes cast in only one of the last six presidential elections. So this is no time to establish a platform of exclusion within Democratic ranks."

Jackson, also considered the most "hawkish" of the Democrats considered possible presidential candidates, said the nation's working people believe their country can meet its great domestic needs and still deal with tensions abroad.

"We must never permit our Democratic Party to become the party of national weakness," he said, referring specifically to the Middle East but not mentioning Indochina.

Goodell urges insurgency in GOP, Reagan asks unity

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — California Gov. Ronald Reagan called for Republican Party unity and former New York Sen. Charles Goodell urged "open insurgency" within the party Friday at meetings of rival GOP groups.

Reagan, defending President Nixon on all but the President's welfare reform proposal, spoke at the Minnesota GOP's annual $100-a-plate dinner. Party leaders expected about 5,000 persons and said they would raise nearly $600,000.

Goodell was expected to draw about 2,000 persons at a $3 box lunch event arranged mainly by college Republicans.

Both Reagan and Goodell held news conferences. Goodell called for a "mobilization of moderate Republicans" and said "this requires an open insurgency within the party."

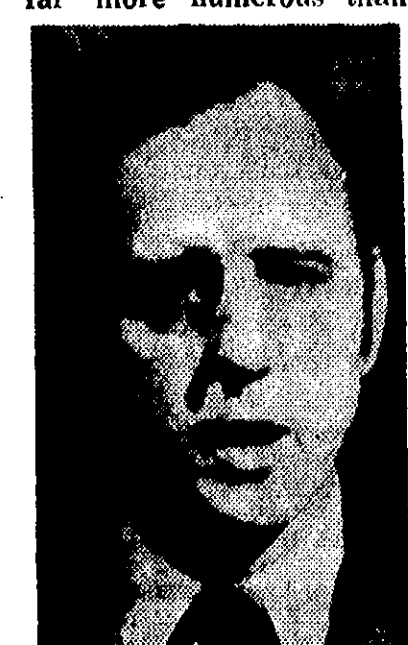

"Too often we have submerged our differences in the interest of superficial party unity and as a result our voices have not been heard," Goodell said.

Commenting on Goodell's remarks, Reagan said he was confident "that rank and file Republicans would not join any insurgent movement."

Asked if he thought there was room in the Republican Party for Goodell, Reagan said "I wonder whether there is room in Charles Goodell for the Republican Party."

"There is still a place for common courtesy in America, even in politics," Reagan said. "after all, the things that unite us are far more numerous than the things that divide us. We all seek the same goals. We can reach these goals if we work together to build a positive program for our states and our country."

CHARLES GOODELL
Asks Open Insurgency

Reagan predicted President Nixon would be re-elected in 1972 and had high praise for the President, including his handling of the war.

Goodell said "we are dealing with an administration and a party leadership which practices an arrogance of exclusivity politics."

"Such dictatorial attitudes have kept the Republican Party on the narrow, tortuous road to permanent minority status," he said.

Goodell was also critical of Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., the new GOP chairman. He said Dole "aspires to be the Spiro Agnew of 1971."

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Philodendron pertusum, the juvenile stage of monstera deliciosa, is a split leaf philodendron. This tropical plant with showy split leaves is listed to stand cold to 28 degrees. These plants are grown indoors in containers, or outdoors in milder areas, in filtered shade in containers or in the ground. They enjoy hours of forenoon sun, but need to be trained on supports because of their vine-like growth.

A retired dentist friend had some mature plants that grew up large California Oak trees. He'd annually harvest the fruit and give them to his patients.

The white calla-like blossoms, but the larger ones develop corn cob type fruit. As the corn like philodendron fruit seeds gradually ripen, they expose the inner central upright portion of the jello like edible fruit.

THE indescribable exotic flavor fruit was so sweet that one could only eat three mouthfuls of that intriguingly tasty fruit. It kept fresh in the refrigerator where the dairy products were stored, then daily three mouthfuls were eaten till no more left.

In checking with Frank Rich, a landscape architect and authority on philodendron-monstera, he couldn't predict that outdoor mature plants would annually fruit unless the location was exactly suitable to the plants. A plant might bear fruit one year, not again for two or three or 17 years, then again maybe not at all. So, don't depend upon every plant to bear.

A very important word of caution, don't attempt to eat or even taste any of the other varieties of philodendron fruit, but the P. pertusum-Monstera deliciosa!

EARLIER bare root planted roses that have sprouted new growth should be mulched with half inch layer of manure or a spread mulch material, then fed a rose food about three weeks or so later. When newly planted, such roses should not be fed the maximum amount of plant food. Apply two-thirds less for the next two feedings, then fertilize normally thereafter throughout the summer.

Earlier bare root planted roses, or bare root fruit-shade-flowering trees, or cane berries, or vegetables, or perennials, that have not yet sprouted though the branches are green, means the plants are not getting sufficient water. Such condition may be due to the soil being too loose around the roots, or else the gardener simply isn't watering the plants often enough. Soil should be firmed around the loosely set out plants.

WATCH those devilish aphids! They actually can damage and dehydrate the tender small flower buds or young leafage. Spray periodically to hold down these seemingly unstoppable ble pests, whether on roses or other plants.

Systemic liquid spray, or granular systemic control impregnated in the rose food, controls such pests plus half dozen other sap sucking insects, from a month to six weeks. The insecticide spray is taken up into the sap stream, then the insecticide control works 24 hours a day. Gardener using a conventional insecticide spray should add a horticultural liquid sticker material to that spray. The sticker causes the insecticide to adhere to the plants, hence works more effectively.

The conventional insecticide spray should not be sprayed on plants every couple of days, because it builds up a covering and smothers young foliage. They yellow and drop off before maturing. Plants should be hosed with a sharp spray of water to knock off the aphids, and should be done during early forenoon. Such water spraying every day or two knocks off the pests. A week or so later plants can be sprayed again. This system eliminates the new foliage from yellowing and dropping off.

PLANT gladiolus at the beginning of summer for showy color and cut flowers. Set the bulbs in groups of a dozen or more and plant them four to five inches deep if soil is sandy so they won't topple when watered — also for better rooting system.

Also, dip the bulbs in an insecticide solution for five minutes, then set them in the ground while still damp. Empty the insecticide solution over the bulbs before covering them with soil.

PLANTING MUMS

THE hygienic way to start new chrysanthemum plants is to take the cuttings off the new growth about three to four inches long and root them in clean washed sand, or one of several rooting mediums. The cuttings in shade in a box or pot should be covered by glass to keep out the night cold and possible warm day heat. Most important the glass cover retains humidity. Some gardeners put stakes in around the cuttings then use a plastic cover over them.

SICKLY looking white to pale yellow gardenia leaves usually means it is chlorotic which may be due to alkali soil condition. Assuming the older gardenia isn't too deeply planted, has no nematode infestation problem and the water doesn't immediately disappear into the soil when irrigated, gardener then can treat plant with one of several kinds of "irons" (horticultural chemicals), three times at six-week intervals. Soil must be thoroughly moist before applications.

Other lawn fertilizers rely on the weather to feed properly. Vigoro announces a fertilizer that's more reliable than the weather.

Until now long-lasting fertilizers have had one long-lasting drawback.

They're released by heat. When the soil is too cold, they just lie there. During a hot spell, you get a big release, and a lot of wasted fertilizer.

Not with IBDU, the new long-lasting nitrogen from Vigoro.

IBDU is released by moisture. As long as there's enough moisture in your soil to keep your grass or dichondra from wilting, there's enough to make IBDU work.

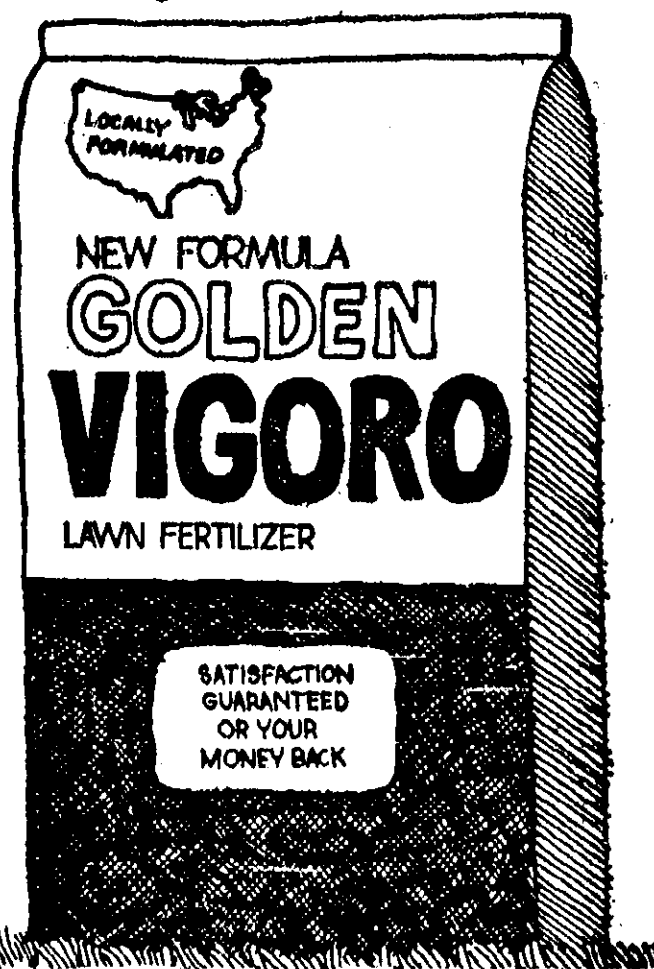

And if you're a compulsive waterer who sometimes forgets to turn off the sprinkler, IBDU won't add to your problems. It dissolves at a slow, even rate preset in the laboratory.

Research at two leading universities proves that IBDU greens grass more evenly in warm or cool weather than any other form of nitrogen.

New Formula Golden Vigoro also contains a quick acting ingredient to give you greener grass in just 10 days. Without burning.

We'll give you your money back if you're not completely satisfied with the results. That's how sure we are you'll find New Formula Golden Vigoro the best fertilizer you've ever used.

The only way we haven't surpassed our competition is in price. So put your money in Vigoro. Instead of betting on the weather.

Q. — I have a Hosta lily. It has bloomed before, but last year there wasn't a flower on it. What can I do for it. We use a lot of nitro-humus. Will that help? Also where could I find the real tiger lily as they have in the Far East, red with black spots? Mrs. Winnie Howard.

A. — Nitrohumus is used for plantings, soil preparation and lawns. But it would be better to use a concentrated fertilizer with less nitrogen but more phosphoric acid or a flower-fruit maker fertilizer. Do it soon, because if I remember rightly our's flowered about mid-June. Good luck to you. (Snails and slugs love Hosta. Protect the plant from them!)

Blacks set date for Nixon reply

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Black House members Friday urged President Nixon to answer their proposals for improving the status of U.S. minorities by May 17 — the 17th anniversary of the Supreme Court's landmark school desegregation decision.

Asked what would happen if he did not, Rep. Charles C. Diggs, D-Mich., spokesman for the Black Caucus, as the Negro lawmakers call themselves, said: "Failing the President and the Congress, our only recourse will be the people themselves."

Rep. William Clay, D-Mo., another of the 13 Negro lawmakers who personally presented their demands to Nixon Thursday night, added: "He listened but we don't know if he heard. If he did not hear, he and the country will suffer the consequences" in the coming elections.

APPEARING earlier on the CBS-TV Morning News, Clay said Nixon has a "below zero" rating among the 25 million American blacks.

The Black Caucus, 12 House members and the newly elected nonvoting delegate to the House from the District of Columbia —

U.S. defends use of snooping device

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government Friday defended its wiretaps of domestic groups as designed more to safeguard the national security than to gain evidence for criminal prosecutions.

"This is so because the serious interests of the national security cannot be adequately protected by criminal prosecution," the Justice Department said in a memorandum filed in U.S. District Court in Chicago.

The memorandum and other documents filed with the court admitted that the FBI had overheard an indicted member of the radical Weathermen group on a national security wiretap.

The lawyer for Judith Clark, who is accused of conspiring to cross state lines to incite a riot in Chicago during October 1969, had asked the government to real any illegal electronic surveillance of his client.

Atty. Gen. John Mitchell, in a deposition filed with the court, acknowledged Miss Clark had been overheard on a wiretap that he had approved at the request of FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

HE SAID the wiretap was legal and submitted to the court a sealed exhibit describing the wiretap installation.

The tap, Mitchell said, "was one deemed necessary and essential to protect against a clear and present danger to the security of the United States of America . . ."

Although it was not put on Miss Clark's telephone, he said, it was on "a telephone installation to which she initiated calls or from which calls were initiated to her."

The government last July disclosed that it had overheard another Weatherman accused in the same case on a similar wiretap. The first Weatherman was Linda Sue Evans, Miss Evans and Miss all Democrats — recommended 60 changes to Nixon to improve the social and economic status of Negroes and other minority groups in America.

At a news conference on the White House meeting, Diggs said the group asked "the President to report back to us and to America" by May 17, the 18th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision, written by former Chief Justice Earl Warren, that ruled separate but equal school systems for blacks and whites were unconstitutional.

Diggs said the caucus wanted "the President to recognize, as we recognize, that he has a crucial role to play" in gaining the progress blacks need. In giving Nixon their program, he said, "We have provided black America and all America with the standard by which he can be judged."

Clay emphasized the caucus was not interested in promoting the Democratic Party or any other interest than that of black Americans. He said that was as "the same kind of political philosophy that everyone else has — selfishness."

Clark, who was apprehended by FBI agents in New York Dec. 17, are the only ones of 12 accused in the case that have been apprehended by authorities.

In the memorandum, which seeks to justify electronic surveillance by the government without advance court approval, the Justice Department maintained that only the President and the attorney general have sufficient facts and discretion to decide whether wiretapping is justified.

FOR THE first time, the department raised the argument that wiretaps and other electronic surveillance are like a preventive medicine.

"The harm that could result to the interests of the national security from a single criminal act could very well be irreparable and, even if the harm were quantifiable, incarceration of the perpetrator of the particular criminal act hardly compensates the nation for the resulting damage," the memorandum asserted.

"Thus, when the President, acting through the attorney general, authorizes electronic surveillance in the interests of the national security, the primary purpose of such surveillance is necessary to gather intelligence information so that the executive may present such irreparable damage to the national security from occurring."

The memorandum said the government applies that logic to the need for electronic surveillance of domestic organizations as well as organizations controlled by foreign enemies that may seek to subvert or destroy the government.

MANSON DEFENSE PLEAS END

Attorney Vincent Bugliosi as "representing death . . . Death never had a more, vigorous blood-thirsty advocate."

"Professing he disliked asking the death penalty, he yelled and screamed his demand for death, holding before you photographs of the most gruesome corpses available."

Fitzgerald, who labeled the prosecutor a "sword-rattling harbinger of death" reminded the panel that Bugliosi had used the word "murder" 234 times in his final summation, "blood or bloody" 36 times, and "kill or killers" 49 times.

"I'm shocked and embarrassed that somebody in my profession would demonstrate such relish for the death of others," the former public defender said.

Claiming Bugliosi "profaned scripture" by citing the Bible as authority for imposing the death penalty, Fitzgerald said that "God's position is certainly not one of death."

"God himself did not see fit to kill Cain when Cain killed Abel. Jesus Christ stepped forward to save Mary Magdalene from being stoned to death. He did so by saying 'Let he who is without sin cast the first stone' . . . words as profound today as when they were uttered 1900 years ago."

THEN AS the jury sat almost immovable, he asked them to ask themselves if Jesus Christ were a fellow juror how would he vote.

"Don't equate yourselves with Pontius Pilate. Don't wash your hands of these defendants—apply the Christian doctrine of sympathy, compassion, forgiveness and mercy."

"Don't react out of condemnation, vengeance and retaliation."

"The prosecution said these defendants were animals . . . mutations . . . with no heart . . . human monsters. It would be easier for you to kill them if they weren't human."

The prosecutor also was verbally attacked by other defense attorneys for his "blood-thirsty" summation.

Daye Shinn, representing Susan Atkins, again pointed out to the jury that his client was "promised" life if she testified for the prosecution before the county grand jury. She did, he said, but the prosecution reneged on its part of the bargain.

"MR. BUGLIOSI now has a guilty conscience," the Korean-born attorney said, "and it will be on his conscience until he goes to his grave. There'll always be a voice in Mr. Bugliosi's ear crying out for justice."

"He took her to the grand jury and was kind . . . but when she was through he wasn't kind anymore. . . he called her 'bitch' and 'vampire' and 'killer' and 'monster'.

"All I can say is there are different types of monsters. There are men monsters and women monsters and district attorney monsters. Mr. Bugliosi tricked and conned Susan Atkins."

"Miss Atkins, drowning, saw Mr. Bugliosi in awe and thought 'here comes help now' but he hit her over the head. And now he talks about inhuman . . . he talks about monsters."

Maxwell Keith, whose initial summation had several spectators in tears, followed the same lead claiming the prosecutor "demands death, revenge and more blood."

"IS NOT THE State of California more reasonable, more merciful than these three girls and their insane master, Mr. Manson," Keith shouted. "Mr. Manson influenced these girls; otherwise they wouldn't have done what they did. Regardless of LSD an dtheir emotional problems, someone had to control their thoughts. But, I do not say that Mr. Manson should pay with his life. He's entitled to live just as much as these girls."

"From all the evidence in this case, I deduce Mr. Manson is insane — legally insane. You don't need a doctor for that. Evidence shows that his mind is disordered . . . his mind is sick. By reason of this mental illness he was under the delusion that killing members of the establishment was beautiful and not morally wrong."

"It was simple, easy, to control the minds of these girls . . . their minds were empty when he got them. These girls were human sacrifices."

"Without Charles Manson and LSD these offenses would never have happened. Yes, these girls guided those knives, but their arms were the extension of someone else. Their wills were his will. He was their father figure and their God. They would not, nor could not, say 'no' to their God."

KEITH CLAIMED his client, Leslie Van Houten, was not a born killer and that "murder does not run in her blood."

Earlier, Manson's attorney, Irving Kanarek, was "cut off" by Judge Older in the middle of a Bible reading in which he was comparing his client to a crucified Christ. The judge cited the time factor and the need to get the case to the jury.

Manson has been in and out of the courtroom — for being disruptive — almost as often as Kanarek has been in and out of jail — for being in contempt of court.

For seven months Manson and his three "followers" protested their innocence, but the jury — after 43 hours of deliberations — decided they were guilty.

For the past nine weeks the four Manson "family" members knew that they would spend the rest of their lives in prison or die in the gas chamber and that the decision would rest with the same jury that found them guilty.

Manson, who was described by Kanarek as "just a 140-pound boy who killed nine North Vietnamese in an air-to-ground duel 14 miles southeast of Khe Sanh Friday, U.S. spokesmen said. There were no U.S. casualties, they said.

The South Vietnamese army sent reinforcements north to Khe Sanh Friday to strengthen battered forces withdrawn from Laos. A South Vietnamese spokesman said they were capable of carrying out new attacks against the Communists.

Khe Sanh itself came under attack Friday afternoon when about 40 rounds of artillery fire fell on the base where American forces continued to withdraw south as the South Vietnamese reinforcements arrived.

Without saying that South Vietnam was planning new operations, the Saigon army spokesman did say that its forces were capable of undertaking them "close to positions now held." President Nguyen Van Thieu also increased the speculation by declaring that the campaign against the Ho Chi Minh Trail "still continues."

likes girls" — still claims he's innocent.

But the girls during the course of the penalty trial, changed their minds — but only about themselves.

THEY TOOK the witness stand to tell their story — they, indeed, were guilty, but Manson was innocent. They told almost the same story.

Patricia Krenwinkel and Susan Atkins told how they went, in dark clothes and carrying knives, into the home of pregnant actress Sharon Tate and killed everyone there.

The dead: Sharon Marie Tate Polanski, 27-year-old wife of movie director Roman Polanski. She was 8½ months pregnant.

Jay Sebring, 35, Hollywood hairstylist and ex-fiance of the movie star.

Voityck Frykowski, 37, Polish playboy friend of the Polanskis.

Abigail Anne Folger, 26, San Francisco coffee heiress who, with Frykowski, was a houseguest at the Tate home.

Steven Earl Parent, 18, a student who was visiting the caretaker at the Tate home.

THE NEXT night, Miss Krenwinkel — this time with Leslie Van Houten — went to the home of wealthy market owner Leno La Bianca and his wife, Rosemary. They killed both.

One by one the girls took the witness stand — part of 29 defense witnesses brought to court during the penalty phase — and told stunned jurors how it was done.

THE TESTIMONY of the clan — which heaped praise on Manson — almost overshadowed the two prosecution witnesses.

One was Manson's federal parole officer, who had little good to say about the 36-year-old ex-convict, and another was a Negro trumpeter who had been shot by Manson and had nothing good to say about the cult chieftain.

Psychiatrists and the parents of two of the girls — Miss Van Houten and Miss Krenwinkel — also paraded to the stand to tell a story of model children who turned to LSD.

The psychiatrists claimed that LSD was damaging to the brain and personality.

The parents claimed their children were good and don't deserve to die.

The jury will decide — beginning today — whether they do or not.

'Impartial' jurists to probe CRLA charges

From Our Washington Bureau

as chief justice of the Maine Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON — Three state Supreme Court justices from different regions of the nation were named Friday by Office of Economic Opportunity Director Frank Carlucci to investigate accusations made by California Gov. Ronald Reagan against California Rural Legal Assistance.

None of the three men have ever lived in California or practiced law there. Carlucci promised they would conduct a "fair and impartial" inquiry.

Named as chairman of the special commission was 71-year-old Robert Williamson of Augusta, Me., who retired last year

SERVING with him will be two active Supreme Court justices, Thomas Tongue, 58, of the Oregon Supreme Court, and Robert Lee, 59 of the Colorado Supreme Court.

The justices will investigate charges lodged by Reagan and state OEO Director Lewis Uhler against CRLA, a militant legal assistance organization that once successfully challenged Reagan's proposed Medi-Cal cutbacks.

Reagan accused CRLA of "gross and deliberate violations" of federal regulations when he vetoed a $1.8 million grant for the organization last December.

Carlucci sustained the veto but kept CRLA alive by giving the organization a $600,000 grant to carry it through July 31. What happens after that presumably will be based on the report of the three-judge commission, which will conduct public hearings in California in May.

CRLA denied the Reagan charges, which included alleged representation of defendants in criminal cases and participation in labor union organization.

Cruz Reynoso, director of CRLA, said that a report submitted by Uhler to OEO contained "110 totally unsubstantiated charges" and used guilt-by-association tactics to link CRLA to radical causes.

"In naming the commission, Carlucci pledged a fair investigation."

"I am fortunate to have the services of these outstanding judges whose objectivity, integrity and ability are of the highest order," Carlucci said. "I know they will proceed in a fair and impartial way to determine the facts . . ."

SURPLUS

Sacramento, said the court ruling was "absolutely nothing surprising," adding that Reagan knew he would be reversed. "His view of law and order, said Blease "is that he will choose the laws he will obey."

In another development, state welfare director Robert Carelson, in Washington with Reagan, issued a statement announcing a department re-organization that will cut 100 department jobs by attrition and "give us proper management and fiscal controls of the $2.3 billion program."

Carelson said the streamlining will break the department into three major branches: legal affairs, operations and administration.

"The rapidly expanding welfare program," he said, "both in dollars and in the number of people on the rolls has required a change in organizational emphasis."

Carelson, in charge of the program since December, said he would spell out the basic re-organization program next month before a meeting of the State Personnel Board.

Nudity on TV

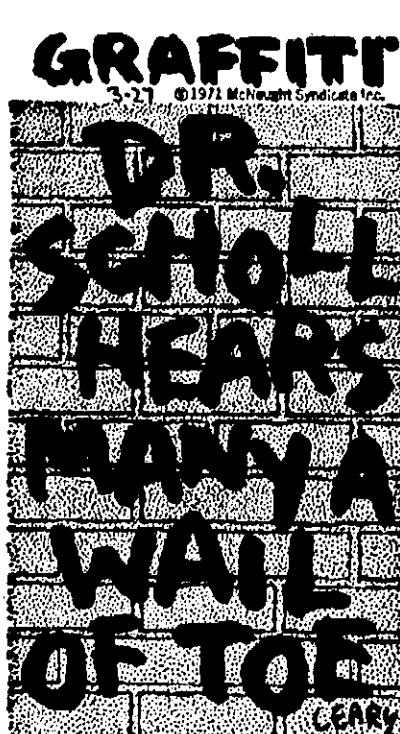

LONDON (UPI) — A television series depicting the life of Casanova will probably show full frontal nudity, the producer said. Mark Shivas, who is producing the series to be shown on the British Broadcasting Corp., added "we are not out to produce a shocker — rather a fairly accurate portrait."

Stamp sales

Q. I work with a group of handicapped youngsters who have been saving American stamps for more than a year. They have carefully removed all the stamps from the envelopes, and now have three large cartons of assorted United States stamps. We were told once a company in New York would buy these stamps in bulk and pay us so much per ounce. But now that we have the stamps, we can't find the buyer. Can ACTION LINE tell us who would buy our stamps? Mrs. M. C., Long Beach.

A. Yours is a tough problem to lick, as there is practically no market today for ordinary United States stamps. Karl Kruger, owner of The Stamp Shop, 409 Long Beach Blvd., said he can refer you to a few companies who may buy your stamps if they are sorted by denomination and in groups of 100. H. E. Harris Stamp Co. in Boston, Mass., also occasionally buys miscellaneous American stamps, and is sending you a catalog indicating the kinds of stamps they would be interested in. They too require that the stamps be sorted.

Help for helper

Q. The continued pleas of the Community Volunteer Office baffle me. I am a retired teacher and have been registered with them for many months, with only one request for my help. I assumed I had been offensive in some way and doubled up on my mouthwash and deodorant and waited for another call. Recently I've met two other women who have had the same experiences. If they don't need us, why do we still read their requests for help? Anon., Long Beach.

A. If you'll call Virginia Fetty at 426-7171 or stop by the Community Volunteer Office, 3515 Linden Ave., she will be glad to check your file and explain why you may not have been called recently. Mrs. Fetty told ACTION LINE that some volunteers request specific areas of work and the kind of work they want is not always available. Or a person will volunteer her services but not have transportation. She said no volunteer is ever ignored and the CVO files are reviewed every six months to make sure everyone is used in some way. She said there are also many people who just aren't home to answer the phone when help is needed, so another volunteer is called.

Big Pedro health clinic 'won't close this year'

By BEN ZINSER
Medical-Science Editor

The U. S. Public Health Service's outpatient clinic in San Pedro, third largest of its type in the nation, is in no danger of closing during the next year, it was learned Friday.

Dr. Charles J. Buhrow, medical director, said Dr. Frank Nelson, an aide to Dr. Karl Urbach, director of the U.S. Public Health Service Hospital in San Francisco, told him:

"The clinics are not under the gun this year."

Earlier, a government agency had recommended to President Nixon that eight U.S. Public Health Service hospitals and the PHS's 30 outpatient clinics in the nation be closed.

The Community Planning Council of Long Beach has just written California's U.S. senators and Rep. Craig Hosmer asking that an investigation be made "to determine whether or not such closures (would be) wise."

THE LETTERS, signed by Mrs. Sylvia Strum, president of the council, said "great hardship" would be imposed on many patients in the harbor area if the clinic were to close.

The clinic, which last year handled 80,000 patient visits, is located on the second and third floors of the San Pedro Post Office, 832 S. Beacon St.

Dr. Buhrow, the medical director, said the San Pedro clinic is the third largest of its kind, trailing only the facilities in New York City and Washington, D.C. He said the clinic, which has a staff of 53 including 10 physicians, sees about 300 patients each week.

He said the beneficiaries of the clinic include merchant mariners, about 50 per cent of the total patient load; Coast Guard, 10 per cent; immigrants, 10 per cent; federal employees 5 per cent; and military dependents, 20 per cent. The clinic also gives inoculations to travelers and is one of the special centers for administration of yellow fever immunizations.

The San Pedro facility is especially well known for its Hansen's disease (leprosy) clinic, which ministers to 100 patients who now have leprosy or who have had it. Also kept under observation are 500 family contacts of Hansen's patients, Dr. Buhrow said.

The clinic also has specialized clinics, including those for well babies, allergy, eye, ear-nose-throat and orthopedics.

Queen drawing them in already

The Queen Mary isn't open yet, but she is drawing international attention at her berth on Pier J, according to Ann Bishop, president of the Queen Mary Club of the Chamber of Commerce.

The club has been maintaining an information booth at the Pier J site, and has been asking visitors to the ship to sign a guest book.

Registrations last weekend, said Mrs. Bishop, indicated visitors had come to the ship from 35 states and 23 foreign countries.

"MANY PEOPLE would not wait in line to sign one of our three guest books, so we only have a small portion of the people that actually visited the booth where we were passing out brochures and answering questions," Mrs. Bishop said.

Among the places represented by the signatures, she said, were Scotland, Yugoslavia, Isle of Man, Japan, Switzerland, West Samoa, Brazil, Peru, Finland, Iran and Turkey.

HOBBY SHOW ROCKETEERS AND ENTRY

Rocketry unit has lofty goal

By DON BRACKENBURY
Staff Writer

Amateur rocket enthusiasts of today, given proper guidance and opportunity, can become the space scientists of tomorrow.

Providing that guidance and opportunity is the main purpose of the Reaction Research Society, which will be one of 150 exhibitors at the annual free-admission Hobby Show, Thursday through April 4 in Long Beach Auditorium.

Prime movers in the rocket exhibit are Richard and Maryann Butterfield, 3500 Wise Ave., both of whom are licensed by the state as pyrotechnic operators. Mrs. Butterfield is believed to be the only woman in California so licensed.

The society, jointly with the Pacific Rocket Society of Inglewood, owns a 40-acre site about 35 miles north of Mojave, from which they conduct test firings.

In addition to the license from the state fire marshal, the Butterfields explained, the society also must get an annual permit from the Federal Aviation Agency. Before each firing, it must notify FAA and the Kern County Fire Department.

"RESTRICTIONS SEEM to get tougher each year," Butterfield said.

It wasn't always so. In earlier days, when there were few regulations concerning rocket firings, the Butterfields and some other enthusiasts fired a rocket from a desert launch pad which was picked up on Air Force radar and resulted in a jet fighter being "scrambled" to check out the unidentified missile.

One thing that has brought on stricter regulations, Butterfield said, has been experiments attempted by youngsters with little knowledge and no supervision. Every time such a youngster gets hurt, politicians pass more restrictive laws.

Rockets are dangerous when handled carelessly by inexperienced people, he said, pointing out that in its 25 years of existence, the Reaction Research Society has never had a member injured because of rockets.

Butterfield, who designs air-conditioning equipment, first became interested in rocketry while attending Excelsior High School. His wife became a rocket fan while a physics student at Bellflower High. They met while students at California State College at Long Beach.

Although he concedes chances are slim that any society member will "invent something spectacular," Butterfield said they see the Reaction Research Society as a training ground for future space scientists.

Mrs. Butterfield pointed out, however, that the society fired the first hydrogen-peroxide rocket in the United States, and that one member has applied for a patent on a new solid propellant.

LIKE ANY AMATEUR group, finances are a problem for the society, the Butterfields said. One source of revenue they have tapped is the selling of rocket philatelic covers.

One such early effort involved the 1964 commemorative stamp honoring U.S. rocket pioneer Robert Goddard. The Butterfields and three other society members drove to Roswell, N.M., and fired a series of rockets from the same spot where Goddard did his early experimenting. Each rocket carried a batch of commemorative covers.

More recently, from its Mojave firing range, the society launched commemorative covers for the U.S. moon landing. Each envelope carried a picture of a portion of the moon, with Tranquility Base marked, and Neil Armstrong's statement, "That's one small step for a man, one giant leap for mankind."

Photographs of the rocket firings, as well as liquid and solid-propellant rockets and various items of ground-support equipment will be shown by the society at the Long Beach Hobby Show.

Armed Forces 'Y' periled by deficit

During the first two months of 1971, the Armed Services YMCA went $7,348 into the red and "cannot continue to operate in a deficit position," the City Council was told Friday.

Councilmen were asked by letter to allocate $50,000 in the 1971-72 budget to help finance the service men's Y.

Loren W. McCannon, chairman of the committee of management, said the Armed Services YMCA ended 1970 with a deficit of $17,951, which "wiped out" the deployment reserve of $16,000.

"AS YOU well know, the military is Long Beach's second largest economic element," McCannon wrote, "and thus the community has a degree of obligation to support those programs essential to military personnel."

McCannon said the recent cutback in Navy ships homeported in Long Beach has resulted in a drop from about 60,000 to about 30,000 in the number of military personnel in this area.

"Though servicemen are fewer in number, their needs are just as great," he wrote.

In recent years, McCannon said, the Armed Services Y has been 90 per cent self-supporting, receiving the other 10 per cent from the United Way and endowment funds.

"The 50 per cent cut in

military personnel in the area makes it impossible for the facility to be 90 per cent self-supporting," he said.

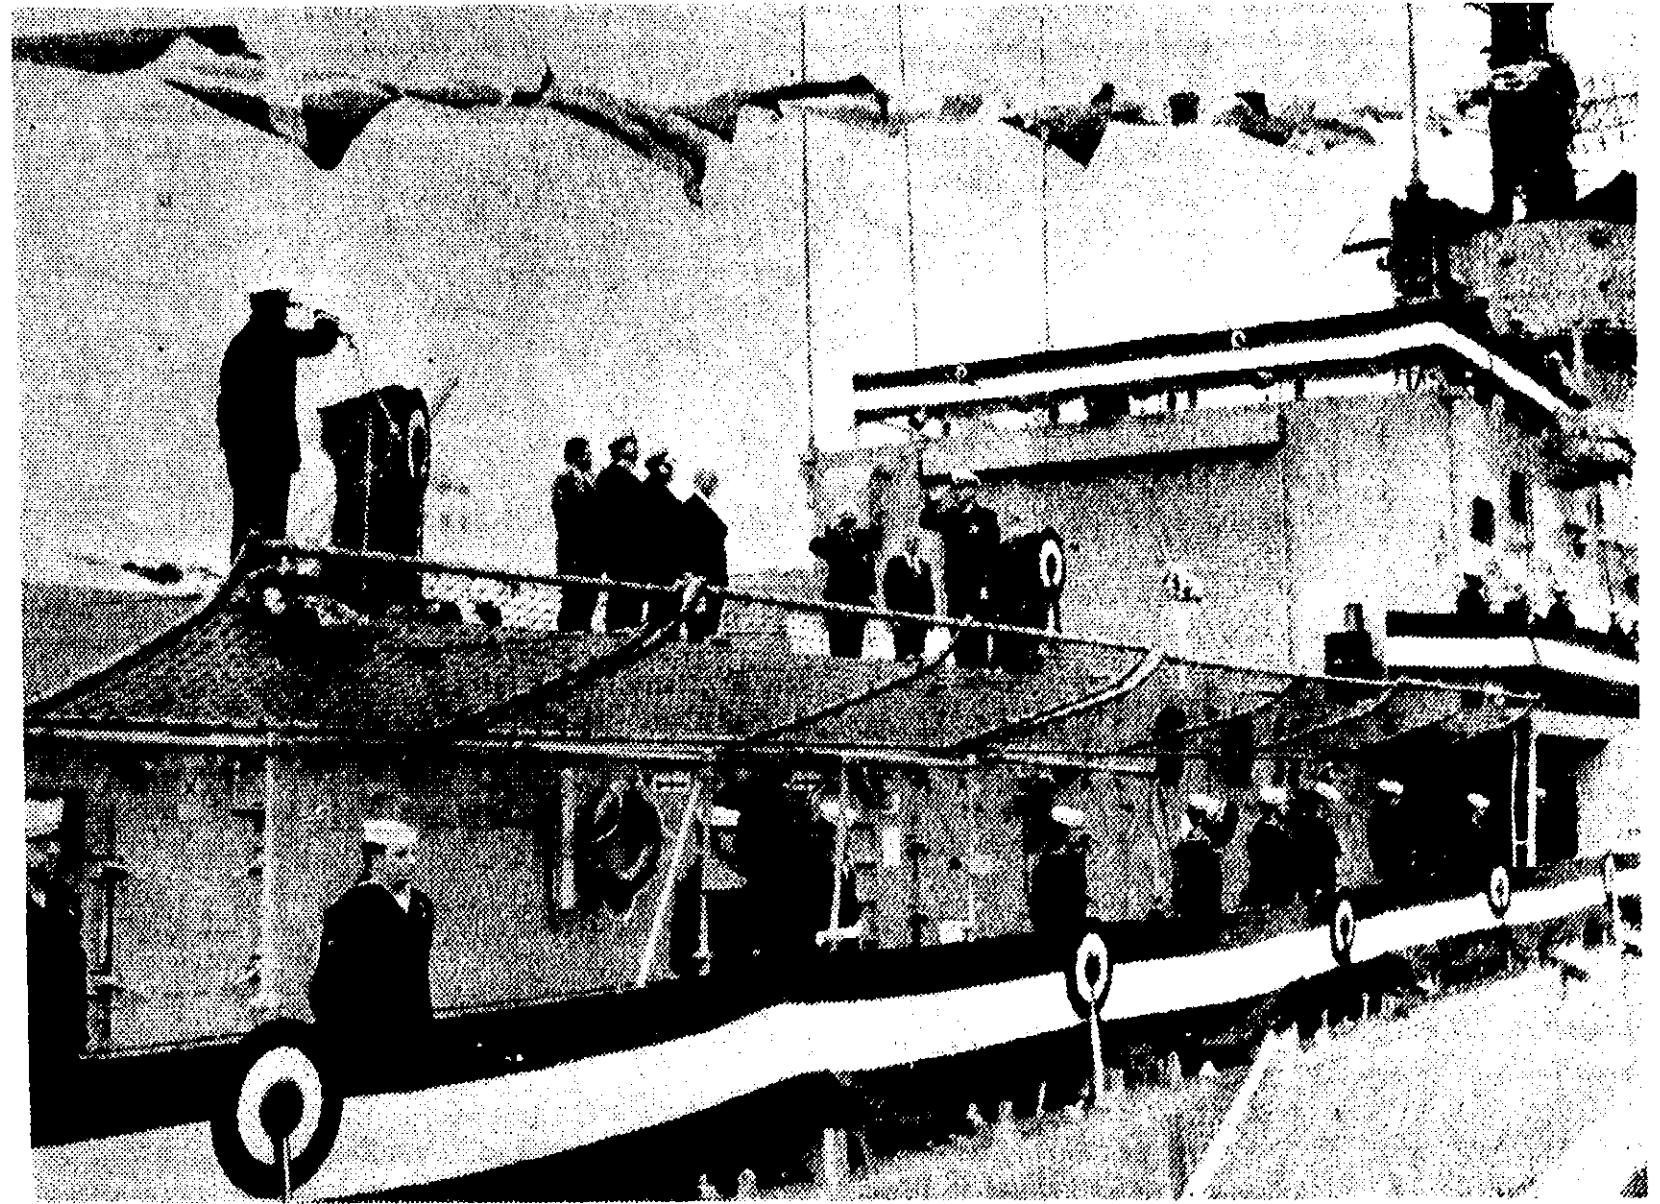

Efforts have been made by the YMCA to curtail expenses, McCannon said, pointing out the organization spent only $46,123 in the first two months of 1971, although the budget was for $65,180.

ON THE income side, however, only $31,380 was received, as compared to the $58,900 which had been anticipated, he said.

The U.S. Navy has been "actively assisting" in raising funds for the facility, McCannon said. A recent benefit golf tournament, staged by Long Beach Naval Station, raised $5,471; the USS Truxton contributed $200, and Chaplain John Pilro of the Naval Station, has informed the YMCA that the station's Easter sunrise service offering will be donated to the Y.

New U.S. Navy ship honors former Aussie leader Holt

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

The Navy commissioned a new ship Friday in honor of an old friend in ceremonies at Long Beach Naval Shipyard.

The USS Harold E. Holt, newest of the controversial destroyer escorts, became the second Navy unit to be named after the late Australian prime minister.

A communications station on Western Australia's barren Northwest Cape is also named for Holt.

SIR JAMES Plimsoll, Australian ambassador to the U.S., the main speaker, said the people of his country "can look with pride on the naming of this ship for the late prime minister."

Capt. H. A. Gerdes, San Diego, supervisor of shipbuilding for the 11th Naval District, took note of a controversy surrounding the destroyer-escort program, saying the criticism of a Pearl Harbor staff officer "was one man's opinion."

He was referring to last week's article by Capt.

Robert Smith who wrote in the Naval Institute Proceedings, that the destroyer-escort program was "the greatest mistake in ship procurement the U.S. Navy has ever known."

THE HOLT was the 19th of 46 destroyer-escorts built in a $1.3 billion program. Its constructor, Todd Shipyards, San Pedro, has one D-E remaining in a seven-ship contract.

In his critical article, Capt. Smith said the destroyer escorts "cannot defend themselves and are slow and unable to provide protection for others (they carry only one five-inch gun)."

But Capt. Gerdes described the Holt as a "fine ship, representing 38 months of hard work — work with pride in its construction and the thorough checkout of its systems."

He said the Navy has full confidence in the ship.

The Holt, which can achieve a speed of 35 m.p.h. has an advanced sonar system housed in a bulb-like protrusion from its bow. The vessel was designed primarily for anti-submarine warfare.

Holt's skipper, Cmdr. J. P. Leahy, a submariner, gives the vessel's sonar apparatus especially high marks.

Rear Adm. H. V. Bird, Los Angeles-Long Beach base commander, read the commissioning order at 10:25 a.m.

The crew double-timed aboard at Cmdr. Leahy's order to "man the ship" and Long Beach had gained another Navy vessel.

Guitar stolen

Thieves who broke into Lucy Owen's car stole an electric guitar and accessories worth $415, Long Beach police said Friday.

The auto was parked in the 1000 block of Euclid Ave.

Jewelry taken

Jewelry worth $250 was stolen from the apartment of Mary DeMizo, 930 E. Ocean Blvd., Long Beach police said Friday.

L.B. father accepts medal for deceased son's heroism

A Long Beach father today holds a Carnegie Medal for outstanding heroism, posthumously awarded his son for the heroic rescue of a youngster from the ocean off the Oregon coast.

The Bronze Medal and certificate from the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission was accepted by John A. McLean, of 2206 E. Second St., on behalf of his son, 26-year-old Thomas A. McLean.

Young McLean gave up his own life to help save 14-year-old Darold L. Morgan from drowning off Sandlake, Ore., June 12, 1969.

The certificate notes that the Morgan boy was fro-licking in the ocean when he was caught by a breaker and carried away from shore by diverse currents.

McLean and a young companion who saw the boy swept out to sea dove into the ocean and swam through the erratic current and six lines of breakers to overtake young Morgan 300 feet from shore.

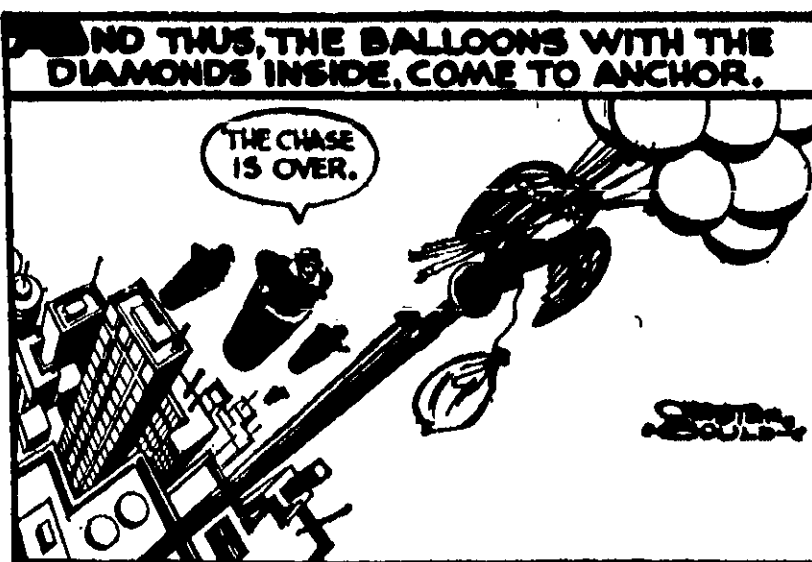

They were towing him in toward an approaching motorboat when a large wave crashed down on the three persons, driving them under. The Morgan boy surfaced and was picked up by the boat, but McLean and his companion drowned.

Young McLean, who graduated from Pico Rivera High School in 1960, was employed by the Union Pacific Railroad in Oregon at the time of his death. His father has been a Long Beach resident for nine years.

"A KNOW WHAT? IT WAS WORTH IT!"

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

Forecast for Sunday

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Now is the time to consolidate your position, confirm your career program. Your natural aptitudes will be the opening about you, and you can see your work producing results as you attend to it. Daily social contacts build toward an important future change, not to be rushed this year. Today's natives are of several distinct types: some very talkative, some laconic and terse, and they follow quite diverse occupations, including sculpture, soldier, theater, politics. What they have in common is an intense will to work and achieve visible goals.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Look back, learn from past examples, re-form old acquaintances. Make the rounds, find out what is going on in your neighborhood.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Take part in community week-end customs, bright and early, regardless of local weather. While you have contact with the people involved, settle appointments, and other arrangements related to coming travels and distant goals.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): This is one Sunday you shouldn't just loaf. There are too many things you need to do for your own better welfare. Stay busy.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): The drift is toward self-indulgence, not just in nature comforts, but in the indulgence of keeping better habits of thought.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Let well enough alone today. Invest some time in home chores, favorite hobbies, perhaps a nostalgia-tour thru old mementos.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A glance around your quarters will reveal enough needed adjustments to keep you busy all day and then some.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Broader perspective on what is going on in your field is necessary. Your own work takes on a quite different appearance when compared and seen in context.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Now you must turn loose and move with the tides and tides. Logic prevails over emotional caprice while intuitive guidance recedes to the background.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Nothing is gained just by staying put and under cover. Find a project that needs considerable effort but not much thought.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Guess work leaves too much to be desired; you may as well consult experts and be done with it this Sunday.

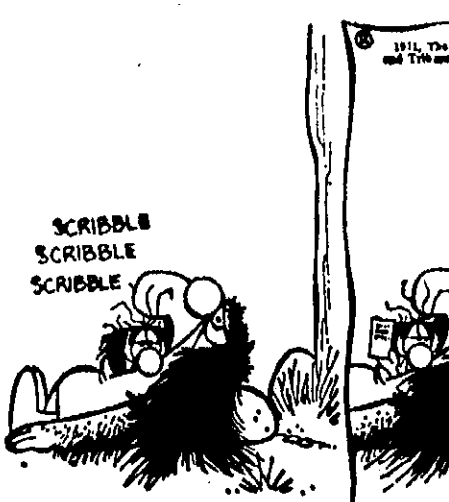

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Just when you are in the mood for a Sunday of ease, many complex details turn up which cannot be left for later attention.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Travel either literally or symbolically in your inner mind. While out of our accustomed habits and environment, something interesting occurs to you.

Light Opera slates 'La Mancha' tryouts

Open auditions for the Long Beach Civic Light Opera's June production of "Man of La Mancha" will be held from 1 to 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the CLO's rehearsal hall, 518 E. Fourth St.

While the cast for the musical play, based on Cervantes' "Don Quixote," consists mostly of men, there are five roles for women. Leading roles require a combination of strong singing, acting, and in some cases, dancing ability.

New 'social evangelism' Conservative Baptist theologian tells changes, hits 'liberals' on revolution

By LES RODNEY

One of conservative evangelical Protestantism's leading educators and theologians was in town last week, and we took the opportunity to chat with him about a variety of intriguing topics, including the changing image of evangelicals, attitudes toward the less conservative wing of Protestantism, the kind of youngster coming to a conservative seminary in 1971, Vietnam, the "Jesus People" phenomenon, and that never-ending hassle, the Christian's proper role in the great secular issues of the day.

He is Rev. Dr. Vernon C. Grounds, president of Conservative Baptist Theological Seminary in Denver, who was here to conduct a five-night Bible study at Bethany Baptist Church, Long Beach's largest independent conservative Baptist church.

The genial Dr. Grounds makes the time to do a lot of that kind of thing, preaching and teaching in hundreds of churches in the course of a year, lecturing at colleges, universities and seminaries. He is a Phi Beta Kappa grad of Rutgers in his native New Jersey, who went on to Faith Seminary, Drew University and Wheaton College, and is the author of several groundbreaking books, including "Evangelicalism and Social Responsibility," a topic that had long lain unexplored among America's millions of Bible-centered fundamentalists.

WHILE THE Denver seminary is a graduate school, and thus draws few teen-agers, the changing youth scene is inevitably reflected in its students, and not only in externals, the educator related.

"Many of them look somewhat different than in the past, and this turns some people off," he said in smiling, non-theologian manner. "They are very much open to new forms, on and off the campus. They show a desire for experimentation, to find new effective ways of communicating.

"There's an excitement about them very different from the negativism you feel in some other areas of Protestantism . . . now I don't mean this in a pejorative (critical) sense toward others, but I do find these young people a very challenging group. If you cut through the exterior, you discover that here is a new breed of Christians for a depth of commitment, a genuineness of faith.

"They tend to be heavy — their word — about social issues and problems of the times . . . a recognition that neighbor love means not only sharing your faith in Jesus Christ but doing all YOU can for your neighbor who needs help."

Is Dr. Grounds saying that social concerns, or "social action," to use the old fighting phrase, must go along with a commitment to Jesus?

HE NODDED. "If a person is deeply committed to Jesus Christ, then there ought to be, as a concomitant to that, an intense concern for people in all areas. So it seems to me that these young people have much more of the Biblical balance. That is, the devotion to God, and from that the social activism."

Outside of this "new breed" of young people, is it a fair observation, he was asked, that most conservative evangelicals tend to be conservative in social and political thinking as well, and thus continue to see the word "witness" as meaning preaching the word, and nothing more?

"I think that's generally true," Grounds responded. "The conservatism usually goes all down the line, in life style and ecclesiastical methodology as well. But I do detect an increased willingness among conservatives to recognize that content is different from method. The whole ferment in our culture is forcing some new thinking along these lines.

"BUT, WITHOUT question, we do have much inertia and misunderstanding, fear that the Gospel will suffer dilution. As indeed you see this dilution happening in some sections of liberal Protestantism, where Biblical content suffers."

In reply to the suggestion that National Council and "mainline" spokesmen would scoff at that charge, and that a visit to churches in the Long Beach area (Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopal, Congregationalist, Disciples, etc.) would hardly reveal a desertion of the Gospel, Grounds commented:

"Yes, there are significant stirrings within the old line denominations, indications of renewed emphasis on personal experience, relationship to Jesus."

He would even readily concede that there are signs of a certain convergence of views between the two wings of Protestantism on social action and the Gospel, arrived at from different starting points, in which each may have served to prod the other. "On our part," he readily acknowledged, "the Minneapolis Congress on Evangelism did indicate a shifting stance of evangelicals in respect to social evangelism."

IN THE evangelical congress referred to, there was a generally favorable reaction to a plea for more attention to racial justice by black evangelist Tom Skinner, and mixed reactions to a sharp indictment of the Vietnam war by conservative Baptist dove Mark Hatfield.

On attitudes toward Vietnam, Dr. Grounds said this: "There isn't too much reflection on it among conservative evangelicals. Among many, there is great disillusionment with the war, but little outspokenness. I think this is unfortunate, because there is always the danger of seeming to sanctify a state religion."

"I'd say," he continued candidly, "that evangelicals probably overemphasize Romans 13 (obey the powers that be) and underemphasize Peter in the Fifth Acts (obey God, not man.) These two provide the historic tension for Christians, but conservatives tend to relax it on the side of government."

THESE ARE differences of emphasis, it was suggested. How would Dr. Grounds describe the major quarrel of the conservative evangelicals with their fellow Christians of what they call the liberal denominations? Does it pretty much come down to whether the Bible is or is not viewed as the unerring Word of God?

The theologian smiled his acknowledgement for getting down to basics.

"Yes," he replied, "the view of Scripture. It's really how you see Christianity, whether God is at work in history to bring about increasingly some perfect form of society . . . or whether we are dealing with a supernatural redemption which will culminate in some supernatural denouement within history itself."

This fundamental view of Scripture, he added doesn't mean Christians should sit back and merely wait for God's plan to unfold. "It should never shut one off in fatalism and apathy."

Nor, he adds, should it close evangelicals off from charity and fellowship with those who supposedly interpret Scriptures differently. "I hope our young people don't have that attitude," he said. "I still maintain personal friendships with 'liberal' Protestants, as well as Catholics. If I have something to share, why shouldn't I?"

IF DR. GROUNDS gets to chatting with say, Eugene Carson Blake of the World Council of Churches, there will be a new discussion possibility after publication soon of Grounds' newest book: "Perspective on Revolution: An Evangelical Critique."

He explains his central thesis this way:

"As I said before, large sections of the old line denomination churches are OK. But by their very nature they must embrace some things that are theologically revolutionary, often a travesty on the name Christianity. A new title is required for it. If someone wants religious socialism, OK, that's their prerogative. We just question their opting for it under the name of Christianity.

DR. GROUNDS
'New breed of Christians'

"It's really a theology of revolution. In my book, I have tried to point out why in the third world, and in our own country, people are advocating revolution. These may be people who become agonizingly aware of evils, and see no hope of change except violence. I endeavor to explore the alleged theological bases for this — it is impossible to make out a case."

"Should force be sanctioned," he continued, "it gets sticky for Christians. That doesn't mean that Christians should sanctify the status quo. Christianity is concerned about justice, freedom, equality, and it OUGHT to be concerned about them, as derivatives of the faith. But when it comes to trying to construct a theological rationale for revolution, that's something else."

"Being as objective as one can, and as fair as one can, I have to say it looks like they have taken a secular ideology and tried to baptize it. Mind you, again, I can sympathize with them in some instances, but not with what they're doing to religion."

SPEAKING of revolution, the theologian was

MOMENT OF YOUR TIME?
The sergeant glared at the long line of raw recruits, barking an order that they were to lift their right leg into the air. One nervous fellow lifted his left leg and the sergeant, looking down the line, shouted angrily, "All right, who is the wise guy with both legs up in the air?"
It can't be done, of course, but it is every bit as possible as living a life without God's forgiveness and fellowship. Most of our troubles come from our forgetting that "it is God Who has made us and not we ourselves." We do the silly, shabby, sinful things we do because we do not heed the Bible's admonition to "remember our Creator." His love, the gift of Himself in the person of His Son, the Lord Jesus Christ, Savior, Example, Friend.
Sunday morning, 8:30 and 11:00, I'll be talking about Matthew 6:22-34; copies of the message will be given to all in attendance at either service.
Sunday evening, 7:00, Russell Killman, widely known speaker on the "Heaven and Home Hour" will be playing his trumpet and preaching. You will want to hear him.
Worship with us tomorrow, one time and perhaps you will come again.

HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS ENJOY HYMNS, PRAYER AND FELLOWSHIP EVERY WEDNESDAY MORNING

Would you believe scads of teens at 6 a.m.—in church?

In the chilly semi-darkness of 5:30 a.m. on Wednesday mornings, there is an unusual sight at 2280 Clark Ave.

Piling out of cars from Long Beach, Los Alamitos, Newport Beach, Lakewood, Garden Grove, Anaheim and even Whittier are boys and girls, high school seniors all, maybe 100 of them.

Chatting, laughing and acknowledging each other, whether they "know" each other or not, they move into the fellowship hall of First Nazarene Church, gather around a circle of tables, with a fire going in the huge fireplace, and start singing "Heavenly Father, we appreciate you . . ."

They share a hearty breakfast (some parents have arrived more quietly at an even more eerie hour, 4:30, to prepare the French toast, sausages, pancakes, juice and hot chocolate. The young people pay a nominal two bits.)

There may be special group singing, or a poem read, moments of quiet reflection, sharing of thoughts. Always a brief Bible study by Ann Kiemel, the church's youth director, and spontaneous prayer ("Good morning, kind God . . . a new day before us . . . wow!")

The breakfast club, as it is called, closes promptly at 6:30, with the youngsters, from all schools, of varied religious backgrounds, including student body officers and star athletes, wind up hand-in-hand singing "We are one in the spirit . . . one in the Lord . . . and they'll know we are Christians by our love . . ."

There are several other breakfast club prayer groups for teens, but this seems likely to be the area's most ambitious and successful. Anyone is welcome to join, says Miss Kiemel.

A couple of reactions: Tammy Adams, a Millikan student, began bringing a couple of friends, and then had to get another girl to take another car because Tammy's was full up. "This drama has become a very big part of my life," Tammy says.

Danny Posvar of Wilson High has rounded up no less than 20 kids in his neighborhood, who come by car and bicycles. He sometimes gets up at 4 to pick up a couple in Anaheim without transportation, and bring them in too. Why? "It's different," says Danny. "It's uniting. That's what we need."

LOCAL YOUTH FOR CHRIST WIN HONORS

Long Beach's Youth for Christ took first prize in Southern California competition in the annual subscription contest held by Campus Life magazine, and in nationwide competition with 125 other YFCs, captured fourth place.

The local branch sold more than 1,200 subscriptions during the six-week contest period. At the Youth for Christ national convention, L.B. executive director Don Goehner was presented with a grand prize check for $1,553.

Mission for retarded got boost in L.B.

The occasion of the 20th annual meeting of Good Shepherd Lutheran Home of the West will bring to Southland churches Sunday speakers who are affiliated with the mission to the retarded which operates homes in Terra Bella and Apple Valley and is soon to build a home near Portland, Oregon.

Speaking in the 8:30 and 11:00 a.m. services at First Lutheran Church, Atlantic Avenue at Ninth Street, will be Rev. Harold Johnson, newly elected president of the nationwide Council of Lutheran Ministries, a past president of the Good Shepherd Home board of directors, who now serves as its director of development and church relations.

Long Beach was the location for the first Sunday school for the retarded, sponsored jointly by Good Shepherd Home and First Lutheran Church. The class began operation in 1953 and resulted in a number of baptisms of the retarded or their families.

A former pastor of First

asked whether the failure of revolutionary governments in the world to live up to their proclaimed ideals has helped swing the tide to those (including Christians) who maintain that you must change individual people before you can improve the world, as opposed to the Marxist and humanist idea that you must change imperfect society first in order to improve the species.

Dr. Grounds pondered the question.

"The ultimate problem is internal," he said. "This is not to minimize the problems of the corporate structures in the world. But it does come down to the hearts of man."

"I would suppose there has been this disillusion with utopian programs. I see in campuses dramatic evidence of young people undergoing the experience of personal conversion. This gives them the foundation from which to launch their presentation on all questions. If this works in sufficient numbers, it may begin to effect the fabric of society."

And finally, how does the head of a Christian educational institution evaluate the surge of anti-institutional "Jesus People" among the young?

Lutheran, the late Rev. Martin J. Bruer, served on the home's first board of directors and was a member of the committee which chose the San Joaquin Valley site for the first home to be built by the association. Three hundred "children" of varying ages are now being served by the home in facilities approaching the $3 million mark.

"As far as I've been able to appraise it," was the response, "it appears to be a genuine movement of the Holy Spirit, and has a great deal of potential for good."

"At the same time, I feel that unless it gets some theological rootage, and starts to take some institutional form, it is likely to peter out."

AS FOR DRUG addiction cures related among these informal groups: "Yes, there have been dramatic cases, in which faith and Christianity has clearly helped. I would interpret it as the working of God's spirit in human life today, while recognizing the possibility — you always have to — of some fraud."

As with so many things these days, the Jesus People movement is ultimately seen by Dr. Grounds as a "mixed bag."

"There is some emotionalism in it," he says, "and some youngsters are just swept away. I would hope that without losing its thrust and enthusiasm and freedom, it would gain some depth, and sluff off some of its eccentricities."

It was an evaluation not unlike one recently offered here by a local Congregationalist (United Church of Christ) minister.

But despite changing images and the dropping of some of the old shallow caricatures by thoughtful spokesmen of both "sides" — maybe oddly even BECAUSE of the improving clarity of dialogue — the real differences between conservative evangelicals and their fellow Protestants of the mainline denominations are, for better or worse, clearly not to be minimized.

These are days of strange happenings in the physical and religious world. We are aware of the so-called "acts of God," i.e., the earthquakes, the floods, the famines, the pestilences, the hurricanes, the tornados, etc., but strangely enough, most people do not relate these things in any way to the judgments upon Egypt in the Old Testament.

Stranger things are happening in the religious world. Churches once as cold as the North Pole with services where the Gospel has been hidden in Latin language and cold liturgical services now are conducting healing services and last Saturday's Los Angeles Examiner featured a picture of a church service in Boston where an "amen" would be frowned upon, yet they were dancing to rock music in the church aisle. Strange how they go from polar bear religion to rock dances.

On the other hand, America's leading evangelist in divine healing has left the Pentecostal Church and gone into perhaps the most modernistic denomination in America. From cold to hot to hot to cold. How confusing it is for good people to know what to believe, where to go to church, who to support, etc.

And indeed that is EXACTLY what Satan proposes for this age. Deception is his program. "Be not deceived."

Study the Bible. Reject its enemies. Encourage its defenders. Instead of "dropping out" because of confusion, make your way to the front lines to be counted. You can count on God and His faithfulness. Can He count on You! Come to Calvary! Calvary is for you!

Confident living Loving them can work wonders

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

The vice president of the company paced the floor. Pointing in the direction of the president's office across the hall, he exclaimed, "I hate that guy's guts. In fact, I'll level with you. I hate the guy himself."

Jack was really riled. He had fully expected the promotion when old Mr. — retired. But astonishingly, he was passed over, a man being brought in from the outside.

"Isn't he capable?" I asked. Jack snorted. "Maybe he is, but that isn't the problem. Who does the so-and-so think he is. Okay, what would you do about him if you were in my place?"

"You're asking me what I would do? All right, I'll tell you. I'd love him."

"You'd what?" he practically yelled. "Oh, come on, don't give me that stuff."

"YES," I continued, "tough as it might be, I would swallow my disappointment, forget my wounded ego, walk over into that man's office, and tell him I wanted to help him all I could. You see, that new executive is lonely. He knows how the organization feels about him and he needs help. Believe me, he needs you. Practice empathy. Put yourself in his shoes and also try the Golden Rule on him: 'Do unto others as you would have them do unto you.' I think it will pay off all the way around. Love 'em is the answer."

Jack glared at me, then finally gave a relaxed grin. "Guess that's about what I got you down here to tell me! Love 'em," he growled. "Okay, I'll give it a try."

The new president was so pleased he began depending on Jack. They established a good working-team relationship. Business boomed.

Two years later that president moved on to another organization and whom did he recommend to succeed him? You guessed it. Jack has a framed legend on his office wall. It reads: "Love 'Em."

Restrictions help

Restrictions on Western missionaries in India are serving to force Indian churches to do "what we should have done 20 years ago"—that is, develop their own leaders, says Mrs. Renuka Somasekhar, an Indian church leader.

A passage in the Bible should be read often: "Meanwhile these three remain: faith, hope, and love; and the greatest of these is love." (I Corinthians 13:13, Good News Version.)

Say it discriminates vs. 'just war' doctrine Court nix on selective war objection hit by churchmen

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer
Three major church organizations have appealed to Congress to remedy what they call a flagrant piece of religious discrimination in the draft law.

As now written, the law permits a man to be classified a conscientious objector only if he is "opposed to participation in war in any form."

In an 8 to 1 ruling this month, the Supreme Court held that "persons who object solely to participation in a particular war" cannot claim CO status unless or until Congress revises the law.

The U.S. Catholic Conference, the Lutheran Council in the U.S.A., and the National Council of Churches are urging the House Armed Services Committee, which has charge of new draft legislation, to change the wording of the conscientious objection clause, so that it will cover those who are selective rather than all-encompassing in their moral rejection of war.

The present statute, they contend, favors absolute pacifists, such as Quakers and Mennonites, while discriminating against those of the Catholic, Lutheran and Reformed Protestant traditions who adhere to the "just war" doctrine.

This doctrine was developed by St. Augustine in the 4th Century A.D., and has been normative for most of the Christian church ever since. It holds that a Christian has a moral duty to fight for his country when it is engaged in a just war, and an equally weighty moral duty not to participate in an unjust war.

The test of a just war is that it be undertaken for righteous motives — to resist aggression, relieve oppression or remedy some grievous wrong. There must be a good reason to believe the war will achieve good ends that outweigh the manifest evils of armed conflict.

Many young Christians in America today believe that the conditions are not met by the military operations which this country is currently conducting in Indochina. They therefore regard this as an unjust war, in which they are morally bound not to participate.

Their scruples, even when unquestionably sincere, cannot be recognized by draft boards under the existing language of the conscientious objector clause. These young men are confronted by their government with only two options: fight in a war they cannot in good conscience support; or go to jail for draft evasion. Thousands have chosen the latter course.

The church organizations seeking amendment of the law say this is harsh and discriminatory treatment, unworthy of a great nation founded on the ideal of human liberty.

Against COCU
'Loyal opposition' conference led by
L.B. Presbyterian

Philip Lockwood, an elder and lay leader at Lakewood First United Presbyterian Church of Long Beach, will be the discussion leader of "COCU Plan for Church Union — Will it preserve Presbyterianism?" next Saturday, April 3, at a conference on Church Issues sponsored by the Presbyterian Lay Committee's Los Angeles chapter.

The Lay Committee is characterized as "the loyal opposition" within the national denomination, and is strongly opposed to the plan if union which proposes to unite 10 major Protestant groups into a new 25 million-member church.

The conference will be held from 9 a.m. to noon in Immanuel Presbyterian Church, 3300 Wilshire Blvd., Los Angeles. Other topics to be explored are whether United Presbyterian church and seminary education are Christ-centered, and ownership of church property. The conference is open to all.

What makes a good home?

Harmony. Love. Joy. Peace. These really make a home. And they can be found in any home.

How? Not through getting material things, or merely wishing for people to change for the better.

But through inspired, scientific prayer. This helps bring out the good in every child of God. . . that is, every member of the family.

You can hear others tell how Christian Science has helped them prove the power of prayer. Come to our Wednesday evening meeting which is open to everyone. (No collection is taken.)

Helen Hayes reveals Oscar vote

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Helen Hayes broke with tradition by revealing votes for the Academy Awards coming up April 15.

Miss Hayes, a nominee for best supporting actress in "Airport," is a close friend of Maureen Stapleton, a nominee for the same picture.

"We went to a dinner for the astronauts in New York together a couple of weeks ago," Miss Hayes said. "It turned out I voted for Maureen and she voted for me. So we cancelled out each other."

MISS Hayes is not called the first lady of the theater because she has been acting for more than 60 years, nor because she is a superlative actress with a theater named for her in Manhattan.

She is first and last a great lady and just as thoroughly not a legend. Helen is bright-eyed, witty and outspoken.

The poor estate of the theater, sex-ridden movies and puerile TV are of great concern to the magnificent little woman who, at 70, believes she knows what ails all of entertainment today.

"There is a feud between the critics and creative people on one side and the American people on the other," Miss Hayes said brightly.

"I'm sick of the public being punished by what they see on the stage and in movies. I'm not a prude. Never have been. But it disturbs me to pay to be entertained only to find material that gives me nightmares or that attacks my nerves."

Miss Hayes, who hopes she and Miss Stapleton tie for the Oscar, said producers and directors and writers had forgotten an important part of the preamble of the Constitution.

She recited: "With a decent respect for the opinions of mankind."

HELEN MAUREEN

In her blast — which included Tennessee Williams and Edward Albee — at playwrights and screen writers, Miss Hayes said, "they've finally gone beyond sophistication back to the primitive, like boys writing on a fence."

SHE was equally annoyed by critics, especially those who looked down at "Airport" which the public loved and may become the third largest boxoffice hit in history.

"Critics think they flatter me when they say I was good in a bad picture," she said. "Nonsense. I much prefer to be good in a good picture. And 'Airport' was an excellent movie."

"Airport's nomination is a blow to all the amateur film makers and the professionals don't have to be afraid of being a minority any more."

Miss Hayes was dismayed when she finally went to see the picture. When her name appeared in the opening credits a man behind her said, "Helen Hayes! She must be older than God."

"Afterwards, I felt better," Miss Hayes concluded. "A group of young boys were coming out of the theater and one of them — he couldn't have been more than 7 or 8 years old — was pushed forward by his companions."

"He came up to me, planted both feet firmly, and in a loud, clear voice said, 'you were very good.'"

And so she is.

The Hungarian Quartet has seen better days

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

Every musical season has to have low points as well as high ones. With this thought in mind, plus a lot of imagination, the creative listener can get through some very trying concerts.

Not all these resources were needed, Thursday night, when we attended the Laguna Beach Chamber Society's third event of the season. But some of them were. For, if only by Laguna's exalted standards, the concert by the Hungarian Quartet was an imperfect occasion.

performance of quartets by Beethoven, Bartok, and Schubert occasionally recalled those days; more often than not, however, the playing ran a small gamut from adequate to shabby.

Zoltan Szekely, of course, is an historic figure whose association with Bartok is well-documented for those of us who came later. The Hungarian master dedicated both the Violin Concerto and the Second Rhapsody to him, and Szekely is responsible for making the transcription which more than any other single piece (until enlightened piano teachers discovered Bartok's pedagogical genius) introduced Bartok for American listeners. I refer, naturally, to Szekely's arrangement for violin and piano of the Roumanian Folk Dances.

he once was. In fact, he is, in this quartet, the principal offender in terms of faulty intonation, shaky timing, and blurred passages.

Had the program stopped after Beethoven's F Major Quartet, Opus 18, No. 1, and the Third Bartok, these flaws could have been largely overlooked, for the general musical overview of these pieces came close enough to be compelling to offset mechanical blemishes.

Schubert's final Quartet, the one in G, completed the proceedings, unfortunately, and very erratically so. Tangible haphazardness characterized most of the playing here, all the tremolando passages of the Andante were chancey and halting, the group's ensemble was measurably unaligned in crucial spots, and the entire performance sagged. There was no actual disaster, only a lot of worry in the air. But it was enough to send us home nervous.

Don't misunderstand — the ensemble formed by violinists Zoltan Szekely and Michael Kuttner, violist Denes Koromzay, and cellist Gabriel Magyar, is a real quartet (with a history that goes back before many of us were born!) which makes real music in an often smooth fashion.

But it has obviously had better days. Thursday's

BUT historic relevance is no substitute for first-rate fiddle-playing, and Szekely these days is, sorry to say, less sovereign a violinist than we are told

Lakewood Hostess Dance to present queen finalists

By HAL LOWE
Staff Writer

The Hostess Dance of the Lakewood Pan American Festival will be held tonight at the Lakewood Country Club starting at 8:30 p.m.

The 20 finalists in the queen contest will be introduced at the event as their last public appearance before one of them is crowned next Thursday.

Those attending the dance select Miss Personality and the girls themselves will choose Miss Friendship. The photographers covering the Pan Am will select Miss Photogenic.

The girls selected for the awards will receive trophies at the dance.

Many of the Latin American consuls in the area, including the consul general of this year's honored country, Colombia, are expected to attend.

Consul General Jorge MacBride Sourdís of Colombia announced last week that the girl chosen to reign over the 25th annual Pan Am Festival will receive a free trip to Colombia later this year.

She will be the guest of the city of Bogota and Barranquilla. This is the first time that a Pan Am queen has been invited to an honored country since 1967 when Mary Jo Wagner visited Argentina as a guest to the mayor of Buenos Aires.

Al Sonada's band will play for the Hostess Dance, which is open to the public.

High school means business with its vocational training

By ROBIN HINCH
Staff Writer

It's all business in the Gahr High School, Cerritos, vocational education classroom.

The 30 students in the school's Senior Intensified Program, initiated by Mrs. Sandra Neher, vocational education teacher, not only learn about, but experience all aspects of running a business.

VOCATIONAL education teachers from throughout California gathered at Gahr Friday for a first-hand view of the classroom and workshop.

The program is designed specifically for students who have had few or no prior business classes and who decide in their last year of high school that they would like to prepare for the business world. The one-year, two-period-per-day course prepares them for a variety of entry-level jobs in business.

The course is divided into three parts.

During phase one, students receive an overall picture of business and learn basic typing. During the eight-week phase two, they are organized into learning teams and concentrate on duplicating, calculating and bookkeeping, transcribing and filing.

PHASE THREE gets them into the real swing of a business operation, as they take turns working in various departments of their model company, Gahr Gladiator Sales, Paints and Varnishes. The classroom workshop is divided into different business departments such as sales, purchasing, bookkeeping, publications and executive.

Students learn each step that must be taken in processing an order, from the time the order is placed until the merchandise is delivered, invoiced and paid for. They tape stencils and run off on the duplicating machines all the necessary order forms and invoice blanks.

Gahr Gladiator Sales even has its own student-manned personnel department which receives and reviews employment applications, interviews applicants and hires personnel.

"THE PROGRAM gives the students experience, and the experience gives them confidence," said Mrs. Neher, understandably proud of the successful program she conceived and organized four years ago.

Local employers are quick to herald the program, as well. Companies that hired Senior Intensified Program graduates a year ago are asking for more young graduates to add to their personnel.

And they'll have well-trained young recruits, for these young people really mean business.

There's still a good seat for you at

There are still plenty of good seats left for the Questor Grand Prix coming up fast, March 28, Ontario Motor Speedway. And what a battle it will be. From Europe—the Formula 1 cars. Quick. Nimble. Agile. Glued to the road. It's their kind of race. With their kind of drivers. Jackie Stewart. Jackie Ickx. Graham Hill. Emerson Fittipaldi. The more the road twists and turns, the better they like it.

America defends in the Formula A cars. Unlimited power. Speed to burn. On the straightaways, no one can catch them. And no one can drive them like A.J. Foyt. The Unsers. Mark Donohue. Peter Revson. When they stand on the gas, they're only a blur.

But the Questor Grand Prix is half twisting road, half straightaway. Half skill, half speed. Half European, half American.

All excitement. So get your tickets now for The International Conflict.

Another son of L.B. makes good

TV-Radio Editor

The "local name" ought not, I suppose, be the overriding consideration in noting people in the news.

Still thundring through voluminous news releases from various agencies, I confess I'm always brought up short when I see "Long Beach."

So you get a number of items here about people from the area who have got themselves noticed either through their efforts or their publicists.

Of late, there have been a few of these — all, should be noted having some relationship as students with California State College, Long Beach, which gets some reflected credit for Carpenters, who recently won Grammy awards; Stu Rosen, who won a "little Emmy" from the Hollywood TV Academy for his "Dusty's Treehouse" show on Ch. 4, and Steve Spielberg, who moved onto the national TV scene as a director.

Spielberg, 23, is under contract to Universal Studios as a result of a film, "Amblin'" which he wrote, directed and edited while studying at C.S.C.L.B. The film won awards at the Venice and Atlanta Film Festivals and won recognition from the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences as one of the Ten Best of 1969.

His first project for Universal TV was directing Joan Crawford and Barry Sullivan in the "Night Gallery" pilot. He since has worked on "Marcus Welby, M.D.," a "Four-In-One" with Godfrey Cambridge

Hoopla! UCLA 8-point favorite today

By LOEL SCHRADER
Staff Writer

HOUSTON — One of these days John Wooden hopes to make it big.

Maybe then he'll be reinvented to speak at the winter sports banquet in Elkhart, Ind.

Recently, the newspaper in Elkhart ran an item in its yesteryears column about an event from 25 years ago.

"Elkhart school officials," it read, "announced that South Bend Central's basketball coach, Johnny Wooden, would speak at the winter sports banquet, although they had hoped to line up some prominent college coach."

Wooden's credentials as a "prominent college coach" would become more imposing if his UCLA team were to defeat Villanova today in the championship game of the National Collegiate Athletic Assn. tournament in the Astrodome.

The Bruins have become almost as automatic as death and taxes. They will be trying for their fifth consecutive national title and their seventh in eight years.

Odds makers are favoring the Bruins by eight points.

The third-place game between Kansas and Western Kentucky and the championship match between UCLA and Villanova will be carried on television in the Southland by Ch. 4. The first game is for 11:05 a.m. (PST) and the title game at 1.

Wooden seemed unconcerned Friday that the law of averages might catch up with the Bruins, who have won 27 consecutive NCAA games.

"I'm amazed we ever won two in a row," he said, "and I'm pleased that we are in a position to win five in succession. But if Jack Kraft's fine Villanova team beats us, don't say it was because we were due for a loss."

"What happened last night or last year has nothing to do with it. If Villanova wins, it will be because it is a good basketball team."

Kraft agreed that the Wildcats are a good team.

"I think our ball club has been underestimated because we lost six games," he said. "But the six we lost were to teams that were all later in post-season competition — four in the NCAA and two in the National Invitation Tournament."

But Kraft sighed with obvious concern when he talked about the rebounding strength of the Bruins.

"I noticed Thursday night that their weakside forward, Curtis Rowe, begins jockeying for position even before a shot is attempted," he said. "He does a great job of keeping the ball alive on the boards."

"Then Sidney Wicks joins the parade, Steve Patterson comes in for the party, they tip it in, they go home happy and you don't."

Wooden parried that artful jab and responded in kind.

"I think Villanova's Howard Porter is one of the best fadeaway shooters I've seen in years," he countered. "I saw him in New York and he reminds me a lot of a great player Elvin Hayes they had here in Houston when we came to the Astrodome in 1968."

Laker 'ironmen' corral Bulls

By DOUG IVES
Staff Writer

So who needs Jerry West?

The surprising Lakers put it all together Friday night and knocked off Chicago, 105-95, at the Forum to take a 2-0 lead over the Bulls in the opening round of the NBA Western Division playoffs.

Unlike the first game when a chorus of boos helped the Lakers rally to win, there were only cheers from the 13,469 fans this time because the Lakers scrapped every inch of the way in what was primarily a defensive struggle.

Coach Joe Mullaney stayed with his "ironman" starting five again, and they produced all but two points and played 221 out of a possible 240 minutes.

Wilt Chamberlain, with 10 blocked shots, 20 rebounds and 26 points, was the difference, but the Lakers received noble efforts from all of their starters.

Gail Goodrich, filling in brilliantly for West, poured in 29 points, including 14 in the final period, while rookie Jim McMillian netted 24 and Happy Hairston 17. Keith Erickson was outstanding but did not shoot much.

Only Bob Love, who is virtually unstoppable, gave the Lakers problems, netting 24 points, although reserve center Jim Fox (17) and guard Jerry Sloan (17) had hot streaks that enabled the Bulls to lead after three periods, 76-72.

The Lakers forged into their first lead after that when Goodrich canned a pair of jump shots with 9:22 remaining, 81-80, and it was a string of eight consecutive points by the littest Laker in the waning minutes that secured the win.

With the lead a narrow 91-88, Goodrich hit four free throws and two baskets from 3:38 to 1:54, boosting his team to a comfortable 99-92 advantage.

The Lakers are the worst free throwing team in the NBA, but they won the game at the foul line Friday, making 35 of 42 (.833). Hairston made 11 without a miss, McMillian was 10 for 11 and Goodrich 9 for 10.

Chicago enjoyed an edge in field goals, 40 to 35, rebounds, 51-42, and committed fewer turnovers, 15 to 16, but the Bulls couldn't hit a high percentage of their shots against the sticky Laker defense.

The biggest disappointment for Chicago has been Chet Walker. The Bulls figured to have a decided edge with Walker matched against McMillian, but it has turned out exactly the opposite.

Boasting a season average of 22, Walker has made only 27 points in two games and shot a miserable 11 for 32 (.344). McMillian has netted 50 points and hit 20 of 34 field goal tries for a sparkling .588.

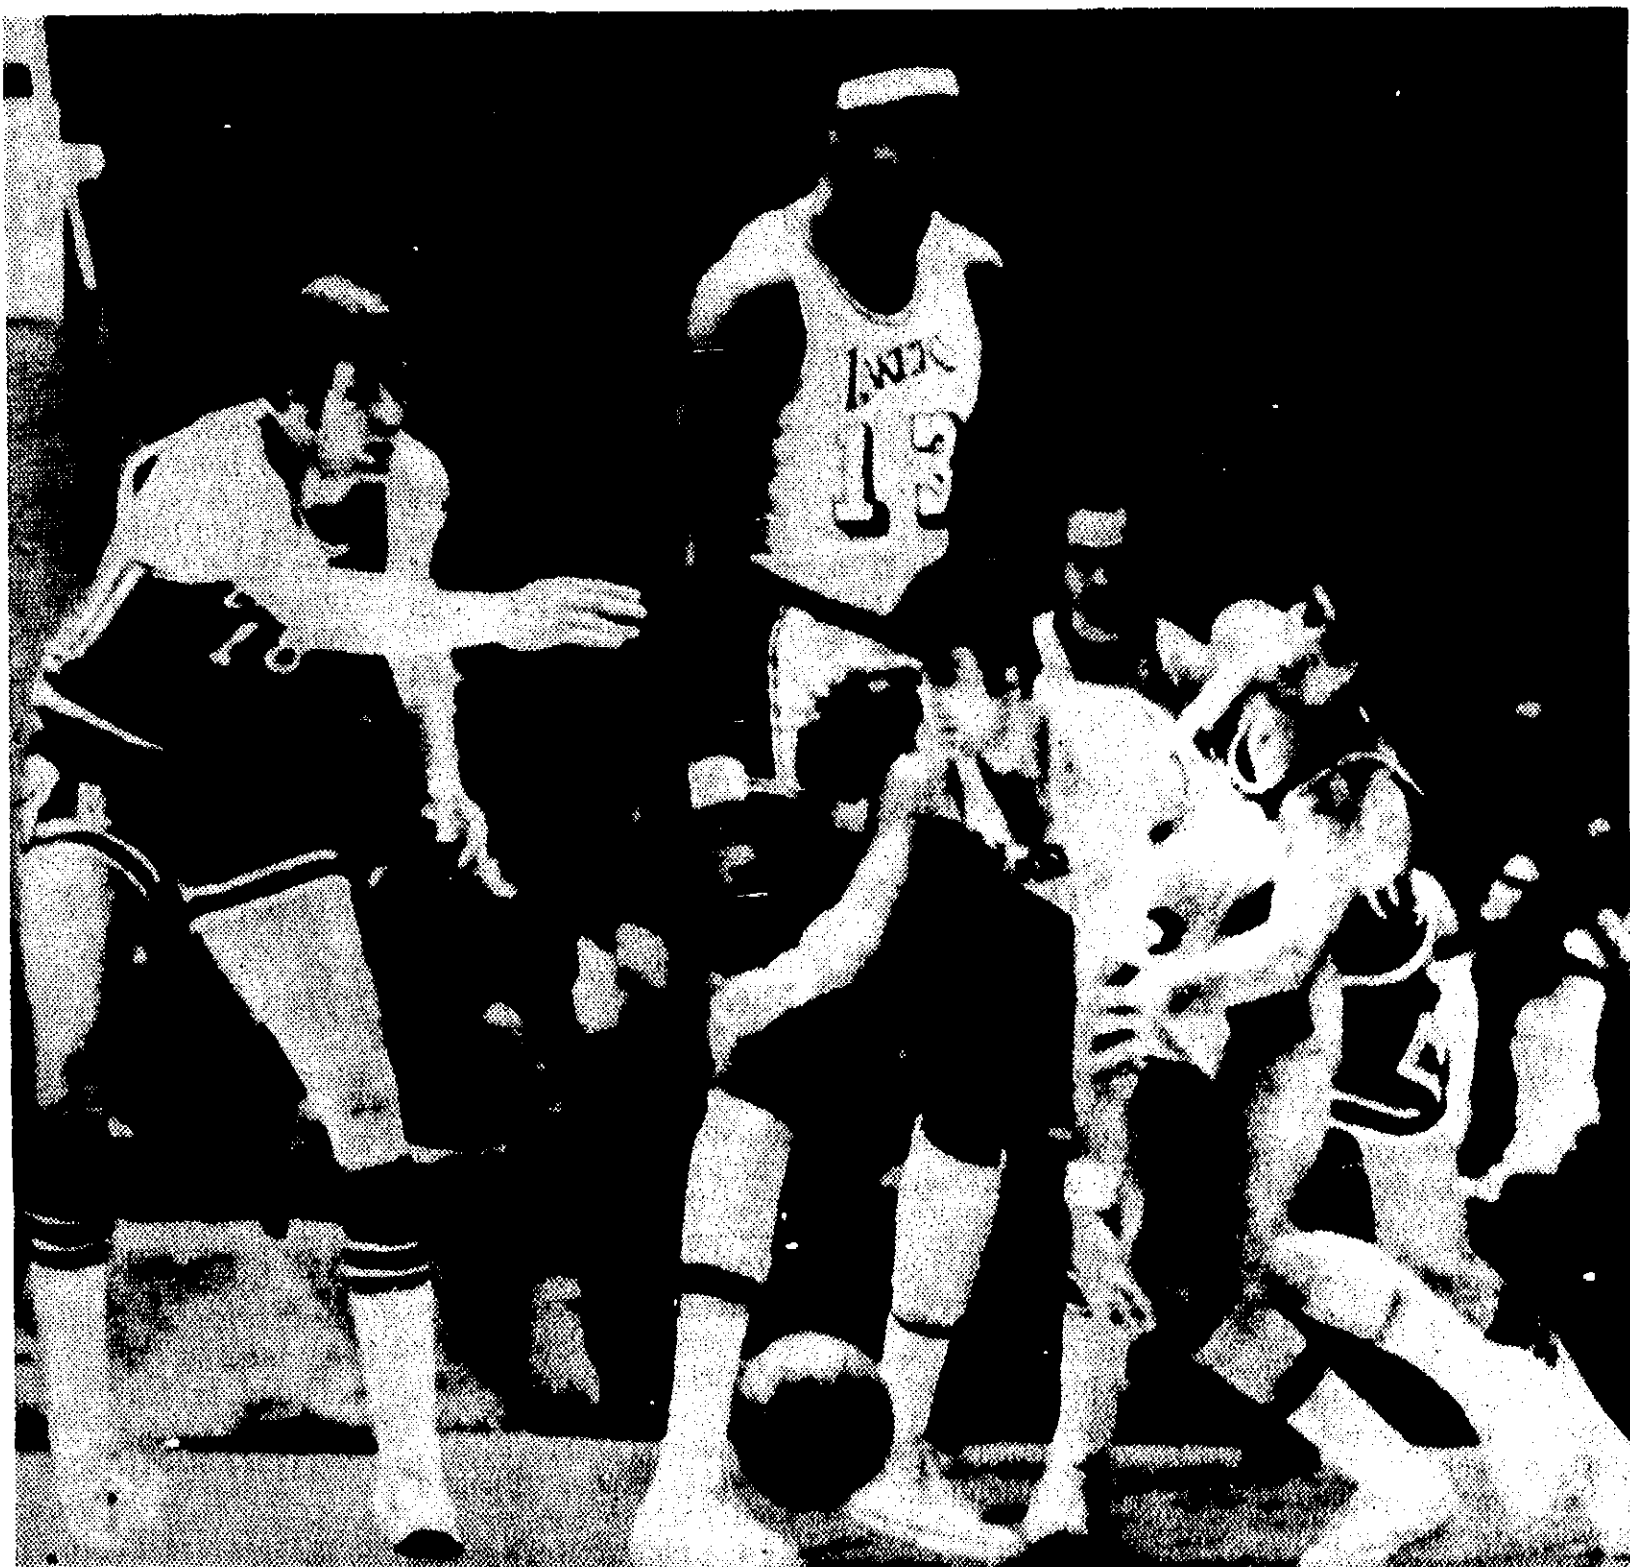

Dick Motta, the Chicago coach, was reluctant to put the onus on his all-star forward but finally admitted that this has been the biggest factor in the series.

Walker is effective in close, but McMillian plays "position" defense and keeps him from getting the ball. Walker has to move out higher to take a pass, and he just isn't a great shooter past about 15 feet.

The Bulls are a pattern-oriented team, and the Lakers have forced them out of their offense. Since no one has been able to do this against them this season, the Chicagoans have not adjusted properly.

"The Lakers play a zone," said Motta, "and the way they play it is hard to adjust to. We adjusted in practice, but we don't do it in the games."

A host of veterans of Olympiads of the past, and candidates for Munich, '72, lead a roster of more than 100 in the Long Beach Invitational track and field meet at Cal State L.B. today.

will be terminated in more than half of the 19 events.

The high hurdles meet record is 14.0, but it won't be for long. Among the entries are Erv Hall, who shares the world record of 13.2, and Tom White, 13.4.

High jump could be the best competition of the day. Reynaldo Brown raised the meet record to 7-2 1/4 last year. Today he will be pushed by five other 7-footers — John Doherty, Jim Voss, Greg Heel, Max Lowe and Ed Hanks.

Kraft top coach

HOUSTON (UPI) — Coach John J. Kraft, whose Villanova team meets UCLA Saturday in the NCAA finals, was chosen university division coach of the year Friday by the National Assn. of Basketball Coaches.

The other jumps rank almost as tight.

Phil Shinnick (26-9 1/2), Stan Whitley (26-8), Jerry Proctor (26-10), Ron Coleman (26-1/2) and promising Doyle Steel (25-5 1/2) of Cal State L.B. are top-seeded in the long jump.

American record holder

Art Walker (55-1) commences his comeback in the triple jump. Dave Smith (53-3) and AAU tilist Milan Tiff (53-0) will make him work.

Other entries with international achievements include javelinist Frank Covelli, discus throwers Al

Feuerbach, Gary Carlson and Bill Neville, hammer tosser George Frenn, shotputter Bruce Wilhelm, and a half-dozen 9.4-or-faster sprinters.

Field events open the program at 1 p.m. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for students.

Stewart blisters Ontario with 113

ONTARIO (Special) — Apparently Jackie Stewart has discovered a secret formula for getting around the tricky 3.2-mile Ontario Motor Speedway road course — and he's keeping it to himself.

Stewart, the impish 1969 world driving champion from Scotland, continued to be the pacesetter during Friday's second day of qualifying for Sunday's $288,900 Quesator Grand Prix.

The "Mod Scot," who clocked 111.526 mph over the 20-turn course Thursday, improved his speed by more than two mph by gunning his blue-and-white Tyrrell-Ford Cosworth V-8 to a 113.590 mph average late Friday afternoon.

The 31-year-old driver virtually has the pole position locked up for Sunday's start at noon, although four additional hours of qualifying are on tap today between 1 and 5 p.m.

Jacky Ickx of Belgium retained his No. 2 qualifying position with an average speed of 111.578 in his Ferrari 312B, while Jo Siffert of Switzerland moved up to third in the list of qualifiers in his BRM 153 at 111.025.

Emerson Fittipaldi of Brazil was next in his Lotus 72 Cosworth Ford at 111.139 while Reine Wisell of Sweden was fifth in another Lotus 72 Cosworth Ford at 111.058.

New Zealand's Denis Hulme, driving a McLaren M19 Cosworth Ford, qualified sixth at 111.033. Hulme was followed by Chris Amon of New Zealand in his Matra-Simca MS120 at 110.668.

Sam Posey of Sharon, Conn., piloted his Surtees TSA Chevy to an average speed of 110.425. Rounding out the top 10 qualifiers were Graham Hill of England and Mark Donohue of Media, Pa., at 109.980 and 109.882, respectively.

Of the top 10 drivers, only Amon failed to improve Friday from Thursday. Donohue and Posey were the only Formula A pilots among the top 10. In the second 10 cars, five were Formula A Machines.

The field for the race will be made up of 17 Formula 1 and 13 Formula A cars.

Seattle retains Haywood

Sonics Draw NBA fine of $200,000

Combined News Services

One caromed from New York to Denver, Seattle, Los Angeles, Detroit, Houston and back to Detroit Friday.

An out-of-court settlement ended the Spencer Haywood-Seattle SuperSonics case, leaving the Sonics $200,000 poorer as a result of a fine, but with Haywood permanently in a Seattle uniform.

National Basketball Assn. commissioner Walter Kennedy levied the fine while announcing the case in the U.S. Federal Court "is to be immediately dismissed with prejudice," the latter wording meaning the issue was legally dead.

"This (the NBA action) does not affect our breach of contract suit against Haywood nor our $10 million damage suit against the Seattle SuperSonics," said a Denver Rockets spokesman.

HAYWOOD SIGNED a $1.9 million contract with the Rockets of the ABA, but jumped the club this season.

"I would say the hatchet with Kennedy is buried," said a jovial Sonics owner Sam Schulman. "The commissioner learned a wonderful lesson."

Los Angeles federal judge Warren J. Ferguson refused to rule whether Buffalo can legally choose Haywood in the NBA player draft Monday. The Braves were seeking some court indication of their rights should they pick Haywood.

Ralph Simpson, who like Haywood also signed before his college class had graduated, has not sent his mother any money and the family of seven is still receiving a monthly welfare check of $416.

Simpson signed a $1 million contract with Denver last spring, following his sophomore season at Michigan State. His signing came under the ABA's "hardship clause" because of Simpson's desire "to get my family off welfare."

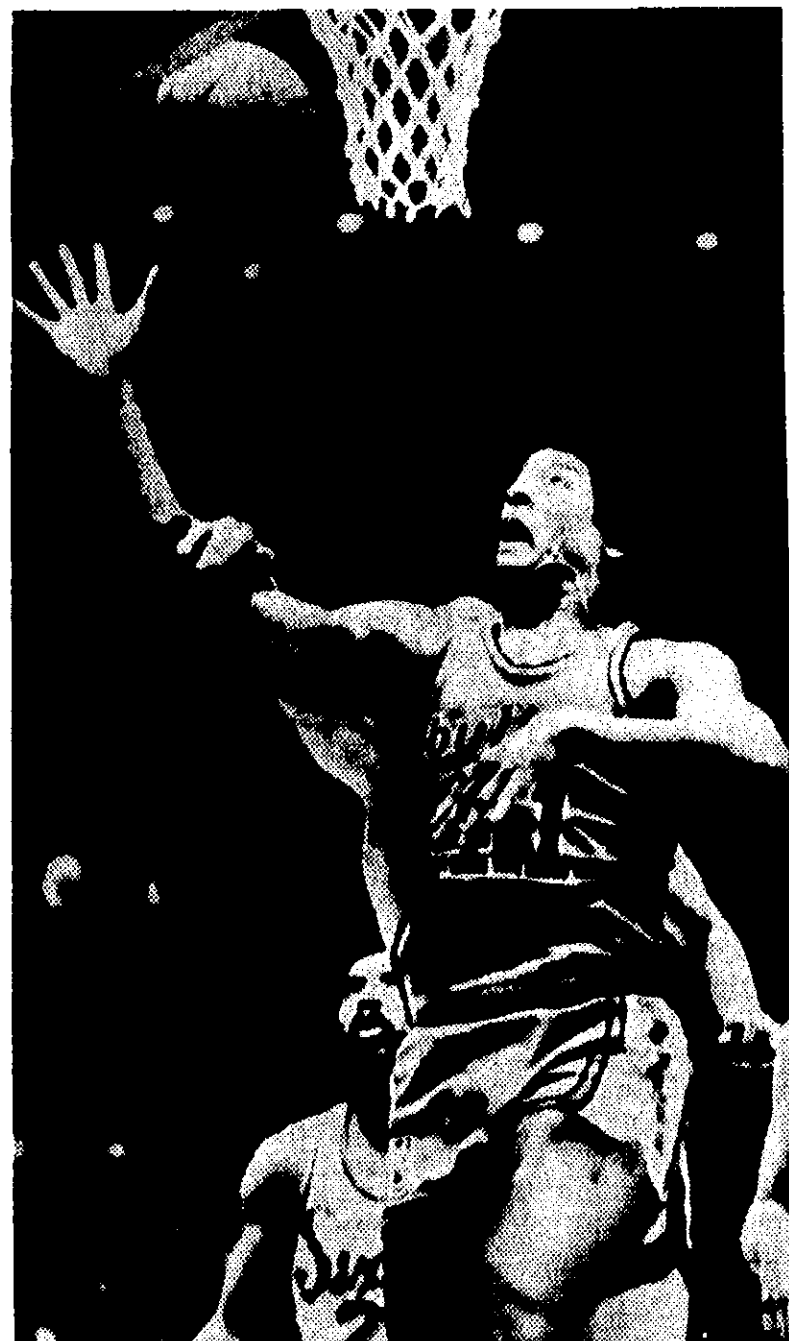

"I'M NOT SENDING my mother any money because I get paid twice a month and it's just enough to meet expenses with a little left over," claims Simpson. The bulk of his money reportedly will be paid to him between the ages of 40 and 60.

Meanwhile, back in Detroit, Dave Bing, threatening to bolt the Pistons for Virginia of the ABA, signed a three-year Detroit contract for an estimated $500,000.

U.S. records shattered in NCAA swim

AMES, Iowa (Special) — USC's 800-yard freestyle relay team smashed the American record by more than eight seconds, but Indiana, behind Garden Grove's Gary Hall, continued to build a huge team lead in the NCAA swimming and diving championships Friday night.

The USC quarter of Frank Heckl, Kim Tutt, Tom McBreen, and Jim McConica swam to a 6:39.0, shattering the old mark of 6:47.2 set by USC last year.

Hall became a double winner by copping the 400 individual medley with an American record mark of 3:58.2, slashing 1.4 seconds off his 1970 record.

UCLA's Tom Bruce set an American record of 56.8 in the 100 breaststroke in the morning preliminaries but lost to Stanford's Brian Job in the finals. Job, the former recordholder, clocked 57.2 in the final to Bruce's 57.7.

Santiago Esteve of Indiana scored an upset over teammate Mike Stamm in the 100 backstroke, rallying in the final 20 yards to touch out Stamm, who set an NCAA record for the event Thursday night leading off the Indiana medley relay team.

Esteve and Stamm appeared to touch the wall at the same time but the electronic timer gave Esteve the nod in 51.71, two-hundredths quicker than Stamm.

Mark Spitz of Indiana gave his Hoosier team another championship by capturing the 200 butterfly in 1:50.1, slightly slower than his own American and NCAA record of 1:49.5.

Cal State Long Beach's 800 freestyle relay team of Julio Arrango, Graham White, Herman Harvill and Hans Fassnacht placed third, setting a school record of 6:51.89.

Jose Fiolo set a CSLB standard in the consolation 100 breaststroke with a time of 58.56, breaking his own mark set this year.

Drumtop tests San Luis Rey field

Drumtop, a mare which specializes in grass course racing, will try to show her heels to the leading western turf performers today in the $75,000 San Luis Rey Handicap at Santa Anita.

Flown in from New York for the 1½-mile race, Drumtop gained her greatest fame in Florida when she beat Fort Marcy in the $100,000 Hialeah Turf Cup last month.

Italian-bred Bacuco may prove Drumtop's chief rival. Bacuco carries top actual weight of 124 pounds but Drumtop with 121 is high on the scale of weights with the five pounds allowed feminine runners.

The San Luis Rey draws a field of 10. The only other horse with more than 120 pounds is Hill Run, a stakes winner in Europe and victor in the Camino Real Handicap. He carries 122.

The rest of the field is made up of such seasoned performers as Tampa Trouble, Whittingham, On-

FANFARE

Fleet Host Purse before 18,004 fans Friday.

Irish Tryst, sent post-ward at 9-5, drew out in the final furlong to tally by three lengths in 1:10 1-5 for the six furlongs. Little Tada was second, with Heed A Vision third in the line-up of seven fillies and mares.

The winner, a daughter of War Tryst and Froiza II, rewarded her backers with $5.60, $3.20 and $2.20. Little Tada paid $4.20 and $2.60 and Heed A Vision returned $2.80. Pincay, registering his 120th triumph of the meeting, boosted the amount of money won by his mounts this season to $996,265. It also marked nine consecutive days he has ridden at least one winner.

Sovereign Day, 5-year-old mare, won the first race in a big surprise which resulted in a $106.20 payoff for each $2 par-mutuel wager. Sovereign Day, ridden by Bill Mahoney, returned $33.40 to place and $17.40 to show.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market the past week wobbled to its poorest showing in a month as trading volume sagged.

All of the major averages showed declines for the week. The setback spread broadly through the list.

Wall Street analysts said the decline was mainly a market readjustment after the sharp price runup since mid-November.

They also said the erosion was in part the result of profit taking and concern over the economy's slower than anticipated recovery from the recession.

On Wednesday the Dow Jones industrial average fell 9.52, its biggest loss since Feb. 22, and dropped below 900 for the first time since March 12.

The market was mixed on Thursday but a recovery began in late trading as selling dried up. The comeback carried over into Friday's session, when the first clear-cut gain of the week was carved out.

SO - - - WE'RE DOING IT AGAIN TODAY

RON TALKS ABOUT "PROFESSIONALS":

Did you ever go through the "hassle" of spending hours and hours with amateur or sales trainee trying to find the car of your choice that would fit into the family budget? RON'S IS THE HOME OF PROFESSIONAL AUTOMOBILE MEN. Our budget "engineers" will help you select the car that fits into your family budget as quickly and as pleasantly as possible. YOUR DEAL, YOUR FINANCING will be SPELLED OUT to you in simple terms and then it's up to you. If you say you'll like to think about it, there's absolutely no high pressure because we know you'll be back.

RON TALKS ABOUT "PROTECTION":

The ONLY USED CAR guarantee is a 100% unconditional guarantee parts and labor where the customer pays nothing. All other guarantees are nonsense. Our used cars with the 12x12 sticker carry our exclusive FREE

Shores models readied

Models of garden homes being built in The Shores of Laguna Niguel are nearing completion, according to Ron Miller, project manager for Avco Community Developers, Inc., builders.

Miller said the $3 million development, on the ocean side of the Pacific Coast Highway just south of Monarch Bay, eventually will have 60 homes.

"The garden homes," Miller said, "have been built to make full use of the 'zero lot line' design."

"This means the homes are positioned on one edge of the property line to provide an ample useable side yard instead of two lateral spaces that are too large to ignore, but too small for most uses. Private patios, courtyards and atriums are incorporated into the house design, instead," he said.

THE A-FRAME and galley designs of the garden

well as outside — in the fences, entryways and sidewalks that form the visual theme of the community.

Entry into the private community is through a guarded gate which is manned 12 hours a day. Each residential street within is a private cul-de-sac, and each is entered through a landscaped trellis. The drive under the trellis is paved in cobblestone for beauty and safety.

STREETS in The Shores are centered with landscaped median islands. These islands are lighted after dark, again for beauty and driving safety.

Sidewalks and driveways combine salt-finish concrete with redwood headerboards, providing an unusual half-timber effect throughout the community. Sidewalks include embedded planters.

ALL LIGHTING in the community is landscaped. Utilities are hidden underground. In the few instances where above-ground pedestals are unavoidable, they are concealed by landscape details.

Home Buyers in The Shores automatically belong to the Laguna Niguel Beach Club and they may apply for membership in El Niguel Country Club.

The average price of the homes is $42,000. Reservations are now being taken at The Shores sales office on the Pacific Coast Highway just south of Monarch Bay.

46-ton monster 'paints'

A helpful 46-ton "monster" helps Lockheed at Palmdale paint the bodies of its L-1011 TriStar jetliners four times faster than with conventional ladders and scaffolding.

The "monster" is a huge moving paint gantry that carries eight painters and the gantry operating crew along the L-1011's 178-foot-long fuselage so that they can apply one coat of airline colors in just 40 minutes.

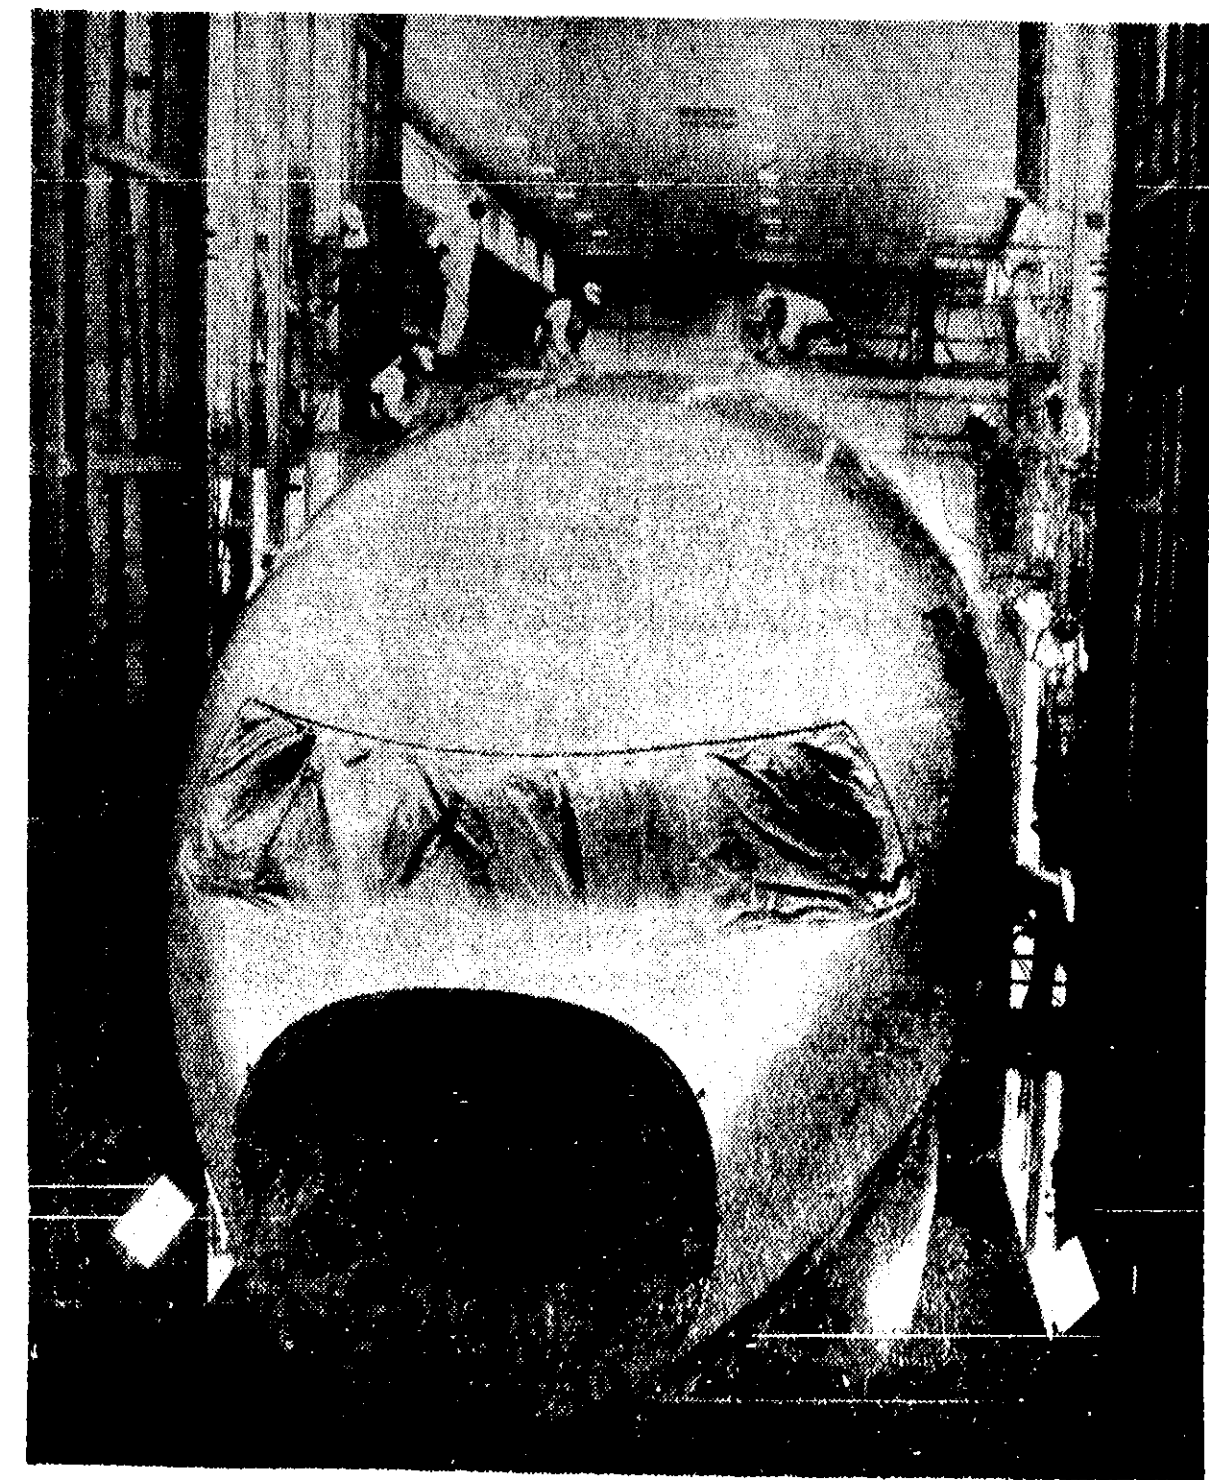

Using older methods, the job would take about four hours, says Bill Larson, Lockheed division manager.

Painters spray each fuselage with an average of four coats — enough to paint approximately 100 standard size American passenger cars.

"The new gantry gives airlines higher quality paint jobs on their L-1011s because it's easy for painters to reach any area of the fuselage. It's safer for painters, and we have almost total freedom from dirt," Larson said.

THE GANTRY, in the shape of an inverted "U," rolls along the length of the airplane fuselage under its own power and positions painters with its own set of elevators.

It's all part of Lockheed's new $3.2 million paint hangar at the company's commercial aircraft production and flight test side and a large touch-up room on the other.

Even the paint is new: a polyurethane variety that provides improved resistance to abrasion, corrosion and hydraulic fluids and adheres better than previous coatings.

Painters stand on eight small elevator platforms piped through the gantry as the gantry rolls slowly along the aircraft fuselage, and each painter's spray path blends with those of painters above and below to provide continuous coverage.

Fumes and overspray are drawn away by four water-wash exhaust outlets installed in the gantry.

CONDITIONED air is to each paint platform, along with hot and cold water for fuselage washing before painting.

In the wash and touch-up area, painters work from elevator platforms suspended from the ceiling that travel along the fuselage and across the L-1011's wing.

Dust, the enemy of painters, is kept out by supplying air to the room at 10 per cent above the capacity of the exhaust filters. As added precaution, double walls and ceilings are provided, as well as special seals for building openings.

Even when the paint hangar is not occupied, an anemometer on the roof automatically turns on air conditioning to pressurize the interior against dust when the wind exceeds 20 knots.

TOKYO (UPI) — Consumer advocate Ralph Nader visited Japan last month and warned the consumer must be protected internationally to fight "multinational corporations which are, in essence, nations without land."

"I want to emphasize that consumer protection is not restricted to any one nation," Nader said.

Japan, with the third largest economy in the world, needs an effective consumer movement, Nader said. Examples of international consumer concern arising from the Japanese "miracle" economy include contamination of deep sea fish, the threat of "massive" pollution caused by huge oil tankers and the rise in Japanese exports.

From the moment Nader arrived, he lectured the Japanese on what was wrong with their country. The fledgling Japanese consumer movement loved it.

The Japanese government and business community reacted a bit differently — with silence.

Nader described himself as "pessimistic" about pollution in Japan and the state of the Japanese consumer.

Japan has only about 10,000 lawyers (compared to 300,000 in the United States with twice the population) who can bring litigation against the government and big business, he noted.

Japanese lawyers, he added, are usually employed by businesses, leaving a shortage of independent law firms.

IT DIDN'T take Nader long to take on a Japanese bit of muckraking. He said he had met with officials of the Japan Auto Consumers Union and been told some union officials and their families had been threatened.

"I mentioned this to the editors of the Yomiuri Shimbun (sponsors of Nader's visit) and mentioned auto company. He charged that the Nissan (Datsun) Auto Company had cancelled an invitation to visit one of their plants because General Motors had pressured the Japanese firm.

Nader feels 'chill'

Nader refused comment but did say it had not extended a formal invitation in the first place.

Nader also squeezed in a that perhaps this might be a good subject for their investigative reporters," Nader told newsmen. He said the newspaper's editors agreed the subject should be taken up.

This brought nods of approval by those listening to Nader's lectures in Japan. He told about some rising trends in the American consumer movement. He told the Japanese how to challenge their government and how to organize Members of the audiences scribbled notes furiously.

THE GOVERNMENT and business world remained aloof from Nader. He had no official contact with government leaders, and the only time he met with a businessman was when he taped a television interview.

The Japanese consumer movement is a relatively new phenomenon. There are five major organizations, but they are mainly concerned with the pricing tactics of Japanese companies, specifically television manufacturers. There is little of the sophisticated consumer investigation as performed by Nader and other consumer organizations in the United States.

The Japan Auto Consumers Union did not even know, Nader said, whether Japanese cars sold on the domestic market carried the same safety equipment as required on cars exported to the United States.

One function of his trip, he said, was to familiarize Japanese consumer organizations with techniques he has found useful.

Nader also wanted to establish Japanese contacts. It would be a lot easier to protect the American consumer, he said, if he knew about products exported to the American market.

OWNER PROGRAMS TICKER... To Report His Selections

Your own ticker to watch

Two stock brokerage firms in the Los Angeles-Beverly Hills area have conducted demonstrations of a personal stock ticker for home or office that can be programmed to give instant, selective quotes on the user's own choice of securities.

Called the Trans-Lux Personal Ticker, the selective ticker is a product of Trans-Lux Corporation, a major producer of electronic information display equipment for the brokerage industry.

The selection of stocks on the personal ticker can be changed — in seconds — by the user as often as he likes, or at the touch of a button, he can watch the entire market.

Quotes are printed on a tape. Another model is available for commodities on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Demonstrations were held in Los Angeles at Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis. Later, the ticker was shown in Beverly Hills at Bateman Eichler, Hill Richards, Inc.

The ticker is programmed by simply inserting small lettered keys into slots. The electronically controlled unit prints instantaneous last sale transactions of up to 40 selected stocks chosen by the user from a single stock exchange. All other transactions are deleted.

Okay, Florida, but we had our Disney Park first

By ROBERT BECKMAN
Business-Real Estate Editor

Long-time Southland enthusiasts for Disneyland get a dent in their pride whenever they hear of certain refinements lacking in Anaheim but earmarked for the new Disney World at Orlando, Fla.

Such reports as "bigger," "better-planned," "more interesting" and the like, leave some Southern Californians a bit cool toward the whole Florida complex.

I've talked to some of them. I'm one of them, too. Another test of our loyalty to Walt Disney's finest park — the one in Anaheim — came zinging along this week. Read:

"RCA today announced it will design and build a computerized system to monitor the operating condition of everything from fire alarms to golf course sprinklers at the new Walt Disney World complex.

Under a $1.5 million contract, RCA will provide an automatic monitoring and control system for the "Magic Kingdom" Theme Park, scheduled to open in October as part of the first phase of Walt Disney World."

My dander was up slightly — but I read further: "Facilities associated with fire prevention, health and safety services, as well as equipment at the central energy plant, two resort hotels, the central entrance, the golf course and club house, and waste disposal plants will be monitored by the system, according to John R. McAllister, division vice president and general manager of RCA's Aerospace Systems Division, Burlington, Mass.

"Should an equipment malfunction or other alarm condition as a fire hazard occur, the RCA system will identify the problem by flashing a coded message on video data terminals similar to tv sets. The terminals initially will be located at two fire stations, two security locations and the maintenance console in the main service area.

"The information displayed on the terminals will include the kind of problem, type of incident, building number, location of incident within the building, sensor type and the day, month and time of the incident. A total of 18 separate alarm conditions can be displayed simultaneously on the terminals."

It's woman power

Women's job equality drive and the needs of the economy have produced big changes in the pattern of female employment in the U.S., according to a report in the Morgan Guaranty Survey.

The bank publication predicts that "dynamic change in women's role in the work force and in the economy" will continue in the years ahead. It does not see "real equality" as coming soon, however, and notes that "with many employers in many lines of work, acceptance of women has a long way to go."

Among positive developments in the job picture for women, the Morgan Guaranty economic review cites the following:

1. A steadily growing proportion of total jobs in the U.S. is held by women. Female workers now number 32 million, equal to 38 per cent of the work force, compared with 30 per cent at the peak of World War II.
 2. New kinds of employment opportunity are opening for women; these include a greater range of executive jobs in business and access, though still limited, to skilled trades like plumbing and aircraft maintenance.
 3. Both business and public agencies are getting interested in providing child-care facilities for working mothers.
- Even with this progress, the survey article observes, "the U.S., compared with other nations, plainly is not taking advantage of an important national resource — the brainpower and potential of its women."
- For instance, the article notes:
1. Half of all women workers are employed in "only a relative handful of job categories such as office worker, sales clerk, teacher, librarian, or beautician."
 2. Many employers in many lines of work still disqualify women for jobs with "physical demands" solely on the basis of sex;
 3. Despite growing numbers of females in the professions, they constitute a far lower percentage of physicians, dentists, engineers, lawyers, scientists, architects, and chemists in this country than in most foreign nations;
 4. Traditional ideas as to the "proper" role for women in employment affect school admission and scholarship policies, resulting in quota systems and other forms of discrimination against women;
 5. Disparities in pay still exist; official statistics show women in broad occupational categories earning only 65 per cent of what men in the same categories receive. For all jobs, women's median income last year was 59 per cent of men's — $5,077 compared with $8,668.
- Factors other than discrimination account for part of the difference in pay, the article acknowledges.
- For example, within a given kind of work men are likely to fill the "physically demanding, dirty, or dangerous jobs." Also, some married women voluntarily limit their earning potential by choosing jobs that more conveniently accommodate their role as wife and mother.

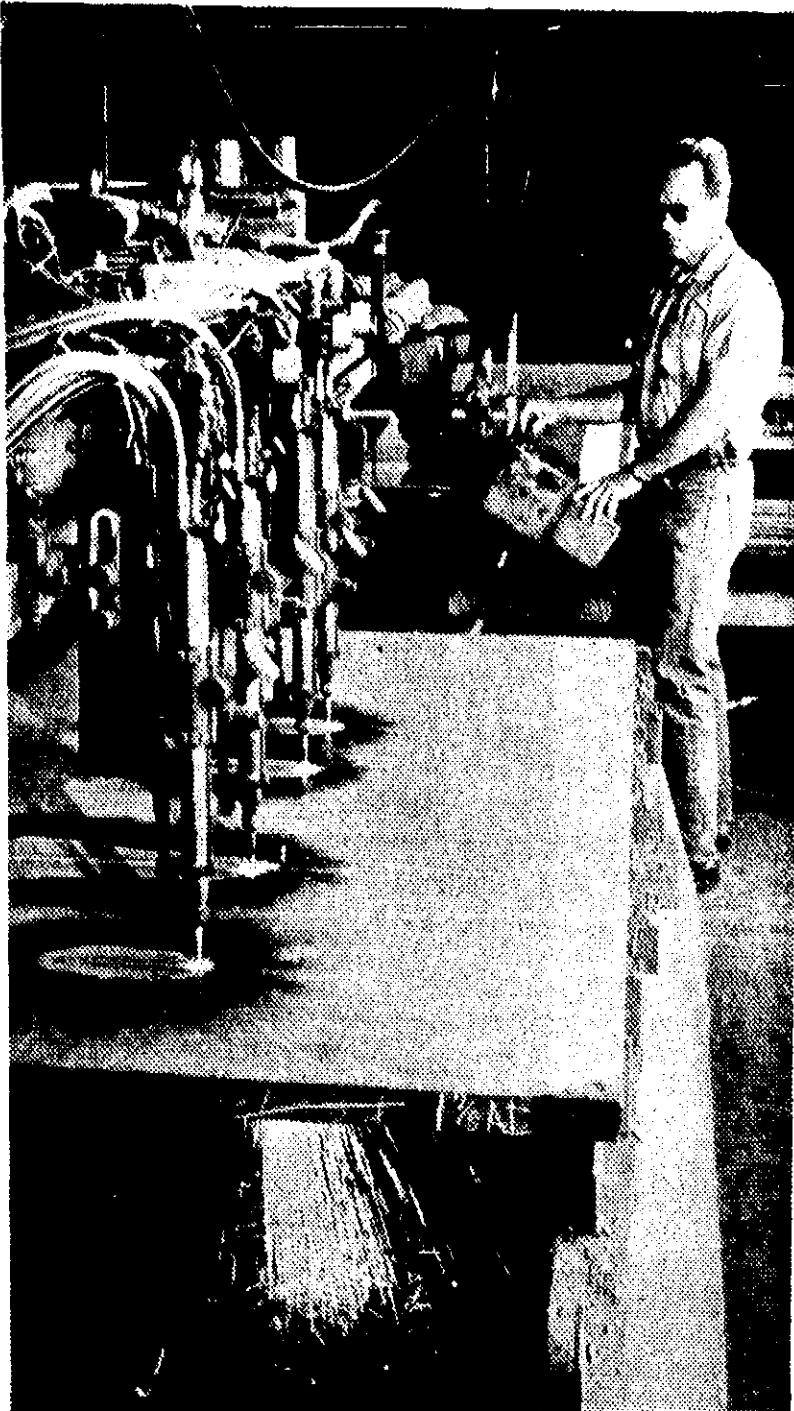

Cars under wraps

IN THE SOVIET UNION, many car owners put their vehicles up on blocks and under wraps for the winter. Tourist guides, attempting to explain why snow-swept parking lots are filled with "canned" cars, blame the severe Russian winters and the shortage of garages.

There also is a shortage of service stations, the magazine, Petroleum Today reports. Moscow, a city of 6.7 million people, has only about 10 stations for the general public. And outside the big cities, the distances between stations are so great that a traveler must take along a spare can of gasoline. Soviet leaders have promised to change all this. Car production, which at the moment is only about 280,000 per year, is to be boosted to one million a year by 1972, and there are to be chains of filling stations, motels and driving schools, according to the government plan.

PRECISION BURNING

Raw metal stock is precision cut by "burner" at Westinghouse's Sunnyvale Division. Machine, four oxy-fuel torches working simultaneously, can cut any shape up to 20 inches thick by using electronic tracing eye following contours of paper pattern.

Naturade in larger quarters

Allan Schulman, president of Naturade, Inc., pioneer Long Beach manufacturers and distributors of health food products, has announced the purchase of a 31,000-square-foot office and warehouse facility on a one-acre-plus site at 1700 Santa Fe Ave., Long Beach.

Work will begin immediately on the remodeling and modernization of the concrete and brick structure which will involve an expenditure in excess of $250,000, he said.

Acquisition of the property was handled by Norman Masterson, vice president of Bill Brooks Co., Long Beach-based industrial real estate firm affiliated with the national Society of Industrial Realtors.

DESIGN and reconstruction on the project is the direction of Stanley V. Goldin AIA, local architect, with company supervisor Sam Becker, Naturade secretary.

Upon completion, which will involve razing of a portion of the existing building and erection of additional space, the facility will house 25 Naturade employees who package and distribute the 45-year-old firm's products nationwide.

BUSINESS, INDUSTRY WEEK

Autos, steel push index up

The index edged up 0.2 per cent due to a rise in two of the components — auto and steel.

Auto production rose 3.7 per cent. GM scheduled overtime at half of its plants. One GM plant is still on strike. Chrysler and Ford produced a normal work schedule.

Steel production went up 0.4 per cent and now stands at its highest level since the last week in March 1969. This is due to a rush of orders in January and February before the price rise in March, and also due to continued strike hedging.

Crude oil rose 1.2 per cent and Electrical Power output went up 0.4 per cent.

All the other components went down, with a 3.8 per cent dip in miscellaneous car loadings due to a 14.8 per cent drop in the transportation of other farm products.

THE NATION'S BUSINESS RECOVERY should pick up strength in the second quarter, Industry Week said today after contacting manufacturers in a variety of industries.

Many manufacturers say new orders are showing improvement, and a majority of the companies queried by the business magazine indicates gains will become increasingly noticeable in the next few months.

As the first quarter of 1971 nears a close, the upturn is not yet strong, and some companies are still feeling the downturn.

Bright spots in the economic picture are automobile sales and new housing starts. Sales of U.S. cars hit an annual rate of around 8.5 million units in February, with foreign makes moving out at a 1.5 million rate.

New housing starts, which totaled only 1.4 million units last year, were at an annual rate of 1.7 million in February and are expected to total between 1.8 million and 2 million for all of 1971.

The recovery started late last year in the wake of the settlement of the strike against General Motor Corp.

The consumer, with record personal income and savings, is in an excellent position to contribute to a significant upturn in the economy, one company chairman told Industry Week. Sales of consumer durable goods, he said, should be among the first to benefit — based on recent surveys that indicate a favorable change in consumer attitudes.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Want money? Produce long babies

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A college basketball player has just signed a $1.5 million dollar professional contract and several more are expected to vault off the campus into the seven-figure bracket.

That sort of thing is putting parents under tremendous pressure to produce tall children.

The Flunkinghams, a young couple in my neighborhood, had their first child about a month ago and on a recent evening I stopped by their house to inspect the infant.

I found Ursel Flunkingham, the father, in the nursery. He was bending over the crib, elevating the baby's arms with one hand and raising the baby's feet with the other hand.

"What's that your doing with Baby, Ursel?" I inquired.

"I'm stretching Baby," Ursel replied.

"That's nice. Are you trying to make Baby burp?"

"No, I'm trying to make Baby seven feet tall. I estimate that if I stretch Baby a couple of times a day while Baby is young and pliable I should be able to add at least 24 inches to Baby's adult height."

"Why do you want baby to be two feet taller?"

"So Baby can play professional basketball. No child of mine is going to waste time working for a living when there's a fortune to be made playing games."

"THAT'S ALL very well for some children, Ursel, but your baby is a girl," I pointed out.

"I know that," Ursel said, "But I figure by the time she graduates from college the women's lib movement will have those pro teams sexually integrated."

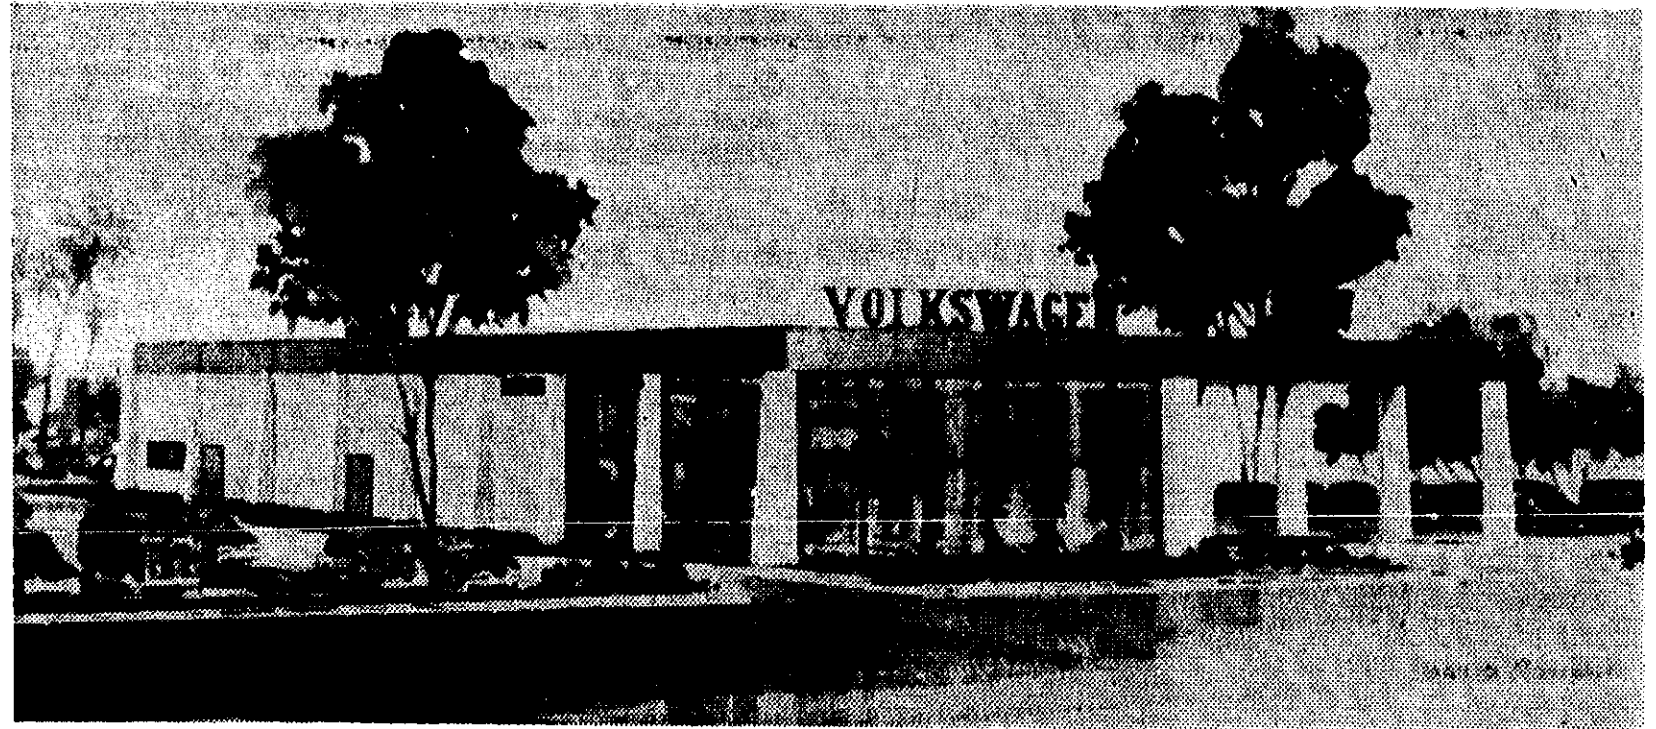

Well, it's perfectly natural for a father to want the best for his child. I'm wondering, however, if it wouldn't be wise to give some study to what ecological impact this extra altitude is having.

Seven-footers, only recently rare almost to the point of freakishness, are fairly common today. In a few more years, if the trend continues, we will be seeing eight-footers, nine-footers and maybe even 10-footers.

Our environment, however, was formed around short people. Is there a danger that high altitude breathing will upset the balance of oxygen and carbon dioxide in the air?

If so, the rules of basketball may have to be changed to require that the game be played on hands and knees.

BILL BARRY VOLKSWAGEN IN CONSTRUCTION

Ground was broken this week for Bill Barry Volkswagen, ultramodern agency to rise at 3930 Cherry Ave., Long Beach. Barry, in auto sales work in Southland from 1949 to 1957, since latter date has operated Bill Barry Pontiac, Santa Ana. VW building, scheduled for July opening with 50 employees, will cover 29,687 square feet, 11,568 of which will be for service. Building cost: $575,000.

Italian Auto Maker Starting Legend

SANT'AGATA BOL-OGNESE, Italy (UPI) — Ferruccio Lamborghini is the kind of man who makes the legend makers smile.

They say he votes in strict rotation for Communist, Roman Catholic, Socialist, Republican and liberal politicians.

They say he names his cars after bulls because he was born under the astrological sign of Taurus.

They say he hires only beautiful women and encourages them to dress like Playboy Club Bunnies. They say he works only three hours a day and takes six-month vacations.

"True," he said. "All true, more or less."

They also say Lamborghini might sell his huge tractor company to the Ford Motor Co.

"Not true," he said. "Not true at all."

A Ford spokesman in Detroit also denied the report growing out of announcements the Italian tractor industry was in trouble, with production down 30 per cent and $7.2 million tied up in invento-

All of which put the 54-year-old industrialist back on the front pages of the newspapers he says he never reads but which talk about him and the Miura.

NAMED after a famous fighting bull, the Miura is a car, "the dream of everybody," according to Lamborghini. It is quite a hunk of car, capable of speeds of 188 mph. It sells in Italy for $13,730 and twice that in some other countries.

"If Jacqueline Onassis were sitting at the wheel of a Miura," Lamborghini likes to say, "people would look at it instead of her."

Sheikhs buy Miuaras. Movie stars buy them. Jet setters buy them. But only 450 of them a year. That is the production limit set in the factory built in 1962 in a wheat field in this North Italian town of 4,812 inhabitants.

Lamborghini got into the auto business after carving out a sizable share of the Italian tractor market and establishing his oil heater as the biggest seller in the country.

UNIQUE . . . Hurst/JEEPster Special

By ART STEPHAN

Long Beach has many automotive dealers who have distinguished themselves nationwide, but one dealer, Rancho Jeep Supply, at 6309 Paramount Blvd., does wholesale and retail jeep supply sales in record amounts not only nationwide but throughout Canada and Hawaii.

Clarence Shook, who has operated his exclusive Jeep dealership for 11 years in the same location and 16 years within a few blocks of his present location, carries the largest parts stock for Jeeps in the United States.

As an example of the volume of business his firm does out of this Long Beach firm, he presently has on hand more than 2,800 current model brake units to make conversion kits for early model jeeps. That's just one item he has a corner on the market.

In the 8,700-square-foot building, Rancho Jeep is also the home of the Rancho overdrive, the only overdrive unit available for Jeep Wagoneer, trucks, Broncos, International Scout and soon the Toyota Land Cruiser and Chevy's Blazer.

One of the few dealers stocking sheet metal for Jeeps in the U.S., Rancho Jeep Supply can also convert four-cylinder jeeps to V-8's. Shook also claims he can do almost anything his discriminating customers require. One special job called for a completely aluminum body that was demagnetized. The price? $2500.

When it comes to parts and service, Rancho Jeep Supply is at the top. The latest venture is supplying big tires for sand and racing jeeps. These conversions are very popular in the South West, according to Shook. Even his two sons have entered into the sport by each converting themselves a sand racing machine.

AMERICAN MOTORS WILL BE the first U.S. auto manufacturer to offer a sliding vinyl sun roof for its subcompact car line.

The vinyl sun roof will be available on the company's four passenger Gremlin subcompact starting April 1, a date that coincides with the first anniversary of the Gremlin's public debut. The new feature will also be offered on Hornet two-door sedans and the Hornet Sport-about model.

When fully open, the roof provides a 24-inch by 31-inch opening for sunshine and fresh air above the front seat area. The manually-operated roof can be easily opened or closed by either the driver or passenger.

The sun roof slides rearward on aluminum rails, the vinyl folding into accordion-like pleats.

"The sun roof ought to be an exceptionally popular feature on the Gremlin, which already is a car that's fun to drive," said R. W. McNealy, vice president-marketing. "It is a good compromise between a full convertible and a solid roof car."

"The sun roof can be opened partially or all the way, depending on the temperature and driving speeds, or fully closed for efficient interior warmth and comfort in bad weather."

El Ray Park provides good privacy, safety

In addition to the ample shopping facilities in Cerritos, the homes are located near Lakewood Center. Just across the freeway there is another major regional shopping center nearing completion.

EL RAY Park is located in an orderly growth pattern established by the city fathers of Cerritos to keep a balance between the fast expanding residential, commercial and industrial development of their community.

BOOKS IN REVIEW

Jane's: demand for investment capital grows

JANE'S MAJOR COMPANIES OF EUROPE, edited by Lionel F. Gray, McGraw-Hill Book Company, $39.95.

It is said current business trends are increasingly for mergers to be arranged between giant concerns.

This can only result in the concentration of financial resources in a smaller number of hands, according to this 1970-1971 edition.

As a consequence of this, the "growth" situations, which are so sought by institutional and private investors alike, are now being found to a greater extent in the medium, and smaller, second-line companies, and many of the 40 or so new entries in this volume fall largely in this category.

The present volume, the sixth in the series, was produced, the publisher says, with two main objectives in mind: to consolidate the position achieved last year, when a massive expansion in content was realized, and to make the result more useful and easier to use than in the past.

For instance, each company commands a new page, regardless of the length of the previous entries. Each entry can be seen to be an entity in its own right, and each company is accorded equal status.

Apart from making for easier reading, this change provides more up-to-date information. The number of pages has been increased by about one third, and the information given about each company has been expanded wherever possible.

IT IS expected that nearly 5 per cent of the companies analyzed in this volume will have disappeared as separate entities before the next edition is published. There is no distinct theme running through the stated reasons for most of the mergers.

As Jane's Major Companies sees it, the demand for investment capital will continue to expand and, unless the rate of inflation is slowed down, the need for capital in the next two decades will be so great that the present rates of interest, high though they are, may come to be remembered with nostalgic regret.

To combat this possibility, international financial cooperation, including the realm of fiscal policy, is as essential as the need for international trade union cooperation, states Jane's.—RLB

LISTEN, MANAGEMENT. By William F. Keefe, McGraw-Hill, $8.95.

This 192-page volume shows listening deserves a place as a communications specialty requiring the same kind of study and attention as the other communication skills — speaking, reading, and writing.

Subtitled "Creative Listening for Better Managing" and limited to the listening skill, the book proceeds on the theory that listening demands preparation and concentration through the preparatory stages, up to and through the act of listening, to the logical result of good listening: effective decision making and post facto analysis.

McGraw-Hill says this practical book "is dedicated to better communication and more profitable enterprise."

It takes the reader through the gamut of considerations and techniques that the manager or executive must understand to listen well.

The book is a "roadmap to listening skill" which serves as an indispensable aid to better overall utilization of the spoken word.

This in-depth discussion of managerial listening treats the subject as one requiring detailed study and practice. It puts listening in the context of the executive's working style.

HANDBOOK OF PUBLIC RELATIONS, second edition, edited by Howard Stephenson, McGraw-Hill, $24.50.

This 822-page edition is a substantially revised work.

It includes new material on public affairs, training resources, opinion research, and non-verbal communication.

Subtitled "The Standard Guide to Public Affairs and Communications," the handbook is a good reference that covers everything from the fundamentals to exact, specialized techniques for reaching specific goals.

This source book gives facts on planning and implementing programs and evaluating results; methods to reach and influence public opinion through the use of any or all media; and tested procedures for building prestige, boosting sales, or promoting a cause.

Actual programs are included for such fields as small businesses, welfare agencies, school systems,

Thirty well-known figures in the field contribute to this handbook.

Of particular interest are sections on advanced techniques for public relations uses of television, official communication in the urban environment, and external publications unrelated to advertising and promotion.

The handbook is divided into 31 chapters, grouped into four major sections.

Following a foreword by G. Edward Pendray and an introduction by John W. Hill, the first section, "Principles and Practice," describes the profession, research, careers, and counseling.

The second section, "Public Affairs," investigates such topics as the communications gap, investors and guidelines for financial disclosure, international public affairs, federal and local government, philanthropy, and corporate citizenship.

"Private Enterprise," the third unit, discusses associations, major and small industry, employee communication, reporting to management, marketing, retailing, and banking.

The final section, "Communication Methods," examines communicating by design, broadcasting, company literature, newspapers, magazines, public speaking, and the application of psychology.

It's a must for the desk of anyone in the field.—RLB

BIG STRIDES IN '70

NYSE Broadens Unit Pricing

Special to the Progress Section

The New York Stock Exchange and its member firms made important progress in 1970 in broadening the use of automation to speed and simplify the processing of securities transactions.

Among the most significant advances were the expansion of Central Certificate Service and the introduction of the Block Automation System.

Design, development and testing also moved ahead for use of computers on the trading floor and for integrating communications of the Exchange and its member firms.

One step in future automation was the agreement in principle by the New York and American Exchanges to work toward consolidating many computer and service facilities to provide improved operational and data-processing resources.

There has been a three-way expansion of Central Certificate Service, the computerized system for delivery of stock by electronic bookkeeping entries — without the physical movement of certificates.

for intra-industry delivery through CCS bookkeeping entries.

A TOTAL of more than 900 Amex stocks will join the 1,300 NYSE issues in the system gradually over the next three or four months.

The Block Automation System (BAS), which went into operation in January, is a computerized system for matching buy and sell interests in blocks of stock of 5,000 shares or more to facilitate trading in these blocks.

The system is made up of a network of 177 member firms and investing institutions in 18 cities across the country, tied electronically to a computer at the exchange.

Blocks matched by the computer are executed by brokers on the trading floor of the Exchange in the normal manner. BAS began with NYSE issues only; NYSE listed corporate bonds and American Stock Exchange securities are to be added before year-end, doubling the system.

INCLUSION of Amex shares in CCS and in BAS were two of five priority programs announced during the summer when the NYSE and the Amex announced possible consolidation of some of their service and computer facilities.

The others include consolidation of clearance operations, development of joint systems and computer facilities for floor automation, and establishment of a common message-switching facility.

Other highlights of NYSE automation programs during 1970:

— The Exchange began a live, pilot test of the Specialist Electronic Book, a computerized record-keeping device with a cathode-ray tube display screen designed to replace the loose-leaf notebooks traditionally used by specialists on the trading floor to keep a record of buy orders below and sell orders above the current market price.

— Groundwork was laid for a nationwide communications system for the Exchange and its member firms. Initially it will be used for the stock ticker and the BAS network, but it eventually is planned to provide the link to the Exchanges other automation services, including those being developed for the trading floor, of which the Specialist Electronic Book is one component.

— A computerized bond clearance program was introduced in May, building on the existing bond-comparison program. The clearance program, employed for all listed domestic corporate bonds, is a netting down process by which bond transactions of member firms are compared and intermediate deliveries are eliminated.

SteelStone System premiers in construction in Long Beach

The SteelStone System, a method based on pending patents that provides "the only feasible method of using Ferrow-cement", is having its world premiere in Long Beach this month.

The system, the impediment of multiple layers of metal lath in a rich cement-mortar, is being used in the construction of a four-unit apartment complex at 449 Bonito St.

Partners for the project are Hugh Carter Engineering Corp. of Long Beach and La Jolla, and Clarence E. Ross, Long Beach.

According to its inventor, Ted Bentley of Los Angeles, the SteelStone system utilizes the same Ferrow-cement used by the Italian Navy during World War II to build warships.

PROF. Pier Luigi Nervi who, with Frank Lloyd Wright and French architect Le Corbusier, constituted a troika of the world's greatest engineering minds, used the Ferrow-cement system extensively.

The resulting product of the Ferrow-cement method, said Bentley: "Simply that the whole is greater than the sum of its parts."

The extensive subdivision of the reinforcements over every square one-sixteenth of an inch of surface provides a concrete membrane that is very thin and flexible, or ductile.

"But it is super-strong," says Bentley. "It is so ductile that Nervi created hulls for destroyers and cruisers that were only three-quarters of an inch thick."

Lucky Stores sets dividend

nounced by Gerald A. Awes, chairman of the board.

Rancho Los Alamitos opens 25-unit this weekend

Long Beach's most exclusive new-home community opens a new unit of 25 homes this weekend.

Surrounding the historical site of Rancho Los Alamitos, the prestige homesites offer up to 3,300 square feet on pool-size lots with many alternate arrangements to create dens, libraries, recreation rooms and hideaways.

Seven home plans are available, offering high quality custom materials such as exteriors with wood, stone and masonry trim, marble and glazed brick entryways, shag carpeting throughout and custom fireplace settings.

TWO-STORY cathedral ceilings, "Island" kitchens, sunken conversation pits with hooded fireplaces, bonus rooms and a glass-encased atrium are a few of the features offered at Bixby Hill.

One of the more popular homes for the smaller family is the Balboa — a split-level, three-bedroom home.

The impressive entryway leads into the formal living room. Off the living room is a gracious sunken dining room adjacent to the all-electric kitchen and breakfast nook area.

The sunken family room will afford hours of casual entertaining with its custom fireplace and built-in wet bar and powder room.

The family room opens onto the patio for easy indoor-outdoor entertaining and recreation.

THE living quarters are located on the second floor of this lovely home. The master suite boasts its own dressing alcove, huge walk-in closet and private bath.

Another bonus addition of the Balboa is a large service area with plenty of storage space and room for washer and dryer.

The split level, one and two story homes offer three to seven bedrooms, family rooms, formal dining rooms, breakfast areas, up to three full baths and many three-car garages. Large dressing alcoves, sunken tubs, wet bars, wall to wall walk-in closets, and sun-balconies are some of the features adding to the ultimate in gracious living.

To reach the model complex, take the San Diego Freeway to Palo Verde exit and go south to the private entry gates.

Homes are priced from $63,990.

New Firm Organizes; Plans 'Mediplex' Sites

Hospital Development Corporation, a Los Angeles firm devoted to the wide range of health-care facility development, has been organized to serve industry clients on a national basis.

Heading the new firm is William F. Moody, authority in the design and development of the health-care industry field.

Moody said his company is involved in the design, engineering, construction and property management of gigantic "medical campuses" which he calls Mediplexes.

"Publicly-held firms in the health-care field lease, own or operate these Mediplexes," Moody said, "although the Mediplex program is not limited to public corporations or to proprietary-owned facilities."

"Hospital Development Corporation has a program on financing available for non-profit community groups."

HE SAID the typical Mediplex will consist of facilities for the following: alcoholic and drug addiction; boarding home for aged; convalescent, day-care center for children; diagnostic center; elderly housing; extended care; general hospital; intermediate care hospital; medical offices; light mental hospital; psychiatric hospital and rehabilitation hospital.

"Of the 80 companies in the health-care field, only five to six have the in-house capacity to develop these facilities," said Moody.

"We currently represent five public companies in the various specialized segments of the health-care field, and we will broaden this representation this year."

SELECTED

Jim Herrell, of Huntington Harbour, has been named to top Southern California marketing post by Fox & Carskadon, major Bay Area real estate investment firm. He is a CSLB graduate.

E. Almeraz promoted at CMI

Emmett Almeraz, of Seal Beach, has been appointed executive director of hospitals for Cardinal Medical Enterprise, Los Angeles.

Almeraz was administrator of Saint Aloisius Hospital in Harvey, N.D., before joining Cardinal, and prior to this appointment was administrator for two of the firm's hospitals.

He retired from the Navy in 1968.

General projects in completion

Aiming for more "elbow room" for future growth, General Telephone Company's $640,000 building modification project involving three of the company's dial switching centers in the Bellflower-Norwalk Division is nearing completion.

A two-story addition to the facility at 9826 E. Oak St., Bellflower, was wrapped up this past December, while work on the one-story addition at 18400 S. Pioneer Blvd., Artesia, was completed in January.

The remaining modification project, a two-story addition to the utility's building at 12035 Front St., Norwalk, will be completed within a month.

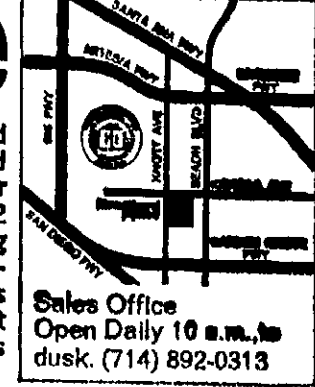

General Tel will fill some of the newly-created space in these offices with automatic switching equipment. This equipment will enable the utility to offer its customers a number of new services, the most immediate being touch calling — or pushbutton dialing.

This Grand Opening will convince you it's cheaper to buy than rent!

1968 Legislation Aids Planned Communities

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Public offering of $8 million U.S. Government-guaranteed New Communities Act debentures of Jonathan Development Corp. was made today by under-

Boston Corp. . . . "Announcements like this in the financial pages of your newspaper recently marked more than just another debenture offering. "Much more," commented

Marin J. Higgins, vice president in charge of First Boston Corporation's real estate activities. "It was the first financing covered by the New Communities Act of 1968 — an act designed to foster new community development."

The Act is Title IV of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. It authorizes the Secretary of HUD to guarantee obligations issued by private developers to help finance new community development projects.

There are a number of "new towns" in the country. Best known are Reston, in Virginia, and Columbia between Washington, D.C. and Baltimore. All follow the concept imported from Europe where it was born out of the World War II blitz and Winston Churchill's determination that Britain must not rebuild itself in urban slums. Most still are under construction and many have encountered perplexing problems — not the least of which are the enormous costs and the difficulties of financing them.

"THIS government-guaranteed financing," Higgins said, "should generate new interest in the planned community, vitally needed in view of the nation's tremendous housing problems. Already, we have received inquiries stemming from the Jonathan offering."

Jonathan Development, a Minnesota corporation, issued the 8½ per cent Series A debentures, due 1990, to finance a portion of the land acquisition and development costs in connection with the creation of the new community, called Jonathan, near Chaska, Minn., approximately 24 miles southwest of Minneapolis. HUD has agreed, subject to certain conditions, to guarantee up to $21 million of such obligations over a ten-year period. Jonathan's timetable calls for up to 20 years of development.

Just what kind of community is Jonathan to be?

"The aim is to provide living for ultimately 50,000 residents while preserving the comfortable and rural character of the area by utilizing land in its proper environment." This is the stated goal of Jonathan Development Corp. and its prime mover, State Senator Henry T. McKnight, president of the corporation, who said the whole idea for the town started to take shape in 1964 when he visited government-financed new towns near London and in Scotland.

BRIEFLY, Jonathan will be developed according to a plan under which approximately 10,000 persons will reside in high-density dwelling units near the town center, where department stores and municipal and other facilities serving the project will be located. Approximately 5,000 persons will live on or near a 300-acre "learning center" which may accommodate a wide range of educational activities. In addition, five villages within the project are planned, each with a population of from 5,000 to 7,000 persons.

The development plan is designed to preserve and complement the rolling hills, wooded areas, creeks and lakes of the site, which eventually will exceed 5,000 acres. Open park land will run throughout the project, providing separation of different urban functions and offering easily accessible recreation.

To date, substantial site preparation has been completed, certain sewer and water facilities have been installed and connected with the City of Chaska municipal systems and some road construction has been completed. Planned freeway construction will give improved access to the Twin Cities metropolitan centers and airport.

Five neighborhood residential plans within the project have been filed and the lists are in various stages of development. Commercial building, too, has begun.

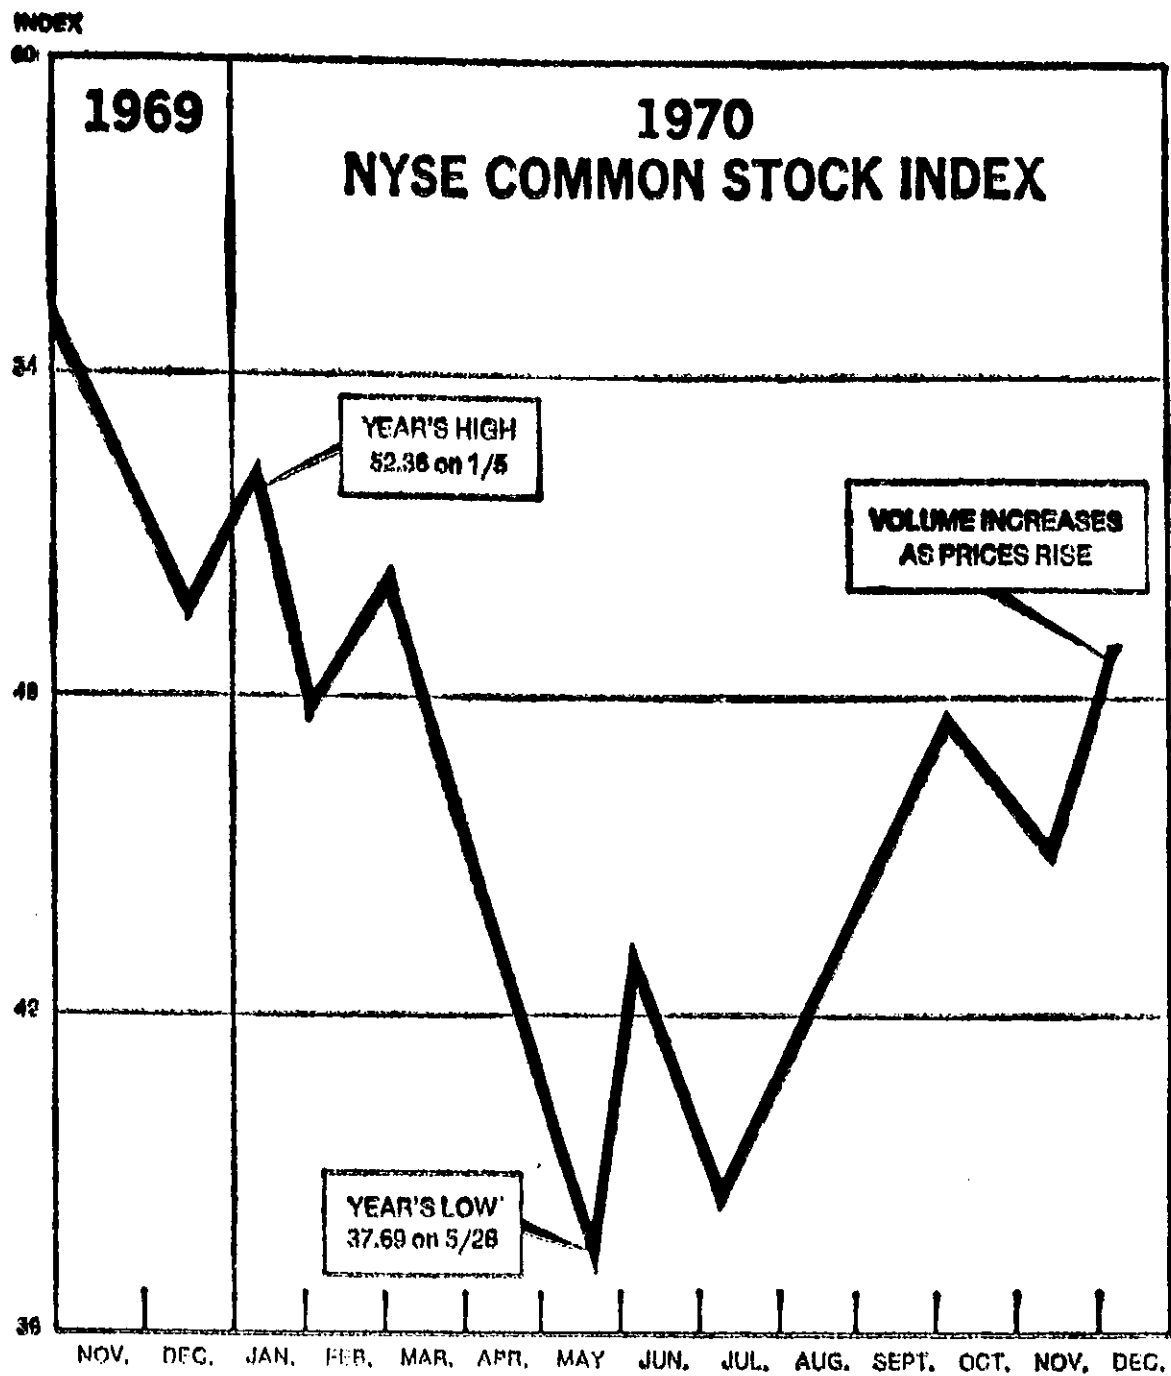

Residential construction will be by private builders. Local builders already have completed homes and some of these are occupied.

SEVERAL buildings have been completed in a portion of the project set aside for industrial use, which has been designated Jonathan Center for Research and Industry. These include a facility, referred to as a "hatchery." It is designed for small venture-capital firms whose needs for space are likely to grow so that within several years they will expand into their own separate plant facilities.

Dreyfus Development Corp. is constructing model homes in the community, and Jonathan Housing Corp. also is operating in the project. Jointly owned by Jonathan Development, Northern Natural Gas Co., Burlington Industries, Inc., Olin Corp., and Stanford Research Institute, it plans to erect innovative, industrially-produced houses based on an initial prototype which is essentially a flexible house with units which may be added in stages as family needs change.

Jonathan is inviting people to "Come and grow with us." Accepting the invitation could be rewarding.

AMONG SUPERMARKETS

See Big Swing to Use of Automation

Consumerism has hit the supermarkets, and the biggest swing has been to unit pricing, a method enabling shoppers to make instant, accurate price comparisons.

Some food chains have started putting freshness dates on meat, bread, cottage cheese and other perishables.

Others have posted lists of laundry detergents with their phosphate levels, or have run educational ads about nutrition, but the big swing is to unit pricing. The practice has spread to about 35 supermarket chains, according to the National Association of Food Chains.

"In two years every chain in the U.S. will fall in line," predicts Rep. Benjamin S. Rosenthal, a sponsor of federal unit-pricing legislation.

UNIT pricing is simply labeling a package by the content's price per established units — ounces, pounds, pints, quarts, gallons, or, where appropriate, 100-count and so on.

It means that a shopper faced with the 5-ounce jar of a product for 78 cents and a 6-ounce size for $1.09 could tell instantly that the larger size is not the bargain she might expect.

In fact, in this example, the price per pound (unit price) of the 5-ounce jar's contents is $2.49, while the bigger size goes for $2.90. That's not too difficult, but what would the consumer do with a box of detergent labeled "1 lb. 7 oz net weight" and stamped "three for 89 cents?"

WITHOUT unit prices, says the nonprofit Consumers Union, there are too many different package sizes calling for too many arithmetic problems to allow a shopper to make consistently accurate price comparisons.

When unit pricing was first proposed, the biggest objection raised against it was the cost to the supermarkets, but recent experiments by food chains have shown these costs to be negligible, says CU.

The consumer-advisory organization advocates unit pricing in every self-service store and a federal law setting rules for nationwide standards for whether a package should be priced by the pound or by the ounce, by the quart, or pint, or gallon, or by a 10-count, 50-count, or 100-count.

IN Massachusetts, where the nation's first unit-pricing law went into effect Jan. 1, individually owned one-store operations were exempt.

But CU thinks the consumer would benefit by development of inexpensive methods for putting both the price per package and the unit price on every self-service item.

Unit pricing could also serve to stiffen buyer resistance to price increases by giving them an immediate awareness that a manufacturer is "packaging to price." Under this deceptive technique, explains CU, manufacturers cut quantity and give you less for your money than you're accustomed to receiving.

That means the 16-ounce can of vegetables could become a 14-ounce can and the "price" would remain the same. But shoppers who knew the old unit price would immediately recognize that the cost had gone up.

If you're now renting, you can't afford to pass up this Grand Opening!

Boise Cascade has workable trade-in plan

Boise Cascade has a new guaranteed trade-in plan at six residential communities in the South Bay area.

It is often difficult and usually necessary for families to sell their old houses in order to buy a new one.

Buyers of new homes in one of Boise Cascade's homes in the South Bay area receive full appraised market value for their existing homes, less normal selling costs.

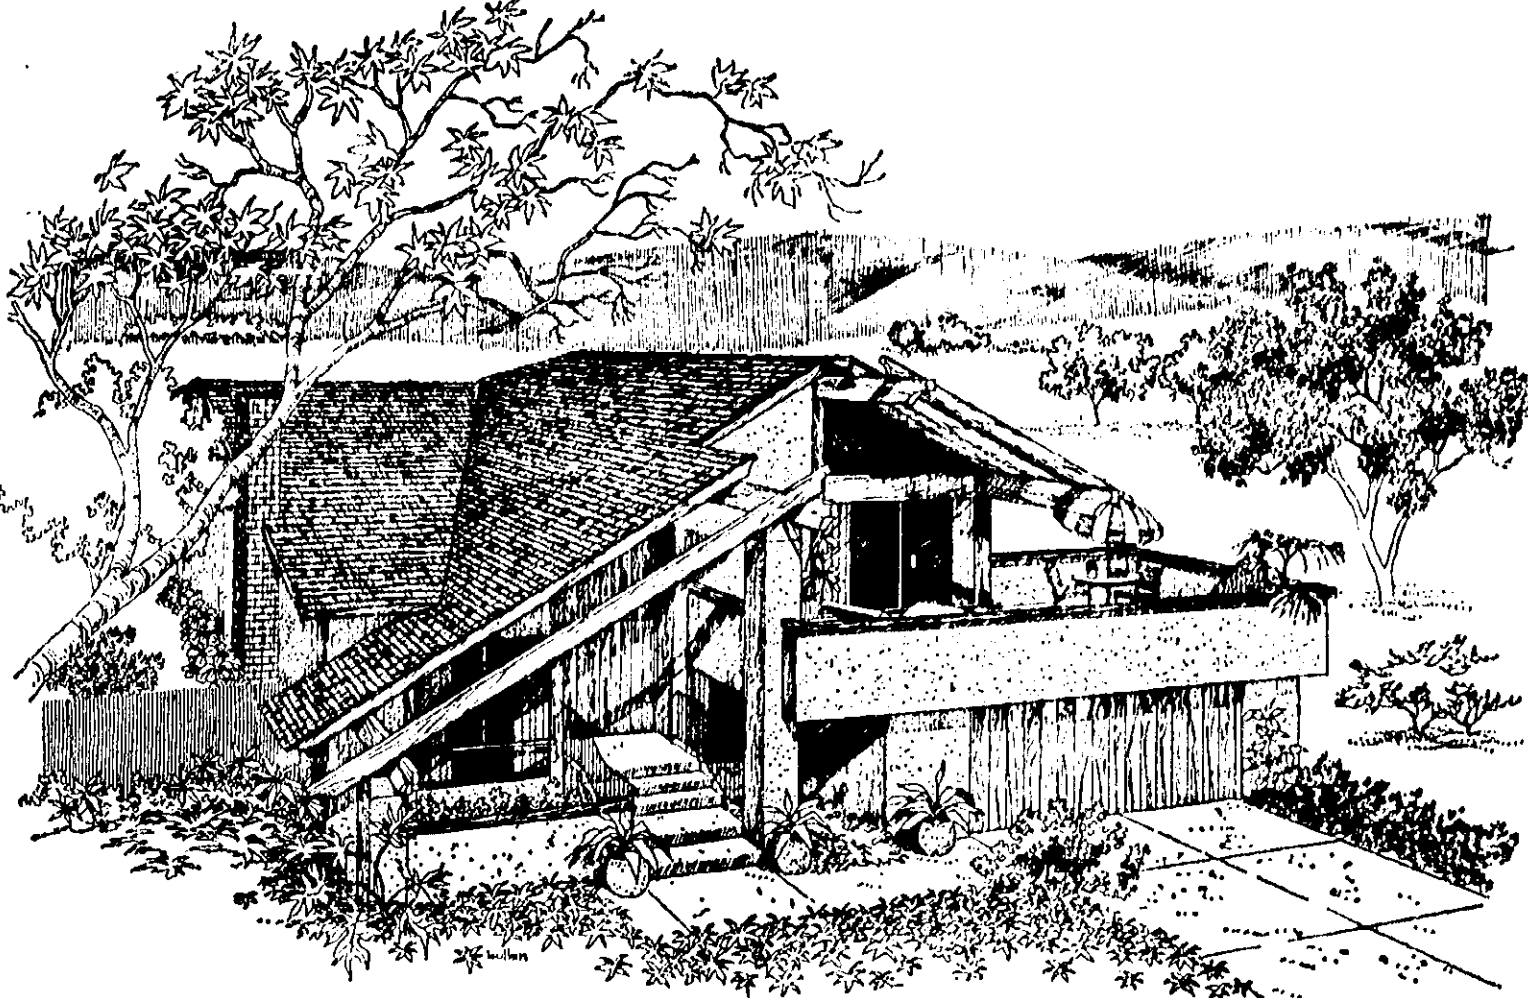

Low-interest new home financing is available at prices which can never be lower because of rising labor, material and land costs.

THOUGH LAND in the area is scarce, Boise Cascade bought when it was available and at reasonable cost.

The homes are near beaches, schools, equestrian estates, offices, stores and employment opportunities. Clean, fresh air is one of the area's popular assets.

The residential communities are Pacific South Bay, Torrance; Sun Ray Estates, Gardena; The Woods, Harbor City; Academy Hill and Shore Crest in Palos Verdes Peninsula, and Green Meadow South in Harbor City.

WOOD-AND-BRICK WARMTH... Seen At Rancho La Cuesta

Rancho La Cuesta homes near hub of 2-county area

The growing city of Cerritos is becoming a major municipality in the hub between Los Angeles and Orange Counties. Builder Don Ayres Jr., in anticipation of Cerritos' growth, built some of the first homes in this thriving community.

Now, at The New Rancho La Cuesta in Cerritos, he offers custom-designed three and four-bedroom homes with two bathrooms and family rooms.

Ayres' firm calls on experience, gained in developing and building in Southern California since 1905, to produce these new designs. New materials and construction techniques also are used at The New Rancho La Cuesta in Cerritos.

CONVENTIONAL VA and FHA financing plans are available to qualified buyers for prices as low as $24,390.

All of the Ayres distinctive features, costing as much as $10,000 more in other areas, are evident in these new homes. High, sweeping roof-lines, imaginative use of wood, stucco and other materials reflect a dignified approach to neighborhood planning.

Furnished and decorated model homes may be visited daily near 183rd Street and Carmentia Boulevard.

Large Number of Door Locks Would Fail to Discourage Burglar

It is a lucky thing the typical burglar is no expert, says Consumer Reports, because nearly all of the door locks it tested recently could be defeated by an accomplished burglar.

In a February-issue report, the consumer magazine rates dozens of locks and explains why only a few of the more than 50 it tested would make an expert burglar's job a little more difficult. Even fewer might completely discourage him.

A positive note offered by the magazine is that a good pick man isn't likely to waste his highly developed skills in random burglary and is probably not after tv sets, clothing, minor jewelry items, or other easily sold household valuables.

The good pick man is probably working fashionable neighborhoods and taking a risk only when he's reasonably sure he'll find something of significant value.

BUT IF you think your home is likely to draw an accomplished burglar's attention, Consumer Reports suggests you consider a high-security cylinder as a replacement for the cylinder in your lock.

The prices of those tested ranged from $5 to $24 for the cylinder.

In discussing special-purpose locks, the magazine cites one selling for $200 which, despite its "massive appearance," succumbed to the "crudest of physical assaults."

Those concerned with door locks in more general terms should know that the familiar key-in-the-knob type lock — the most common type — is the least secure of the widely used door locks.

Typically, says Consumer Reports, such locks fell easy prey to brute force in its tests.

The mortise locks—identifiable from the outside by a keyhole directly above the door knob — are potentially more secure. But the magazine says that most people accept existing hardware and don't choose between these two types of primary locks.

BECAUSE more than 60 per cent of recorded illegal entries occur through a door, Consumer Reports suggests that you replace a key-in-the-knob lock with a more secure mortise type. There shouldn't be too many fitting problems.

Or, says the magazine, you can attach an auxiliary lock to the door — maybe even with a high-security cylinder.

A minimum measure you should take if your door has decorative wood panels or window panes that could be forced or broken open is to install an auxiliary lock out of reach of an arm coming through the opening, or to install a lock with an inside keyhole — keeping the key handy for a possible emergency exit — instead of a thumb-turn knob.

Canadian fair plans outlined

Southland business and civic leaders this week were given an informal preview of plans for the forthcoming British Columbia International Trade Fair, Impto/Expo 71, to be held in Vancouver June 2-12, at a special press conference at the Canadian Consulate offices in Los Angeles.

J. Gear McEntyre, Canadian consul-general and Lee Nevraumont, industry and trade commissioner, government of the Province of British Columbia, were hosts, in conjunction with J. Norman Hyland, president of Impto/Expo 71 and Ken Brown, executive director of the trade fair.

Hyland pointed out that Impto/Expo 71 is the fifth such trade fair sponsored by British Columbia and is the largest regularly-scheduled trade fair held on the North American continent.

RCA expects improved results in second half

RCA sales and earnings declined in 1970, but the company expects improved results for 1971, particularly in the year's second half. Robert W. Sarnoff, Chairman and President, announced this week.

In RCA's 1970 annual report, Sarnoff said a persistently sluggish national economy made the business environment difficult throughout last year.

"Its impact was felt in terms of lower sales and earnings for many industrial enterprises, including RCA. In our case, its effect was compounded by a costly 101-day strike at midyear," he said.

FINAL figures placed RCA's 1970 sales at $3.3 billion compared to $3.4 billion in 1969. The year's net profit of $91.7 million was 43 per cent below 1969, but slightly improved over RCA's year-end forecast. Net earnings per share were $1.26 compared with $2.27 last year.

RCA's fourth quarter sales were $939 million compared to $922 million last year. Profit for the year's final three-month period was $36.9 million against $47.3 million for the previous year.

SPACIOUSNESS... Feature Throughout Bradford Place

Lookers are buying, too, at Bradford Place

More than 1800 people have visited the furnished models at Bradford Place in Stanton in the last two weekends.

"Many of these families are doing much more than looking — they are buying," said Charles Dreyer, marketing director for Grant Company of California, developers of the community of 416 townhomes.

"We've already sold nearly 100 units," he added.

Bradford Place offers buyers a choice of two and three bedrooms priced from $19,995 to $21,400 on FHA or VA financing.

Under FHA 231(D)2 financing, a buyer of the two-bedroom home priced at $19,995 makes a cash down payment of $95 plus $642 in closing costs and impounds. The 360 monthly payments are $140.78, which includes principle, interest and mutual mortgage insurance at an annual percentage rate of 7.5 per cent.

INCLUDED in the purchase price of each townhome is wall-to-wall carpeting, drapes and a kitchen equipped with built-in electric range and oven, automatic dish washer and disposal.

Each home also has a private fenced patio and enclosed two-car garages with laundry facilities.

Hub of activities at the community is the recently completed private recreation center with a heated swimming pool and large sundeck area. The development also will have tot lots and walking paths located throughout the landscaped grounds.

Maintenance of the clubhouse, pool, grounds and the upkeep of exterior walls, trim and roofs of all homes will be provided by the Bradford Place Homeowners Association.

THE developer of Bradford Place, Grant Company of California, is a subsidiary of Grant Corporation, the Anaheim-based homebuilding and land development division of Santa Anita Consolidated, Inc. that has produced nearly 10,000 homes in the western United States. Currently, the Grant organization is developing 12 major projects in California, Hawaii and Nevada.

By DON CAMPBELL

"Investment: An expenditure of money for income or profit, or to purchase something of intrinsic value." As far as Webster is concerned, that's just about all there is to it, and life would certainly be a lot less complicated if this were the case.

Unfortunately, too, the larger the investment being made, the larger the headaches associated with it tend to be. (Exceptions would have to include such things as a one million dollar investment in U.S. government bonds which is relatively simple to execute and about as close to being completely worry free as any investment can be.) In real estate, however, the complications tend to be large, and the bigger the investment, the bigger the complexities most certainly are.

MR. CAMPBELL:

We are considering buying a $2 1/4 million dollar apartment building (144 units). However, we are skeptical as to whether this is a good time to invest in real estate during this sort of inflation.

Also, what problems beset a landlord? We would have someone take care of management, plus a caretaker and a resident manager.

Are there bulletins, magazines, or books available for the prospective landlord? — Mr. T.G.

ANSWER: The question of whether this, or any other time, is a good time to invest in real estate is a perennial hang-up. Frankly, I don't know what the answer is, although, in all honesty, I view with considerable skepticism all of the jolly talk that has come out of Washington in the past few months about how the inflationary cycle has slowed down and how interest rates are going to continue dropping in 1971.

Certainly, there is no evidence yet, that inflation has slackened off, nor that the unemployment figures can be improved this year. Nor do I quite understand how inflation can be licked when the federal government is continuing to run a $15 to $20 billion dollar deficit, when labor settlements are historically high, and when the government is continuing to crank out paper money much faster than it can be productively absorbed.

In other words, I, myself, would be a little nervous about putting so much money into an apartment complex at this time, but everyone has to kill his own snakes, and there are some impressive arguments floating around completely in opposition to me.

If you go ahead with your plan, however, I think that you are being very wise to recognize that apartment management is a very tricky and highly specialized business and one that — unless you have had considerable experience in the field — should be left to the professionals. As far as detailed information is concerned, virtually every state — and most major cities — have an apartment association which should be able to provide you with a bibliography of literature on the subject of apartment ownership.

You might also ask for guidance from the National Apartment Owners Association, 1200 18th St. N.W., Washington, D.C., which is the national federation of state and local associations.

MR. CAMPBELL:

I am writing to you in the hope that someone else will learn from my bad experience in buying a home.

First of all, never, buy a house in which the owner has had tenants living in it.

I did, and here is what I found wrong after I moved in, and after I was told, verbally, that everything was in working order:

I put a new pump, belt and float in the swamp cooler; fixed leaks under both sinks; broke out the outside wall behind the kitchen sink to fix a leak; took out the washing machine drain pipe because the water backed up and the washer emptied; patched up dozens of cracks hidden by pictures; completely re-built one door jamb on the front door because the owner couldn't find the key to the front door before the purchase; repaired a big leak in the roof near the cooler; replaced an oven element; replaced one wall heater that was shot; put a new fan motor in the heater and, finally, experienced a fire in one of the wall receptacles resulting from the fact that there were only 30 Amp fuses in the fuse box.

I hope that some people will benefit from this and make sure that they inspect everything and put it in writing. By the way, this is not the first house I have bought. (Please don't use my name — I don't want my friends to know what a jerk I was.)—Mr. F.B.

ANSWER: I am afraid that this unhappy recitation proves that, despite all of our supposed sophistication these days, two facts of life are still in existence: The principle of "caveat emptor" ("Let the buyer beware") is still very much in force in the real estate business, and a good, fast paint job can cover virtually every structural defect short of a collapsed floor.

Mr. F.B. has given some very sound advice — particularly, as he points out, if the house you are buying has been used as rental property. One hundred dollars or 150 dollars spent on a professional appraisal of this house would have saved him many times over that amount. Which, I am sure, he finds very consoling, at this time.

MR. CAMPBELL:

In my state — as I am sure you know — it is sometimes possible for the seller of a house to hold on to the ground which is then subject to a ground rental.

CHOSEN

Robert McIntosh, Glendora, has been appointed general manager of Davis Paint Company's Long Beach Paint Store, 2650 E. Broadway. McIntosh had been in wholesale paint work.

I have such a ground rental agreement and the persons buying the house through a building and loan association hold the mortgage. I have been getting $84.00 a year or $42.00 every six months, for more than ten years now.

The question is: can I increase the ground rent and, if so, how? I am being paid through the association every six months. — MR. H. J. L.

ANSWER: The arrangement you are referring to here is known as the "Maryland system," and I will have to admit that I am not too familiar with all of its ramifications.

The type of lease you refer to is normally for 99 years, renewable, and such ground rents are bought and sold in Baltimore in much the same way that mortgages are traded.

I suggest that you contact the savings and loan association which is handling the arrangements and see if there is some way you can increase the ground rent before your next renewal date — which under the present terms, I gather, is still about 89 years hence.

I strongly suspect there is some provision for changing the ground rent on good cause.

La Linda HOMES

PARK SERIES

BY RICHARD HALL AND ROBERT MAIN

'We decided to sell now that our children are grown.'

Park boosts sales of La Linda units

One million dollars in sales was recorded by Fountain Valley's La Linda Homes last month and according to Mac Blankenship, project manager for the homes, it is no secret why they are going so fast. "Of course one reason is because we are selling award winning homes," Blankenship said. "But another is the famed Mile Square Park."

The park, which will encompass 485 acres when completed in 1975, is located adjacent to the La Linda project. It will be one of Orange County's most complete county regional parks.

"It will be a spectacular facility when completed," Blankenship said. "It will not only provide plenty of leisure-time activities for our homebuyers, but will also increase the value of their property."

At the moment an 18-hole golf course and clubhouse are in operation. Seventy-seven acres of rolling turf that has play equipment, picnic facilities and restrooms is also finished.

WHEN completed the children's play area will be expanded to include spray and wading pools, a model railroad and even small trails for tricycles.

A children's zoo is planned and there will also be pony rides.

Other areas of the park will feature ponds and lakes for fishing and boating, trails for hiking, jogging and cycling, camp grounds, a pitch and putt golf course and plenty of meadows and play areas.

La Linda is conducting a "grand close-out" for the 14 remaining homes in the development's second unit. The third unit is now under construction and will be completed in September.

Blankenship said it is wise for homebuyers to purchase homes in the second unit.

"With spiraling construction and labor costs, I think it is safe to say that our third unit homes will be more expensive than those in the second," he said.

PRICED from $31,950, La Linda has four model homes open daily with plans of three, four and five bedrooms, two or three baths and two and three-car garages.

A special program of move-in costs is available to all qualified veterans. This plan allows vets to buy a home with a $1 down payment.

Included in the single, two-story and tri-level homes are drapes, double entry doors, fireplaces, carpeting, paneled family room walls, formal dining rooms, private bath suites for all master bedrooms, forced air heating and a walk-in closets.

The homes are on Euclid Street, just north of Warner Avenue.

'Bonus Package' at Landmark popular

A special "bonus package" has helped spur sales at the Signal Landmark project in Cerritos, according to Dick Sheakley, sales manager.

"The package has had a very definite affect on our sales," Sheakley said. "We have now sold close to 40 per cent of our 115 homes."

The "bonus package" afford the homebuyer no closing costs, no property tax payments until July and a deferment of second trust deed payments for two years.

The Landmark project also offers home seekers the highly successful innovation called the "creative side yard."

"THIS NEW concept gives you an additional five feet of usable side yard by expanding the area on one side of the lot, approximately five feet beyond the normal lot line," Sheakley said.

The extra five feet is gained by actually moving the home to one edge of the lot line. It eliminates two small side yards in preference for one large one.

The one and two-story homes are priced from $28,375, and a 5 per cent down payment plan is available.

Included in the purchase price are forced air heating, fireplaces, landscaping, sprinklers, carpeting and three-car garages.

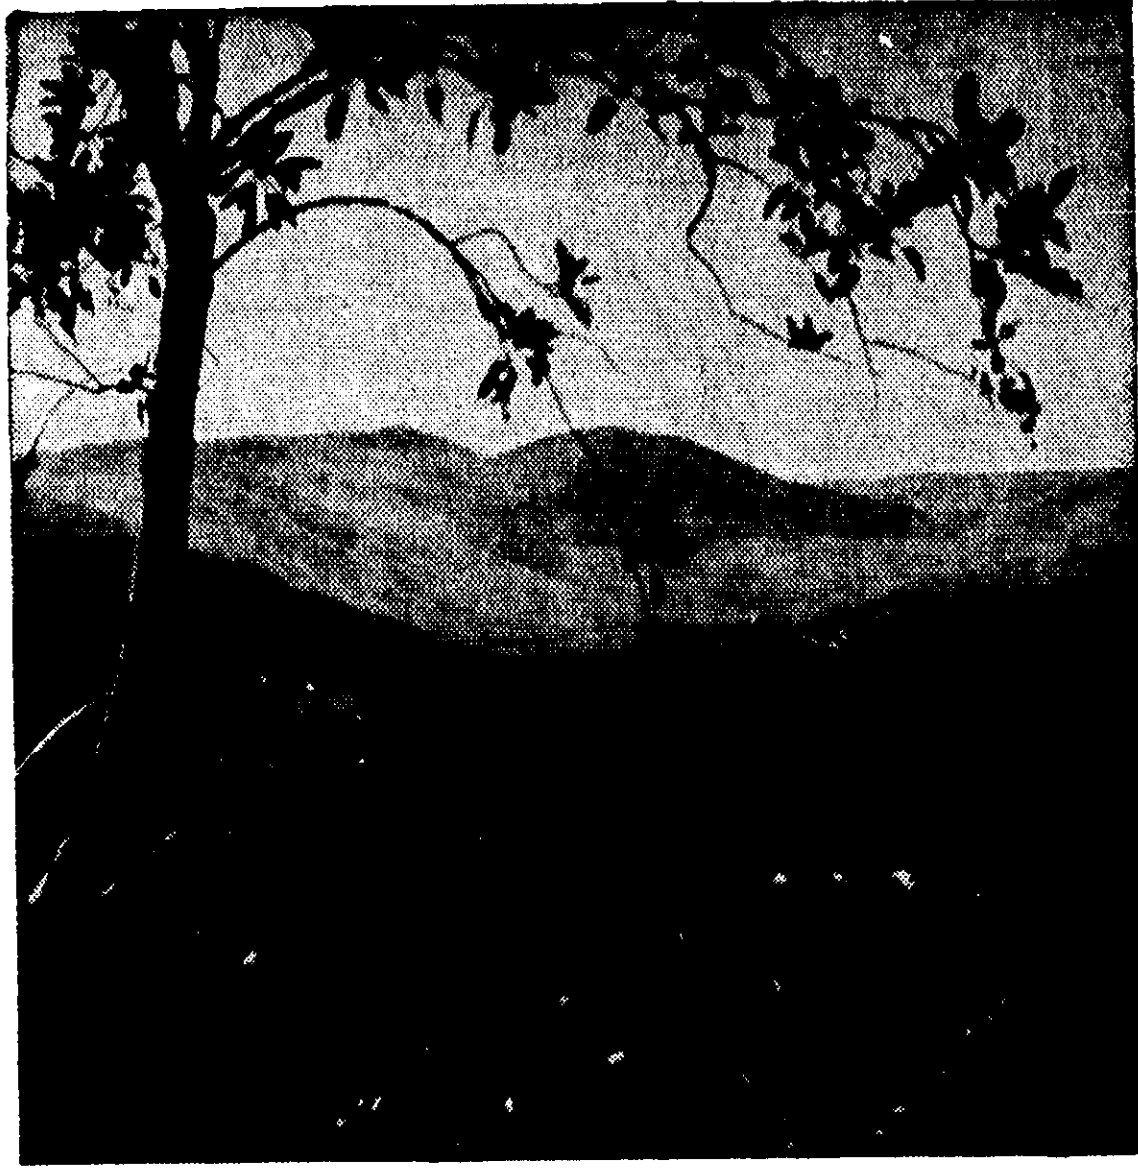

To reach the Landmark Homes model area from the San Gabriel Freeway, take the South Street exit east. From the Artesia Freeway, take the Norwalk Boulevard exit south to South Street, then turn left to the five model homes.

Joint venture PHILADELPHIA (UPI)

Brewer & Co. announced the formation of the first independent sugar processing cooperative in Hawaii as a joint venture with Hilo Island Coast Independent Growers.

Brewer will contribute processing assets valued at $10.5 million and cash capital of around $18 million will be raised in Hawaii. More than 400 independent sugar farmers will contribute about $4.5 million of the sum needed to modernize sugar processing on the Hilo Coast, Brewer said.

There are many reasons to buy a home in the Highlands at Laguna Niguel. But you'll see the best one when you look out the window.

About all a window is good for in most homes is to let some light in.

But it's different in the Highlands at Laguna Niguel.

The homes in the Highlands are built high up in the hills, so when you look out the windows you get a view of all the surrounding countryside.

From the windows of these homes you can look down on the valley below and see all the "flatland" communities. Across the valley you can see the Santa Ana Mountains, Modjeska Peak, Santiago Peak, Los Pinos Peak. And when you look North, you can see the San Bernardino Mountains and snow-covered Mt. Baldy in the distance. It's quite a view.

The kind of view that people often call "breathtaking."

Don't overlook everything else while you're looking at the view.

A view isn't the only thing you get at Laguna Niguel.

We also have recreational facilities.

A lot of recreational facilities.

In fact, we don't know of another community in Southern California that offers as many different recreational activities as we do.

Start with the Pacific Ocean.

The entire Southern side of Laguna Niguel is bordered by the ocean.

(How many communities do you know of that have that?) There are beautiful beaches all along here, and you can use them any time you want to.

If you'd like to belong to a private beach club, we have that, too. The Laguna Niguel Beach Club.

The new Dana Point Marina and Yacht Harbor is right next door to Laguna Niguel.

And if you like golf, we have something you'll love. The El Niguel Country Club. This club has an 18-hole golf course that is rated as one of the three best courses in Southern California.

On top of that, Laguna Niguel has a 162-acre county regional park with a 47-acre lake.

And for the people who live in the Highlands, there is a private club for Highlands residents only. There is a large clubhouse for your use, an 85-foot swimming pool, a 25-foot children's pool, and a playground and picnic area.

What do homes in the Highlands have that "ordinary" homes don't?

These homes are two, three, and four bedroom homes.

You will find that the designs of these homes are unusually well thought out. There are no awkward areas. No "klunky" rooms.

And all of our homes have extra details that set them apart from "ordinary" homes.

For example, all our garages have an electric door opener. (Your wife won't have to wrestle around with a heavy garage door every time she starts to go to the grocery store.)

Most "ordinary" homes offer you partial carpeting. We give you carpeting throughout.

Most "ordinary" homes have the tile and carpeting colors pre-chosen. We give you a choice.

And side yard fencing.

And we landscape from the street in front of your home all the way up to your front yard fence (we call that "Streetscaping").

These extras are only a partial list of what we give you.

There's much more.

In fact, we don't know of any other homes in our price range that offer you as many extras as we do.

Homes in the Highlands are priced from $27,500 to $36,750.

Our prices are reasonable. Very reasonable.

They start at just $27,500. And our largest and most expensive models are priced at $36,750.

We offer you FHA, as well as conventional terms.

We should also mention that prime rates have just gone down, so we can give you the lowest rates available today. These are today's rates, not yesterday's rates.

So when you consider everything we offer you, and when you consider the reasonable price, we think you'll agree that these homes are quite a buy.

We believe that we offer you the best buy in Southern California.

And that's not even taking into account the view.

How to get here.

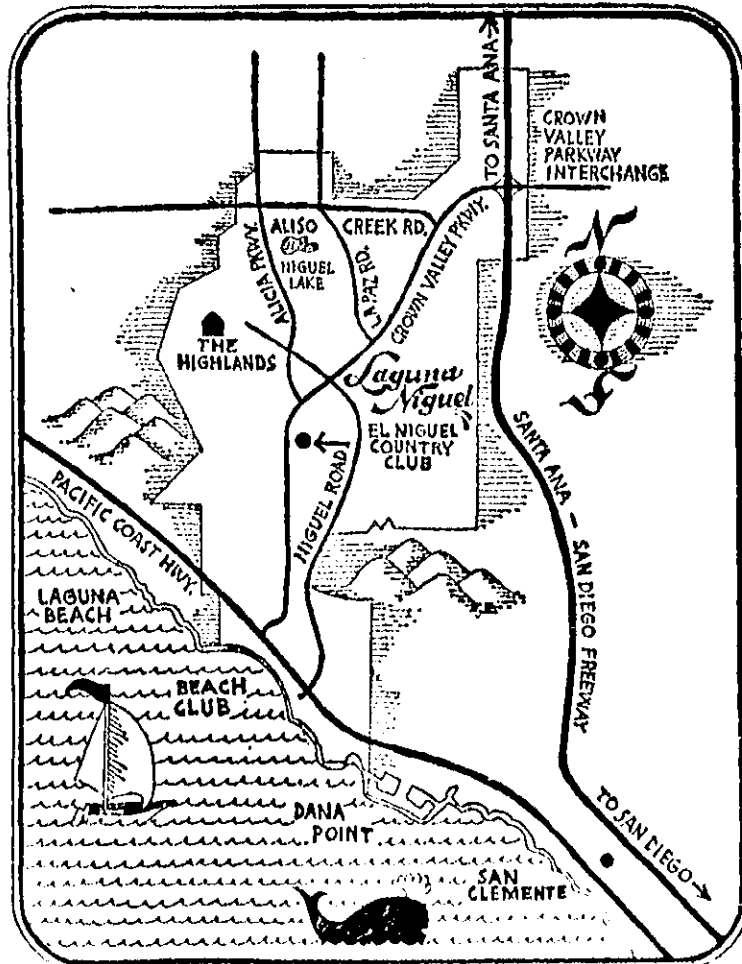

Take the San Diego-Santa Ana Freeway (Highway 5) to Crown Valley Parkway.

Follow Crown Valley Parkway to Niguel Road, and turn right.

Keep going until you come to the Highlands.

By the way, we've been changing signs and our old signs are still up. They say "Crown Valley Highlands."

If you'd like to call us about anything, our number is (714) 495-4644.

Private Membership Lakes ...
America's Newest Recreation Idea!

LAKES

... "Not a fish can leap or an insect fall on the pond but it is thus reported in circling dimples, in lines of beauty, as it were the constant welling up of its fountain, the gentle pulsing of its life. How peaceful the phenomena of the lake!" —
THOREAU

America is going crazy over water!...swimming...boating... fishing...water skiing...and just plain sun bathing are attracting millions more to the water's edge each year!

"Water is a focal point of outdoor recreation. Wherever they live, most people seeking the outdoors look for water to swim and to fish in, to boat on, to walk, picnic and camp by, and just to look at. The demand for water-based recreation is increasing more rapidly than the demand for outdoor recreation in general. Swimming, for example, appears likely to be the most popular outdoor activity by the end of the century..." So said the government's Outdoor Recreation Resources Review Commission in its report to the President and Congress.

Americans seem to be agreeing with this report as in one mighty chorus of approval. Surely the related economic facts and figures are almost incredible. Last year in the U.S., some 40 million people participated in recreational boating, according to the Outboard Boating Club of America. They spent about 3 billion dollars in retail purchases of equipment and they own more than 8 million boats. 7 million of these are outboards. Some three and one half million boat trailers are also in use. In fact, boats are increasing at such a rate that just finding a place to keep them is now a problem. Boating Industry Magazine, May, 1966 says, "statistics show that nearly every Marina slip in the nation is now rented on a yearly basis. Some Marinas have waiting lists longer than their total number of slips."

Skimming and banking in graceful precision behind millions of motor boats are about 8 million water skiers; 750,000 of these are newcomers to the sport within the last year. They have banded together in over 500 ski clubs for competition and camaraderie. Water skiing has rapidly advanced into an important national sport requiring the highest standards of coordination and practice to achieve perfection.

Not to be outdone however are over 23 million licensed fishermen, that between leaving early and coming home late last year, managed to spend some 2 billion six hundred and ninety one million dollars on assorted rods, reels, lures, boats, licenses, food and lodging.

But increasingly the traditional surface fisherman is having to compete with that underwater bloodhound, the skin diver. Skin Diver Magazine reports over 3 million skin divers now in the United States. The industry is enjoying a tremendous sales boom in medium to high priced underwater equipment. 30% of all new students are women and skin diving resorts are booked up months in advance.

A water recreation explosion has happened. Some have branded it variously a fad, water madness or "aquamania." However, a study of the main economic and sociological currents moving now in America and projecting into the next fifty years show conclusively that there are some very sound reasons behind "aquamania."

Leisure time . . . (longer weekends, paid holidays, vacations) is constantly increasing for workers in all industrialized countries. Four week vacations are now common and this country is rapidly moving toward the thirty-five hour work week. Some union contracts now call for twenty-five hours.

In the U.S., people are making more money and spending more money each year. Consumer expenditures excluding food, rent and clothing, rose from 75.3 billion in 1956 to 146.8 billion in 1965. In Vacation time has doubled in less than 20 years and younger more affluent families are playing together outdoors. Water sports provide the perfect family recreation.

In addition it is estimated that over half of our 200 million population will be twenty-five years of age or under by 1970. More younger families with more time off and with more money to spend each year will contribute to the tremendous outdoor recreation leisure market. There are compelling reasons behind the growth of the more active sports such as swimming, boating, water skiing, etc. They provide healthful exercise, release from city tensions and are well suited for wholesome family participation.

However, "aquamania" is causing serious problems for every large state in the Union. The public demand for clean water to swim in, for public beaches, lakes, rivers, sanitation and other facilities is far outstripping the natural public supply of these resources. New innovations are needed to create more water, more shoreline, more boat and beach areas. One new idea that has received tremendous national acceptance in the last few years is the private membership, fresh water lake.

Private membership lakes are the newest recreation idea sweeping the country today. Millions of dollars worth of lots around such lakes were bought by water loving families in just the last 6 months.

Big city smog... Congestion... Noise... Psychological pressures are driving families out of town on weekends to find peace, quiet, clean air, clean water and room to play.

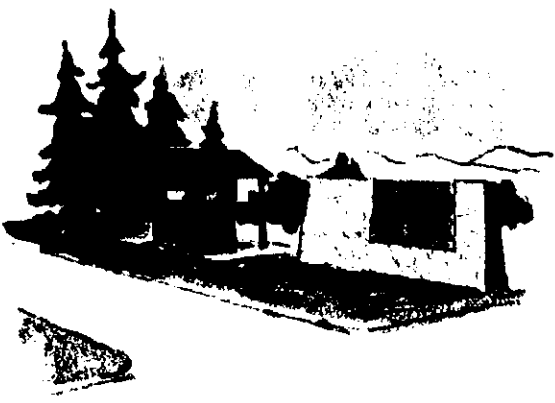

Every 12 seconds there is a net population gain of one person in the U.S., which amounts to an increase of 2,620,800 people per year. And each year 3 million more Americans squeeze into our already jam-packed cities. Today 140 million people — or 7 in every 10 are crowded onto just 1% of our land. The result is strangled cities, slapdash suburbs and rush hour nightmares. There is some question among scientists as to how much of this crowding human beings can stand. No wonder there is a mass recreation exodus out of the cities on weekends and holidays.

The traffic jam has spread from the city to the public beaches...to the public lakes and camp grounds. There just isn't enough recreation land for the exploding population.

In California, more than 80 million persons visited the state's beaches and parks in 1964—more than the combined populations of California, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Michigan. But California has too little public shoreline, park land, campsites, and picnic sites for its 18 million people. The demand for shoreline use has driven the price of premium waterfront land as high as $3,000 a front foot in some beach areas, or $90,000 for a 30' lot!

LAKES

Imagine a sparkling clear lake where your family can fish and swim and play in the sun, your private retreat from the workaday world.

Here is the first private membership lake of its kind ever built in Southern California. Canyon Lake will be a private multi-million dollar water sports and recreation wonderland for just 5000 families.

As a private membership lake, Canyon Lake is as different from an ordinary public lake or beach as night from day. The purity of the water in the lake will be rigidly controlled. A scientific fish stocking and maintenance program will be maintained. Boating, swimming, fishing and water skiing will be regulated to insure the maximum safety and enjoyment for all. Special swimming beaches will be set aside. Reasonable standards of cleanliness, privacy, police security and traffic control will be maintained at all times. A sensible body of association rules will govern the use of all lodge, golf club, riding stable, parks, camp ground, boat docks and commercial facilities. A uniformed guard at entry gate house will admit only Canyon Lake property owners and guests.
